Mr. EDITOR,-In the News of Saturday are two allusions to the purchase of the BRITISH WHIG by the Grits. Such is from twenty-three competitors of various causes which indused me to dispose of my newspaper. Suffice it, that although not of a pecuniary nature, they were imperative. I sold the BRITISH WHIG on time to my grandson, Mr. Barker Pense, whe had managed it for some years, and took in payment his unendorsed paper, forti fied only by a simple bend to restore the property in case the notes were not henored, which, I am happy to say, has been the case. I made no stipulation with Mr Barker Pense as to the political course the BRITISH WHIG was to pursue, and when it drifted into the Reform ranks, however much I may have regretted it, I had no right of complaint.

EDWARD JOHN BARKER, M.D. Kingston, Jan. 14, 1878.

Those "werkingmen" of Terento who were parties to the recent presentation to the Chieftain have given the latter a can. did hint as to the metto he is so fond distorting. In the banquet hall the motto ran: "By the party, with the party, for the party." No doubt many present understood the latter clause to indicate the destination of the good things under which the tables were greaning and conducted themselves ascordingly. This may have been its primary signification. It doubtless has also a prophetic import as well, denoting how the patriotic metto will be modified in the interest of the party when power is regained. In opposition the Chieffain's motte is, "By the party, with the party, for the country. Ouce in pewer, however, the motte will speedily undergo the change which the 'workingmen' above so ingenieusly anticipated. Then, as before, everything will be for the party, while the country may be, as before, indelibly disgraced and

AN HISTORICAL COINCIDENCE.

History is repeating itself, and is taking a very early occasion of doing it too, in the present attitude of the Republican party towards the man whom a year ago they delighted to honor with the presidency. It is almost a repetition, in many important respects, of the Republican chagrin during the regime of Anchoice of the party for the highest honour in the gift of the nation, so neither was Hayes, at least not in the inaugura stages of the last Presidential battle. lican candidature, while Hayes, away down the list, owed his nomination to a combination of his own few followers with the several other groups opposed to Blaine, and the selection of Hayes as standard-bearer was entirely a portentous affair.
