pulpit" in a column article in last night a issue. The strictures upon clerical shortcomings may prove to be a healthful tonic to such as need it, and we regret to say there are some who do; but much is very properly said in extenuation of defects which are too often made the tar get of undue criticism by the occupants of the pew. We endorse all that is said of the average excellence of the Canadian pulpit, and of those able and brilliant preachers who are enumerated as having shed a lustre on their profession, and conferred an immense moral and intel lectual benefit upon the Canadian community. In the summing up it is stated "There are three requisites for the pulpit, which are necessary to make a sucture and talent." We may be permitted to add that some small degree of piets also is generally supposed to be an essential part of a preacher's moral outfit, and one, too, on which, to a very great extent, his success depends. The pulpit occasionally preaches to the Press, and it is only fair that the latter should now and again return the compliment in a

It will be remembered that at the time when our Tory friends were trying hard to expand the purchase of the Neebing Hotel into the proportions of a "job," wood cut, which was a wretched caricature, of the back of the building embellished nearly every Tory organ in the country for the purpose of showing the people of Canada how little the Government had obtained for the purchase price. little nervousness is now manifested lest an accurate representation of that now famous building should appear in Reform journals, and the public is being prepar ed against the effect by the intimation that the "Government will be exhibiting a photograph of the new Neebing," which it is declared is being "fitted up regard less of expense." There is no occasion for any such illustrated disproof of the Neebing slander. It was long ago exploded by Parliamentary investigation whereat the exemies of the Government much-boasted case of extravagance and years, but she spurned his offer of marpolitical favouritism.

That is to say that, neither theory nor experience can the "omnibus" resolution be understood or reduced to the hard pan of proof. This was precisely the intention of the artful author interests the most conflicting, and enable himself to creep out of the loop holes the generalities for that very purpose made and provided. Even the most ardest advocates of the "National Policy as formulated by the great sportle of unconsciously, but none the less explicitly, admit as above that it can be neither "proved nor disproved" in other words that it may mean anything or nothing at the reader's own sweet will or whim.

The tilt between Earls Derby and Salis bury goes to prove that the most exalted stations are not free from those rivalries and jealousies which human nature is heir to in humoler walks of life. Mag nanimity is clearly not the monopoly of the upper ten. Earl Derby evidently envies his successor his success; while Salisbury is determined to permit no reflection on the Beaconsfield policy to account for the Derby retirement from the Cabinet. It is interesting to note how all are compelled to toe the line of propriety in the British parliament. There a state ment may be "incorrect" but nothing is 'untrue," and the personal honour and verbal veracity of every man is unimpeach able, as his deportment is supposed to be irreproachable. In all these respects Canadian M.P.'s cannot do better than to

AN EXPLANATION. -Our attention has been directed to a correspondence in our last issue which contained some severe strictures on the Post Office Inspector for the Kingston District. The complaint was that Mr. Barker, in the notices of a new mail route between Napanee and Adolphustown, styled some place 'Devil's Etbow, and our correspondent takes umbrage at the 'ungentlemanly' expression. We are informed that it it the custom for these instructions to be committed officially to the Post Office Inspector, and it is his duty in making out a route to simply follow the instructions received. If there has been any ungentlemanly expression, it does not come therefore from Mr. Barker, but from those who furnished the Detartment the instructions, which were in turn officially communicated to him. We regret that anything derogatory to so efficient an officer as Inspector Barker has proved be should have unwittingly appeared in the Express but our faith in the usual cure and discretion of our correspondent is the excuse. -
