Horrible Tales.

Drought in certain provinces of Brazil has caused a severe famine. In the City of Assaia 600,000 people. So great is the famine that some of the most atrocious cannibals are seen, not only the dead being devoured by the survivors, but also the sick and infirm, by the strong children and by their parents, parents by their children.

A shocking story of the recent Indian famine is reported from Ballary. A child aged seven years was convicted of murder. The judge stated that the father was a Hindu and miserly in the habit of the child's little sister. The child, however, was at the point of death from lack of nourishment and the mother was prostrated by fever and unable to feed it. At last, distracted by its crying, the unfortunate woman, unable to put the child into the arms of the accused, who had died, she took it into a well and threw it into a well. The judge recommended a free pardon.
