DOUBTFUL HONOR. We read a great deal of gush anent th awearing in of Sir John Macdonald as Privy Councillor. He was appointed to that office in 1872, but for obvious rea some he did not presume, until recently to present himself for recognition as such to the Queen. There is no salary at tached to the appointment, and the Premier may never be solicited to give Her Majesty the benefit of his great wisdom and counsel, since the Imperial Cabinet has long since usurped the functions formerly exercised by the Privy Council, as is free to act and speak as he likes, so created and constituted by Charles II.

NEWMAN HALL'S CASC-

The divor e case of Rev. Newman Hall her occupied a large share of public attention, and it has set the 'world' to moralizing upon the effect of scandal it high places. Pest experience 's revived in so far as the sympathies for man and wife are divided, and opinions advanced in regard to the guilt or imocence of the accused. The reverend gentleman, who occupies an eminent position ra a London preacher, bad been estronged from his wife for severa! years, and, according to his testimony, had been long calculating and not such as a men in his position upon a complete sundering of the domestic relations, which could only be done by the showing of reasons why such a step should be taken. Well, we have had the trial, with all its regretable details, the court has weighed the evidence, and the judgment has been given in favor of the plaintiff If Mrs. He'l be not what she has been painted, circumstances have been misleading, and her own conduct has been fearfully misjudged. Her flirtations and erratic wander ings, hunting, smoking, and heartless descrition of ther husband for the society of young Richardson, have not a favorable look, and the paroxismal lissing, to which she acknowledges she has been addicted, indicates a promiscuous distribution of affection which no ordinary hosbe id could commend. Counter charges were preferred by the plrintiff, and it was sought to prove that he was guilty of improprieties unbecoming his cloth and profession. The ruling of the court clears 1 a of the injury these reflections. He may do as his late wife said he wanted to do if he succeeded in gaining a divor .. - he may meny age a, when, it is to I shoped, he may be more fortunate in the choice of partner and the com'orts of ! fe which matrimony implies. To most men, how ever, one marriage like Mr. Ha'l's would have sufficed. We have not heard the end of this case yet. There is much interesting in it, but nought which can elevate or benefit the community except by way of warning.

REPOSE OF PRIVATE LIFE.

In the present 'ssue we quote from speech made by Hon. Edward Blake, at Galt, on the occasion of a presentation to him of a portrait by his political admiers. We had hoped that as the honocrable gentleman recovered his health he would be induced to again actively identify himself with the Reform party, and give the country the benefit of his mature judgment and unselfish counsel, but we fear that for a time we shall not see this expectation real zed. Mr. Blake is not a practical politician. He has had the Congregational church, and the no ambition to become a public man tendering of the resignation, it is thought, merely for the pecunniary benefit could bring him, and he has done no hunting for the empty honor which any position could confer. Had either of these con iderations been the object of his choice h's soul's yearning would have long since been satisfied, and he could have commanded pre'se and pelf in the exercise of his influence and as the price of his power. He tells us that he only served his country for his country's good, and with the hope, which should actuate the course of every honest politician and patriot, of leaving it the better of his labour. For sevent: on sessions of the Provincial and Dominion Houses he was faithful to his constituents, who were not limited to the Riding sending him to Parfiament; he saw the use and fall of three Governments, and in a'l this time he displayed so abi'ity and conscientiousness which have made his name worthy of the great respect in which it is held by the Mr. Woods is a ripe scholar, an exper Reform party. Mr. Blake desires to be given the repose which private life secures him. He assures us, however, known to the teachers and scholers of that he is warm'y attrohed to the cause for which he has in the past done valiant battle. Should a crisis arise -should his voice be required in advocacy of the principles he bas so long esponsed-he the work that would devolve upon such and was taken back to Albion gast, where will still be available, and the time may an appointment. In addition to all this, he lay confined under an indictment for be near at hand when the call to duty will place him where he was before i'l- issm that so prominently characterizes unused water-closet with a knife, and rehealth forced his retirement. Mr. Blake himself. We would like to see him turned to Canada a second time. is the ablest and purest policician of the chosen for the vacancy referred to. The present day, and no position in the gift mantle of Dr. McCaul would be worn of the people will do him a greater honor than he deserves, little as he seeks he desires it. RIOTS IN QUEBEC. on Monday, 25th irst. It has been found

The only stated the rioting of the turbulent masses when it has got beyond the control of the civic place on Friday evening next at 7 p.m. authorities. The last difficulty has been rather a peculiar one, and is traced directly to differences of race, and the excitement of a wages competition. For years there existed in the ancient capitel a Labourers' Benevolent Association, the ostensible object of which may have been benevolence, but the direct and chief aim of which was to maintain a rate of wages ($4 per day), which ocean vessel men were obliged to pay, having no alternative but to meet the demands of an organization which numbered members by the thousand, and which virtually controlled the labour market. But a division lately occurred, and the acceding members, principally, if not all French Cahadiaus, formed what is known as the "Union Canadienne." It is alleged that ostensible object of which may have been | the clearly defined remains of an old in-"Union Canadienne," It is alleged that that no one man can hold it still."
