· -- A IW. UNEFUL INVENTIONS - KILLING CATER 4 PILLARS - GOT AND RAPID BUTTER.

In two late inventions at least the slow going German has beaten the everlasting Yankee. In the Rhine District of Germany they have been greatly troubled with caterpillars, of the species known to science as the Flusia Gamma, which destroyed the crops of sugar best, peas, beans. potatoes, and in fact almost every green thing, beits quite as destructive as the grasshopper. A method has been devised by Herr Deboff, of Gutenburg, manager a sugar factory at Trotha, which appears to answer the purpose of collecting the pasects from the figlds for destruction. It consists of brushes that sweep the msects into wooden spouts, through which they are carried into a common receptacle. The capacity of the machine is wonderful. Seven rows of plants can be cleared as fast as a horse can walk, and on one estate ten machines in a day collected a ton and a half of the caterpillars. Another invention has lately been patented, which may be productive of great results in dairying. So far back as 1859. a German professor suggested the pessi bility of separating cream - from milk by centrifugal action, a suggestion which w: s afterwards carried out by an Austrian brewer in a private way. It has been taken up, however, by a hrm of engineers at Schreeningen, Germany, named Lefeldt and Leutsch, who have perfected a practical machine for the purpose. It consists of a drum standing on end which is revolved at from 800 to 1,000 revolutions for from 25 to 30 minutes, when the cream will be found to have collected in the centre. The machine is so arranged that the collected cream can be removed by pouring in skimmed milk below, and raising the cream till it flows over the sides of the vessel. All dirt that may be in the milk is effectual ly driven out by the centrifugal force. The explanation of the action is simple. Fvery one knows that any loose matter. in revolving, has a tendency to fly iff from the centre, which is illustrated in a familiar way by the mud flying from the wheels of a conveyance. The heavier the particles of matter the greater is this tendency. Now, in milk, the cream or fatty matter is the lightest, the particles of dirt the heaviest. Therefore the dirt is thrown to the outside, the heavier part of the milk comes next, while the cream being the lightest remains nearest to the coult. By this means it will be seen
