The Daily British 41 his TUESDAY EVENING, JUNE 17.

A St. Petersburg correspondent says the murders, conflagrations, and condemnations of the last few weeks have aggravated the excitement prevailing in Russia. In all the more important towns heats of people are told off for police duty. The great object now is to avert arson, which is threatened everywhere: Letters are regularly opened, telegrams are frequently suppressed, and foreign books on many subjects are either pro- last. hibited, or else so effectuatly defaced by the censorship as to render them useless. Passports to foreign countries are only exceptionally granted and even more rarely prolonged. Russia at this moment is almost as completely shut of from Europe as in the days of Nicho-

..... Mr. Dennison did not accomplish much by the recount of the Addington ballots. The majority by over 40 by which Mr Deroche was declared elected, though not large, was still too heavy to hope to reduce or reverse on a recount of the votes. Instead of diminishing it at all, the degree of 'Bachelor of Arts.' however, the result has been to increase Mr. Deroche's majority. Mr. Dennison is said to be satisfied. We hope he is He can now retire, into merited and no doubt congenial obscurity, while Mr. Deroche will resume without further me lestation the duties of M.P.P., for which he is so admirably qualified. We con gratulate him-and no less than himself the County he will so creditably represent in the House-on the issue of the election itself, and of the foolish and futile attempt to upset it.

.......... Quite consistently with the ungrateful action of the majority of the electors there is good reason to believe that the majority of the gentlemen interested in the completion of the Kingston and Pembroke Railway also opposed the Govern ment candidate at the recent election The solution of this strange behaviour is not far to seek. Political bias aside. gratitude with them consisted in the expectation of favours to come. They doubtless expected the Province to go Tory as it did last September, and they might have been trimming their sails to catch the veering breeze. In this respect the 'sell' has been complete to them and plenty like them. From the above indictment Mr. Mayor Gildersleeve, the Prosident of the Company, must be distinetly exempted. He has proved himself throughout to be not only a consistent supporter of good Government, but a firm friend to the road and to the city of which he is in every sense of the word the worthy Chief Magistrate.

The Toronto Telegrum tenders Mr Meredith a few consolatory reflections in the defeat and disappointment that have overtaken him. Among these, "the fact that he was chosen leader of the Opposition over an experienced politician like Mr. Morris, is greatly to his credit." strung up. We beg to dissent. To be preferred to poor Mr. Morris is not 'greatly to the credit' of any public man with any pretensions to real ability. About as much a narrow escape for Brown. so as the precisely similar compliment which, it will be remembered, is paid to 'H. M. S. Pinafore, an Englishman. Our a small condulence in the fact that 'he ed great wonder in Constantinople. They could hardly expect to be Premier on the strength of one session's apprenticeship as Opposition Leader.' Certainly But then, on the other hand, why did he? It was certainly his intention and expectation to be Premier to-day with or without a sufficient 'apprentices ship.' On this score his friends need not be unduly exercised. The Opposition leader, whoever he may be, will get an ample apprenticeship to the left of the Speaker before his 'time will come' to gross the floor of the Ontario Legislature

STRONG COVERNMENTS.

Intoxicated with their exaggerated and unexpected success of last September the Tory leaders had already proved themselves to be rampantly insolent extravagant and tyrannical in their administration of Dominiou affairs. Too large a majority in Parliament is a questionable advantage to any government. It is apt to render the men in power indifferent to criticism, defiant of opposition, and generally reckless in administration. It has certainly had this effect at Ottawa. In view of this fact some of the Liberal journals of Ontario are indulging in homilies of caution to Ontario Ministers, lest their late great success at the polls should have upon them a similarly demoralizing influence. We admit that a two thirds majority in a popular assembly may have a tendency to inspire a government dependent upon its confidence with too strong a sense of security and render it rather careless of the representations of the minority. On the other hand, however, we have the utmost o niidence in the strong good sense of Hon. Mr. Mowat to preserve the equilibrum of Government upon the crest of the great success in which the late contest has placed him. The Premier is an unusually cautious and level headed statesman, and we have no apprehension that he will not in the administration of Government keep the fear of the people before his eyes. What we have said of the Premier will also hold good, though perhaps, to a slightly lesser degree, of his colleagues in the Government. Although there has been no harm done in drawing the attention of the strengthened Ministry to the danger of over-confi dence, to which all popularly powerful
