CATARR

IS IT CURABLE?

THOSE who have suffered from the various and a complicated forms of disease assumed by Catarrh, and have tried many physicians and remedies without relief or cure, await the answer to this question with considerable anxiety. And well they may; for no disease that can be mentioned is so universally prevalent and so destructive to health as Catarrh. Broachitis, Asthma, Coughs, and serious and frequently fatal affections of the lungs follow, in many instances, a case of simple but neglected Catarrh. Other sympathetic affections such as deafness, impaired eyesight, and loss of sense of amell, may be referred to as minor but nevertheless serious results of neglected Catarrh, bad enough in themselves, but as nothing compared with the dangerous affections of the throat and lungs likely to follow.

IT CAN BE CURED.

There is a game called "Scandal."

which creates a great deal of amusement when it is played properly. The persons who are engaged in the game stand or sit in a circle. The more the better; thirty or forty will make more fun than ten or twelve. When all are ready, the person appointed takes his right hand neighbor aside and whispers in his ear a short story : it may be about some one present. or about a public personage; but whatever it is, he must write it down and keep it down and keep it as proof of what his statement was. The neighbor, in his turn, repeats the story as exactly as possible to the person on his right hand, and he having listened, passes it on. At last the tale returns to its original narrator, who writes it down as he receives it. It is said, and I believe truly, that never once has it been known to come back as it started. The most astonishing alterations occur. Innocent jokes have changed to frightful accusations, and only the reading of the first story can convince any one that he did not repeat exactly what he heard. There is no better type than this amusing play of the time-worn game of scandal that the world is playing, and has been playing ever since it began.

That a number of innocent people, with no intention of distorting facts, cannot hand the simplest story from one to another in the room for a few noments without ridiculous alterations, prove the impossibility of getting at the truth of any story which has passed through many
