WEDNESDAY EV'NG, SEPT 25, 1878

HOW HAPPY I'LL BE.

A little one played among the flowers, In the blush and bloom of summer hours; She twined the buds in a garland fair.

And bound them up in her shining hair.

"Ah me," said she, "how happy I'll be When ten years more have gone over me And I am a maden with youths bright glow Plushing my cheek and lighting my brow.

A maiden mused in a pleasant room, Where the air was filled with a soft perfume; Vason were near, of antique mould Nases were near, of antique mould,
Beautiful pictures rare and old.
And she, of all the loveliness there,
Was by far the loveliest and most fair.
"Ah me! 'sighed she 'how happy I'll be
When my heart's true love comes home to
Light of my life, my spirit's pride
I count the days till thou reach my side.'

Where she soothed her babe to his smiling "Sleep well," she murmured, soft and low,
And she pressed her kisses on his brow,
'Oh, child, sweet child! how happy I'll be
If the good God lets then stay with me
Till later on, in life's evening hour, Thy strength shall be my strength and towe An aged one sat by the glowing heart,

Almost ready to leave the earth; Feeble and frail the race she had run Had borne her along to the setting sun. "Ah me!" sighed she in an undertone,
"How happy I'll be when life is done!"
When the world fades out with its weary strife And I soar away to a better life." Tis thus we journey from youth to age, Longing to turn to another page, Striving to hasten the years away, Lighting our hearts with the future ray; Hoping in earth till in visions fade, Wishing and waiting, through sun and shade,

Turning, when earth's last tie is riven.
To the beautiful rest that remains in heaven. SUICIDE BY STARVATION.

MAN LIES IN A FIELD EIGHT DAYS W

(London Free Press, Sept. 21.) It is seldom that a more painful atempt to commit suicide is heard of than that which was developed in Kensington yesterday morning. Some time in the forenoon the family of Mr. E. W. Johnaton were attracted to a grove on the pro-perty of Hutchinson, near at hand, by the peculiar conduct of a number of dogs. They were barking and running around some object hidden from view by a large log lying near the edge of the wood. Upon proceeding to the spot a wretched spectacle met the gaze. Upon his side lay an old man clothed in wet and tattered garments, almost dead. He appeared not to notice those around him, nor the noise made by the dogs, but his haggard and sallow face gave evidence of some lingering animation. He was carefully removed to the residence of Mr. John ston, where dry and comfortable garments were substituted for his miserable apparel. During these operations he remained perfectly speechless and motionless. But after stimulants had been administered he revived sufficiently to tell his story, which proved a most pitiable one. He said his name was Thomas Loichine, and that his age was fifty-four. He had been out of work for a long tion by his ill success, he resolved to die by starvation, proceeded to the spot where he was found, and lay down with that resolution. He had been there for the solution and the solution and the solution are solved to the spot of the Republic, appealing to the Gallic race, is likely to call out great enthusiasm, and to carry the country for her. It is aseight days, in all the pelting storms that serted that the shrewdest politicians of have taken place in that time, yet the old Thiers party favor the plan, and his purpose was not shaken nor his expect the newqess and novelty of the thoroughly confirmed his statement-his popular.

THE CANADA ELECTION

until monopolists, by diverting the public gaze to manufactured Southern outrages, and other objects, foreign to our own business affairs, got controls of legislation, made laws for the posket interests of a few operatives at the expense of the consumer, stimulated to over-production for a curtailed market, bankrupted thousands of producers, and threw the multi-tude of laboring men and women out of employment. Now as the public mind is again being called to the derangement and distraction our miserable tariff ave and distraction our miserable tariff system has brought upon the country, and a return to Democratic usages is sure to follow as our only means of relief, our Canadian neighbors have wrought themselves into a feam of excitament, and by way of retaligtion as they express it, for our prohibitory tariff, they propose to enact the very same tariff system that has brought ruin to us.

The party of fanatica being in the as condency the protective tariff system is by the late election adopted. Whether the government party and staid old England herself are to be taught a salutory lesson by the result of their late election, or the United States are to suffer, or whether the tariff men will reap the fruit of their folly, will require but a short period to determine. That the latter (not the government of England) our government, will be the ones to suffer there is not the least doubt to the well informed. The little province of Canada, hemmed in by a tariff wall that will prevent imports, while its people have full away to produce all the articles themselves, and at the same time raising the price so that foreign markets will not touch them, will soon prove a very sorry retaliation. Everything protected will mechinery will stop, men will be out of employment and have nothing to do but get together in conventions and ourse the government for the evils they have

The people will yet be compelled to study the tariff question for their own protection. Their education in this direction has been sadly neglected, but they will learn it again in a few years, for it is prefectly simple. The people of Canada will learn it when the balance of trade between them and the United States from being $5,000,000 yearly in favour, as has been the case, will pretty much cease in consequence of the high prices they expect to receive from prosective tariff would be for their interests.
