The Tory party of Canada, or at least the leaders of that party, seem bent upon the aggravation of the ills of depression. The nostrum they pretend to prescribe will never cure the complaint, but only retard or prevent recovery. The adage that "opposition (i.e. competition) is the who like the Bourbons 'forget nothing life of trade" means of course that it is and learn nothing,' refused to be warned also good for that vast community of cor. even by their own experience, and by sumers, to supply whose wants that trade lavish expenditure on every hand lived is carried on. The very fact, however, that there is already too much competi. tion at home is itself a warning against collapse which followed, found the country the danger of over production which a high tariff is intended still further to to stimulate. Over importation in the so called prosperous years is what our merchants are now suffering from ; and OVER PRODUCTION IN MANUPACTURES WOULD BE THE KINDRED EVIL OF IT. It has wrought its dire work in the United States under the hot-bed stimulus of a protective tariff, and made the depression in that country far more galling and severe than with us. Shall we follow on with the bitter experience of our neighbours right before us, and perpetrate th very folly which we know can only ensue in similar disaster ? If the electors of Canada could be guilty of such an infatuation they would richly deserve the retribution which would be sure to follow as an unerring retribution. The Canadian people, however, are not such fools as the Tory monopolists have taken them for. They will refuse to pay the heavy price of commercial and industrial ruin, together with enormously increased taxation for the questionable boon of Tory govern- ing for the two provinces of old Canada ment. The la ter luxury would be dear prior to confederation a series of deficits at less than half the price demanded.
