'After all the misadventures Cleopatra's needle at sea the huge curissity has at last reached its destination Egypt.

The Laflamme election case is before the Supreme Court, and the petitioners counsel have made the best statement their case. The appeal is made from the judgment of Mr. Justice Dorion, and . based on the assumption that the learned Judge did not interpret certain evidence of alleged undue influence, as those who protested against the election had expect ed him to do. The decision of the Supreme Court is now close at hand.

One important point has been estabcannot be considered the agent of any candidate. To be an agent one must be) appointed by the candidate himself, and the latter must know what that agent is doing, since he will be held responsible for all his transactions.
