

The Japanese Idea of Hell.

Tiffey's is a sort of hellish Condemnation, which portrays scenes of torment regions, according to the Japanese idea. The scroll is two yards long, and half a yard wide. The first scene represents Satan on earth seeking new victims. The arch fiend appears as a sulphuric, yellowish green demon, with protruding horns, cloven feet and a diabolical expression, luring his victims into his net, and plunging them into fiery depths. They appear to fall into a nest of burning serpents, where they are tantalized by a glimpse of their friends enjoying themselves in a lake of molten water. In the next scene, Satan takes the form of an immense dragon, with his human victims clutching at terror at his feet. They are mercilessly dragged into torment, and the judge is represented as condemning them to be tied to rocks and to have red-hot lead poured down their throats. They are then chased by lances through a field of open knolls and other sharp instruments. The victims are next portrayed as being tortured by having their limbs cut off, and by being thrown into a scalding cauldron of fire. Satan next appears to be looking out for new victims on a field of battle. Some of these victims are made to hug red hot stove pipes, while Satan himself, with a smile, is taunting them. Others are swimming in seas of blood, surrounded by laughing demons. Other still are seated in a cauldron of red hot sulphur, having the tempests pulled out. Some are represented as carrying heavy burdens of iron and throwing them into the fire to burn new victims. His Satanic Majesty is next represented as presiding over his subjects with rice, presumably to give them strength with which to endure greater tortures.
