PUBLIC CREDIT.

The Globe very properly takes the Conservative convention and its big morning contemporary to task for the unwarranted statement (given to the world in one of the resolutions passed by the Tory lights in solemn session assembled) that the country "was on the verge of bankruptcy." Party exigency at times calls for subterfuge, but we fail to see the merest grounds for such an attack upon our public credit. 'Tis true Canada has suffered from business depression, but she is far from bankrupt. The sweeping assertion is made with an apparent disregard of eff-ct, and it cannot be believed that by thus belittling Canada's financial position any good can be accomplished on the contrary a great deal of injury is likely to be done, and by the very men who prefess to be the true guardians of the public interest, and the genuine advocates of the public weal. Men who would be guilty of planning and penning such sentiments, and sending them abroad few men in the city know so well how to with their commendation and sudorse- bring out the favorite features of any sement, are ill deserving of the lection as he is. Mrs. innumerable: "By the party, with the Mauger, of course, read most, as she cerparty and for the country." Its purposes seem to have been forgotten when this latter declaration has been made, that "Canada is on the verge of bankruptcy," and since the slander has emanated from the leaders of the party, bent on platform building, the legend must undergo a change, and assume the fellowing form: "By the party, with the party, and against the country." That is just what Sir John and his subservient followers mean. They may preach party and personal loyalty till doomsday, and an intelligent country cannot be longer deceived by trickery such as the Conservative naboba appear to be at present practicing. An advantage may be gained by fair means occasionally, and if our Tory friends cannot find honest grounds on which to advance their cause they certainly cannot expect to succeed by any shams tending to a depreciation of Canada's credit, which is higher to-day than ever it was under the rule of Tory Government. A NICE DOCTRINE.

When Mr. Justice Patterson was appointed by the Minister of Education a Commissioner to enquire into the charges preferred against the Central Committee, the nomination seemed to give general satisfaction -at least we heard of no fault being found with the selection thus made by the Hon. Mr. Croeks. The investigation was, to all intents and purposes, both vigorous and impartial But it did not result as the Toronto Mail (the plaintiff) had expected or wished it to be. The Central Committee was not only exonerated, but Mr. Justice Patterson considered it right and expedient, and no doubt a matter of duty, to administer a rebuke to those who cast an imputation upon the honour and in- Friday evening.
