This, however, rarely happens, because the leaf is watched by skilled assistants from beginning to end of the process. A few weeks after the leaf has been bulked the heaps already described are said to be "cured," and are ready for packing and shipment We have before now described the care with which the tobacco is treated in the Life Thoughts of the Proto-Martyr Hamilton, and the description need not

A significant fact connected with this celebrated brand can be found in the last volume of the Tables of Trade and Navigation. It will be found there that the tobacco leaf imported into the province of Quebec passes through the customs at an average price of seven cents per pound, while the average price of the import into Ontario - Messrs. Tucket & Billings receiving the greater part of it-passes through at an average cost of fifteen cents per pound. The official figures reveal the whole story of the cheaper brands of tobacco which aim to supplant the Myrtle Navy.
