REGALINDERS.

MARY ANDERSON at the Opera House-

The cackling of some Tory prints about the increase in the Dominion revenue is a little premature and untimely. The Income for August is always higher than it is for July. Now, there would have been a chance for a little congratulation did the receipts for August of this year exceed those of July 1878, but such i not the case. The comparison is not fa vorable to the N.P., the fraudulent na ture of which is being the more exposed the longer it is in operation.

an explanation anent his reported threat to burn Grant in effigy on the arrival of great preparations have been made for his reception. Kearney says he has been an admirer of General Grant, and that he only said the effigy should be burned if the returning hero became the tool of theires and knaves-to neither of which party Mr. Kearney belongs! Perhaps Dennis abandoned his original scheme because some one threatened to hang him, not in effigy but in reality.

Scarcely a week passes but fresh complaints are made respecting the management of the Intercolonial Railway by Sr Charles Tupper. The dismissal of officials has been carried to such an extent that both the Minister of Public Works and the Finance Minister are charged with having broken promises without number, and with having practiced the opposite of what they preached. Of course the Intercolonial Railway employees must remember that these are not election days, and that their opinions and ballots will not be canvassed for some little time fet. And then Sir Charles has quite a number of relatives to settle in office you know.

We devote considerable space to-day to the scenes which took place yesterday at the adjourned meeting of the shares holders of the Consolidated Bank. The meeting was most disorderly at times, and the exposure of irregularities only tended to cause increased irritation. The Directors were defeated in their attempt to buy up the stock, and they have been unsparingly condemned for the losses which the bank has austained in consequence of loose management. The Government has been asked to make an examination of the bank's affairs, and t criminally prosecute the Directors and officials if there be ground for it.

-----The 'high authority' of which Lord Beaconstield spoke at Aylesbury, inhis references to agriculture in Canada and the United States, was undoubtedly the man who looks like him; and that other 'high authority' is either Sir Leonard Tilley or | penalty of banishment. THE JOLY COVERNMENT. Hon. D. A. Ross, the Adjutant the Joly Government, has silenced the talk about his purpose t follow Hon. Mr. Chauveau in his untime ly bolt from the Liberal party at a crisis when men of pronounced principal should be firm in their loyalty to the leader' whom they were elected to support. Mr Ross says he entered public life at the solicitation of a man who has done more for his country within one short year than others have accomplished in a life time. He has been opposed to those who, he thought, were conspiring against the liberty of the people, whom they threatened "to take by the throat," and the factious conduct of the Tory party. Mr. Chapleau, has indignation. "Have they," asks Mr. Ross, "ever admit ted that the substitution of the will of the Executive for the judical tribunals of the country was an intollerable outrage on a free people? Have they abuted one jot or one title of their cherished programme? Have they expressed the alightest feeling of remorse ! On the contrary their only regret is that they were prevented from carrying their schemes into effect. And now they have induced a majority of the members of the Legislative Council to act as their partizane by ignoring the voice of the people, and by daring to obstruct the all the departments and relations Supply Bill, to not one item of which did they or could they object; now they have attempted to coerce the Libesalparty into a coalition. INDICTING A COVERNMENT.

The last British mail brings to us budget of news that has not been forestall ed by the cablegrams, which have became the indispensable stock in trade of the daily newspaper. Much has been sa and written in condemnation of the foreign policy of the Beaconsfield Government, but we have after all but a meagre idea of the burning questions which agitate the breasts of the people of Great Britain. War and taxation have become weighty considerations, and the gloomy outlook and improbable results of the Af. ghan and Zulu campaigns are creating an impression which the Jingo party cannot the judgments that inevitably follow a hope to counteract. Great has been the course of degeneracy and crime? If so, expenditure of money and blood in these wars. The victories are of a doubtful and unprofitable character, and the supervision and government of anything beyond the present dominions were task suggestive of disappointment and barrenness. Beaconsfield's Govern ment has been indicted by the Liberal party for its unfortunate administration of affairs; and the voice of the people seems to be raised against the extension of the present disheartening and depressing action of Kearney has felt it necessary to make the War Department. In the Orkney Herald of a recent date we find that even in the pulpit the English Government is the ex-President at San Francisco, where indicted for the loss of life and suffering and misery which have been experienced by the attempted conquest of far distant and heathenish lands. Rev. David Webster a clergyman of some eminence and much sound sense, in the U. P. Church, Kirkwell, compares Beaconsfield's cabinet t the Jewish Government against which Jeremish prophesied. "Be thou in structed, O Jerusalem, let my soul depart from thee, lest I make thee desolate, a land not inhabited." "Coveto may manifest itself on the part of a Government in the annexation of terri tory either by the arts of diplomacy or the arms of the nation." 'The shedding of innocent blood' is deemed in private life a crime which nothing can acone for but the blood of the bloodsheder, and this righteous retaliation has received the sanction of God himself. 'Whose sheddeth man's blood by man shall his blood be shed;' but let the shedding of blood however innocent, be perpetrated on a large scale at the inspiration frequently among men it is not only condoned but accounted glory. But in the righteous judgment of heaven it is wholesale murder. And when a strong power, on the slenderest pretext or provocation, makes war on one weaker than itself, and sends forth armies to the slaughter of thousands, be assured that the Judge of all the earth will not hold the aggressor guiltless. 'Oppression and Violence. is there no oppression and violence i

Is there a savage tribe that stands in the way of its ambition That tribe must be crushed, and if resistance is offered, no quarter given. In the most recent conflict between a civilized and a barbarous population, the former have exceeded the cruelty of their savage opponents. And how do these aggressive wars, these foreign conquests and complications, affect the home coun try ? Not to speak of the deleterious and demoralising influence upon the community which a public policy of this kind must necessarily produce, there is the neglect of home legislation, the prostra tion of trade and commerce, and the consequent increase of poverty and all its attendant evils over the land. revenue is utterly insufficient to carry out the policy of the Government; in the course of three years the accumulated deficits have arisen to six millions of pounds sterling-three millions of that sum having been required for what has

The Juvenile 'Pinafore.'

When the idea of a children's Pinafore was first broached in New York it met with opposition from many, and particularly from the officers of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, who at length, however, granted permission for an experimental trial. The chil dren selected were of respectable parentage, having good voices and of graceful and the firing at the second range was and neat appearance. Many were children of poor parents, who were greatly benefitted by the pay they received, and the influences thrown about them were kept as pure as possible. At the close of the New York season of seventy-five performances, Mr. Haverly, with the consent of the parents, took the troupe to the Long Island son shore, and after rest of several weeks, a trip was essayed. Yesterday as already announced. reached Kingston and met an enthusias-Opera House, which was crowded.

Last evening the second performance was given before an audience of four hundred, and a good house considering that five entertainments preceeded it this week in that building. The execution gave unbounded satisfaction. was far in advance of the adult perforpiece, and has increased its popularity. Ralph and the Admiral were exceedingly handsome little players; Hebe and Little Buttercup were charming ; Dick Dead eye was sumply immense in several points, and the acting of the whole com pany of forty-five was well nigh perfec tion. The stage work went on with clock like precision. No baulks or waits with beggarly B.A.'s to their name were encountered. The amooth acting is all the more surprising since frequent changes of caste are indulged in, the Ad miral, Josephine and Ralph being different to those of the afternoon. The chorauses were fine, and several of the so los better than the public had been accustomed to expect from juveniles. The good parts of the play were frequently applauded, as such an uncommonly

To the Editor of the British Whig. Str. - In my previous letter I pointed out that Toronto University is claimed by its officers, graduates and friends to be the "Great National University" in the Province of Ontario: It is said that its curriculum is more extensive, that its professors are more eminent, and that its est honor graduates are more scholarly than those of any Canadian university. have no wish at present to dispute any of tic reception in the afternoon at the these statements, nor to undervalue the great work which Toronto University has done for this province in years past. Or the contrary, I honor the professors of University College for the part they have taken in accomplishing that work, and I entertain the greatest respect for many of their able and distinguished students. It is because I thus regard the College and its alumni that I venture to publicly urgo their claims to the few professorial apmances we have had here of the famous printments in the gift of the Provincial

WORTH ITS WEIGHT IN GOLD When we hear anybody say that such and such a thing is worth its weight in gold we think they are indulging in hyperbole, and pass the matter with a smile. But num bers of invalids who have once partaken operators he met at Long Island railway of Scott's Emulsion of Pure Cod Liver Oil in combination with the Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda say they would not be without it for any consideration And no wonder for in all cases or General Debility or chronic Coughs, in fac', any polmonary complaint and consumption if s worth its weight in gold.
