(Applause.) Te then related the circumstances of his imprisonment. At a town named Newtownards, fourteen miles from Belfast, he was arrested for awearing in men, which he received his punishment. At that time, he said, the opposition to the English rule in Ireland was as much protested against by Orangemen as Catho lics. He wished he could see similar united action in Canada. The people here, although belonging to Britain, were just as free as the people of the United States. There was, however, one curse among them, and that was their religious dissension. The speaker hero recited a number of verses composed by himself while in gaol subsequent to the affair at Newtownards. The lines were received Clover Seed, Timothy Seed and with loud cheering. He had no prejudice against any man of any race, creed, or tiood bye my harrow, scythe and plough colour. He was only serry to see what he saw here to night, and the dissensions which existed among men who should be brothers. He would not injure or hurt any man. (Another window was broken.) But while he would not injure an Englishman individually, he would do all he could to free Ireland of English rule. (Applause.) He believed Ireland was quite capable of governing herself, and while he was in America he would no all he could to help the cause of her liberty. He only asked them to bear things quiet ly in the meantime. During the lecture the windows were struck in all about a dozen times, but without causing anything more than a momentary disturb-
