A CAPTAIN THAT HAS A GOOD GRIP.

Yesterday aftergoon Captain Milligan, f Garden Island, rowed out in a punt with one of the Island seamen to visit his vessel, the 'Bismarck,' lying in the stream a few hundred yards from the shore. As they were returning the boat became water-logged, and they had to take to the water, the contact with which must have been as cooling as a seat on an iceberg. They were in a desperate strait for three quarters of an hour, as ink, just as F. X. Consineau has done, they were benumbed with cold, and their cries (and such cries as only drowning men can give) were unheard on shore. SPIRITUALISM - We join in the hope The captain wanted to set out for the beach, feeling that he was able to swim that far, but his companion was afraid to stir, and the Captain chivalrously stuck to him. And it was well that he did, for at the end of half an hour the sailor gave up his hold on the punt, utterly exhaust-Captain's muscular arm saved him from sinking and held him up for fifteen minutes, till a boat came out from the Island and took in the two men, both utterly played out-more dead than alive. A few minutes more in the water alone would have brought the adventure to a tragic end. The "Bismarck" has a Captain with a good nerve and iron muscles.

POLITICAL. Straws show which way the wind blows. Such is recognized as an old saw, and we never knew it to afford a better illustration of its truthfulness than in the developments which were made at the recent meeting of the Liberal-Conservative wirepullers and political discontents at Napa nee. On that occasion, Hon. Lewis Wallbridge was nominated, but it was announced that the hon. gentleman could not accept the doubtful honour, since he was committed to stand for West Hastings and would not be relieved. Such news was surely not intended for publicity. West Hastings has now been represented some years by Mr. James Brown, M.P., once a Tory, and a good one at that, but since the Pacific Scandal he has been ashamed of the Chieftain, and has not been able to vote his ticket.
