By a majority of only a few votes has the Wood Tariff Reform Bill been defeated in the United States House of Representatives. The main features of the measure looked in the direction of a modiffication of the ridiculously steep protection which interested "rings" have, even since the civil war, succeeded in imposing in the adjoining country. That a measure conflicting so materially with the interests of the American taxationists should approach so near to success is of itself a hopeful augury. OUR HIGH JOIAT BLUNDERER.

Whom have we to thank for the American haggling over the Halifax award but that heaven born statesman, Sir John Macdonald ! The latest stage reached in this matter afresh declares that we have been placed by our own representative's culpable neglect or unpardonable stupid ity at the mercy of our neighbours. In President Hayes' recent message to the Senate, recommending the appropriation of the amount of the award, he enclosed a document from his own Secretary Evarts in which the competency of the majority award is questioned, and suggesting a re_ presentation of the views of Congress to the British Government on this and every other aspect of the Fishery question. A left-handed, half-hearted mode this of recommending payment of the Halifax award in our favour, recommending the Senate to pay the money, and at the same moment furnishing reasons why they should not do it. But the orportunity for such double dealing was turnished by Sir John Macdonald, when, in his capacity as Canadian High Joint Commissioner at Washington, he sanctioned the invidious arrangement that a majority of the Alabama Commission was competent to reach a decision, but that in the Fishery matter a unanimous award was absolutely necessary. Any Canadian school-boy would have seen would render the British Commission obtain the advantage from the low marpowerless in the Alabams matter, and kets, in some lines at least, they should place the Commission completely at the Chrese of May made and good quality is mercy of the American delegate in the 80., while some retailers are charging Halifax award. We may yet get the about double that figure for it. PUBLIC WORKS.

The Liberal party has earned precious little credit from the Opposition for the impartial conduct of public works which has marked the present administration. In spite of the fect that two-thirds of all the contracts given have been awarded to political opponents-s state of things undreamed of in Tory times-the Opposition, in press and parliament, persist in nsinuating that the Government in these matters, is partial to its friends. No wonder that such an indefensible warping of the facts should at length excite the repudiation of respectable Conservatives, who refuse any longer to give even a silent consent to such outrageous mendacity. In contradistinction to the uniform habit of the Tories when in power, the This is encouraging, coming as it does Reform Government has failed to consid-"And or the question of party antecedents bewithered all, and nearly dead.
