What Mr. Cartwright Saved.

"Now, as regards one charge, more especially affecting my own department, which those gentlemen have preferred over and above those which I have already dealt with, referring to the rates at which I recently borrowed money in the English market, and to the mode which I adopted for borrowing it, I may simply say as regards that recent loan it was made on better terms than have ever before been obtained by any Canadian Finance Minister, be he who he may. (Loud Cheers.) I say further that the general net results of these operations, so badly managed, incompetently discharged by me, has been that not only has the average rate of interest on the whole public debt of Canada been considerably lowered, but as regards that part of our debt payable in England, and with which had I especially to deal, whereas when we entered office for every $100 you borrowed you paid in round numbers $5 37, you are now paying for that $100 the sum of $4 64. (Cheers.) In other words we have reduced the average rate upon our indebtedness very nearly 12 per cent., and I hope that, if we are not embarrassed by complications arising from causes over which we can exercise no control, before two or three years are gone I shall be able to report to you officially still further reductions." (Loud Cheers.) (Mr. Cartwright at Colborne.)

The total saving thus affected on our gross Public Debt amounts to $651,700 annually.
