THURSDAY. ANNUAL Meeting of the Royal Scarlet Chap-

PRIDAT MEETING to term a Branch of the Evangelical Alliance at 8 p m.

The Bill embedying the temperance le gislation referred to in the Speech from the Throne will probably be introduced by Hon. Mr. Scott in the Senate, and will take the shape of an amendment to the Dunkin Act.

The debate on the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne was cen tinued last night, and has not yet been completed. The discussion took a very wide range, and exhausting the pet ideas of all shades of politics. To-day will likely wind up the debate.

In the Legislature Mr. Bethune then moved the second reading of his Municipal Comulative Voting Bill. After he had argued at some length in favour of the measure, Mr. Calvin protested that the rich had enough of influence already. Mr. Mowat argued strongly, and at great length, against the Bill from various points of view, and Mr. Cameron briefly concurred in the position taken by the Premier. After seme remarks in the same direction from Messrs. Broder, Macdeugall, Meredith, and others the Globe says the Bill was withdrawn.

Mackenzie and Cartwright with their fiscal policy are in some way accountable for the above destitution. We hope soon to hear that. Sir John has brought this and kindred matters under the notice of Parliament and fastened the responsibili ty for the wide spreading depression of which we regret to say the above is but a mere incident upon the guilty shoulders of Hon. Mr. Cartwright and the rest of the Cauadian revenue protectionists.

Speaking of "reactions" it has been ma. nifest that for some little time past one of these peculiar institutions has 'set in' against the protectionist mania even in the ranks of the Tory party itself. This 'national policy' weapon is likely to prove to us that the Tory party itself is growing | ter was firs: moeted last session, and edged tools.

In this way, Mr. White was beaten by Mr. D. B. Chisholm, of Hamilton, in the 1874 election, and when the election was declared invalid by the Courts, Mr. McCraney, of Oakville, was nominated in the Reform interest, and triumphantly elected. Since then, the Conservative minority in "Glorious Old Halton" have been trying to sour Mr. White into the impression that he had been shabbily treated by his party, and lately it has been their boast that Mr. White would contest the County next time in the Tory interest against the regular Reform nominee. Just how much truth there was in these fond anticipations, has been shown by the attendance of Mr. White at the Reform Convention, and his taking an active and enthu. in the proceedings, even to filling the chair, and conveying the thanks of the convention to its President, Mr. James Young. Thus vanishes another flattering but delusive Tory fic-

A SPLENDID RECEPTION.

Stanley is, without doubt, the popular as well as the scientific hero of the hour. That peace hath her victories as well as war is proven by the fact that no general in the Eastern conflict has earned for himself anything like so brilliant and imperishable a renown as has the young recoverer of Livingstone and explorer of Africa. A reception has been accorded the distinguished discoverer by the Reyal Geographical Society in Lendon, far outstripping in enthusiasm any of the public honours which have made his progress, since leaving the scenes of toil and travel, one centinued ovation. Over three thousand of the nobility-titled and learnedof the Old Land vied with each other to do him honour. To be so received by such a company, including the Prince of Wales, Ex-Prince Imperial of France, the son of the Khedive of Egypt, Midhat Pasha and other royal and distinguished personages, is a more than national com- served them by coating them thoroughly pliment that falls to the lot of not one in | with gum-arabic. ten thousand. #### PUBLIC BEGENCIFS.

Teronto is to be congratulated on its improved moral tone. There are many infallible, signs of it. Although the Dunkin Act was defeated, yet it has been ordered since then that the Onterio Parliament, in that city, at every sitting shall be spened with prayer; and then that highly moral, we might almost say Reception of the Board in the City and religious, though strictly non-sectarian, has followed suit by inaugurating its proceedings with devotional exercises. Some time since it was ordered that the Bar of the House, that is to say, the refreshment retreat, should be abolished, although it is said that liquor is as freely as ever sold to members within the buildings-a contempt of Parliament which should at once be punished with its utmost rigour. In addition to all these salutary symptoms, a crusade has been started against the pollution of the street atmosphere by gressly obscene language, so often and shamelessly indulged in on the public thoroughfares. There are Arabs -- some of them a pretty large size, too, on the streets of Kingston-by no means free from this filthy practice. In so far, then, as they apply to this city, we cerdially endures the appended remarks of the Montreal Herald; "We need not call attention to the extent of similar annoyance in Montreal, nor to the number of loafers that make some of our streets impassable at night to decent women. The Ottawa Citizen makes a lame and vain attempt to trace to the premptings of remerse the measure foreshadowed in the speech from the throne in reference to the Independence of Parliament Act. He has since steadily defended the policy of the Government and opp sed protection such as that of the United States. He claimed last night that the golden era of manufacturers in period be fore 1861. There was some sinusement over his declaration that one of the things which had endeared the Counters of Dufferin to the people of Canada was the beauty of her person. Sir John was most agreeable and plassant n delivering his speech, but soon blundered in his statements about the Indians, so that he had to withdraw part of what he said after the comments of the Premier. It was most surprising that even he, reckless as he is should assert that corruption and intimidation in whole constituencies had never been so rife as under the present regime. The important instances which he gave-the O'Donoghue amnesty and the Canadian shipping question during the Quebec election -are the best proofs of the absurdity of his assertions. The Premiur answered completely in one case, and appealed very confidently to the papers when brought down in the other.

The Ministerialists laughed approvingly over the Premier's hint that struggling politicians concerned Sir John much

The most important statement in the whole debate was that in respect to the Pacific Railway survey, that the results were in the hands of the engineers, but that before the close of the session the Premier expected that the decision of the Government as the route in British Columbia and the information on which it was based would be laid before the

Mr Masson was absolved from this, but the charge was proved, that although there had been a good deal of division before there was none during that part of the House was well filled with Ottawa ward politicians, who were deeply interested; and Ottawa Liberals congratulated themselves on the effect which it would have. Messrs. Desjarding and Langevin tried to parry the blows which Mr. Laurier dealt, but Mr. Taschereau and Mr. Laflamme met them at every turn with documentary evidence which could not be gainsaid. Mr. Masson's boastings about the trisaid to have cost them £30,000, and the umphant Quebec Couservatives was met by a calm challenge to the next general strikers are no nearer the attainment of their object than when they left work.

Mr. Laurier's spirit was certainly one more conducive to victory and better fitting the beginning of a contest.

The Quebecers continued the debate until nearly recess next day, when Mr. Huntington's speech required a reply from one of the heaviest Opposition guns, so Dr. Tupper took the floor after him and soon carried the war into Neva Scotia, where it remained until nearly mid-

Mr. Jette succeeded, and spoke very clearly, although he is not very ready in English. He has taken very little part in the debates of the House, and so he has not been credited with that political ability which he really has. One good result of this debate among the French members is, that there will probably be less disposition to introduce religion into politics in Quebec in future.
