

SOMETHING NEW FOR FAIR WEEK AT THE Liverpool House, - Princess St. New Arrival of Dress Goods 1/2 all Colors. do do Wool Fringes, 25w Colors, do Valveters in Latest Colors.

A BY-LAW Respecting Public Works, Contracts, Purchases, Labor and Supplies. (PASSED AUGUST 1st, 1878.)

STOVES, &c. McKELVEY & BIRCH HAVE NOW ON HAND, Large and Well Selected Stock of Cooking, Parlour and Hall STOVES, FOR WOOD AND COAL, Which they offer at LOW PRICES.

Canadian Stove Depot, No. 31 Brock Street, Oct. 8th, 1878.

Choose the Best Stove! AND SAVE COMFORT THIS WINTER. THE 'SPLENDID' HANDSOME, ECONOMICAL, AND RELIABLE.

GEO. CLIFF'S, PRINCESS STREET, Before you make a selection anywhere. The 'Splendid' is, beyond all question, the finest Hall and Parlour Stove ever invented.

STOVES, STOVES. Call and see the Crown Jewel Reversible Fine HALL AND PARLOUR HEATING STOVE, the most successful Stove sold. Every Stove guaranteed.

W.M. DUNN, PRINCESS STREET, Oct. 3rd.

STOVES, STOVES AT A GREAT SACRIFICE. CLEARING OUT SALE - BELOW COST.

McNEIL'S, BROOK STREET, Oct. 7th, 1878.

STOVES, STOVES AT A GREAT SACRIFICE. CLEARING OUT SALE - BELOW COST.

McNEIL'S, BROOK STREET, Oct. 7th, 1878.

STOVES, STOVES AT A GREAT SACRIFICE. CLEARING OUT SALE - BELOW COST.

McNEIL'S, BROOK STREET, Oct. 7th, 1878.

STOVES, STOVES AT A GREAT SACRIFICE. CLEARING OUT SALE - BELOW COST.

McNEIL'S, BROOK STREET, Oct. 7th, 1878.

STOVES, STOVES AT A GREAT SACRIFICE. CLEARING OUT SALE - BELOW COST.

McNEIL'S, BROOK STREET, Oct. 7th, 1878.

STOVES, STOVES AT A GREAT SACRIFICE. CLEARING OUT SALE - BELOW COST.

McNEIL'S, BROOK STREET, Oct. 7th, 1878.

STOVES, STOVES AT A GREAT SACRIFICE. CLEARING OUT SALE - BELOW COST.

McNEIL'S, BROOK STREET, Oct. 7th, 1878.

STOVES, STOVES AT A GREAT SACRIFICE. CLEARING OUT SALE - BELOW COST.

McNEIL'S, BROOK STREET, Oct. 7th, 1878.

STOVES, STOVES AT A GREAT SACRIFICE. CLEARING OUT SALE - BELOW COST.

White Goods and Linen DEPARTMENTS. We invite your attention to the Bargains we are offering in the above Departments: Unbleached Table Damasks at 25c, 30c, 40c and 50c per yard.

R. & J. GARDINER, 102 Princess Street, Oct. 8th.

VICTORIA MUSIC HALL, TWO NIGHTS ONLY, Wednesday and Thursday, OCT. 9th and 10th.

BERTHA AND IDA FOY, In conjunction with their complete organization of

MIRTH MAKERS! Including Harry Allen, Thomas Whiflen, Ethel Lynton, Jacques Monti, and a combination of Favorites in

TWO NEW PLAYS written expressly for this organization. Wednesday Evening, Oct. 9th, The immensely comical musical Melange, entitled

'MISCHIEF.' Preceded by the entertaining Burlesque, entitled

LE-CHALET Or, Home from the War. THURSDAY EVENING, OCTOBER 10, THE COMIC OPERETTA!

'Prima Donna of a Night,' Preceded by A FINE SPLITTING FARCE Prices 25c, 50c and 75c. Seats can now be secured at McAnley's Bookstore, Oct. 7th.

KINGSTON, Monday Evening, October 14th

Mendelssohn Quintette Club, OF BOSTON. (Organized 29 years, composed of the following artists:

BERNARD LITTMANN, Violin, (late leader of the Boston Philharmonic Club.) GUSTA DANNEBERGER, Violin, THOMAS RYAN, Clarinet and Viola, EDWARD HEINDL, Flute and Viola, RUDOLPH HENNING, Violoncello.

PROGRAMME. 1 Overture to Oberon, composed by Weber. Arranged by R. Henning. 2 Spanish Serenade, composed by Dargomizsky. 3 Fantasia for Flute on themes from Les Huguenots, composed by Bruch. 4 Melody, composed by Mendelssohn. 5 Characteristic Piece for Violoncello, composed by Mendelssohn.

PART SECOND. 6 Ballad and Polonaise for Violin, composed by Bernard Littmann. 7 Sonnet for Saxophone, composed by Fuchs. 8 German Melange, Solo Clarinet, composed by Thomas Ryan. 9 German Song with Flute Obligato from ABU Mrs. H. F. Knowles. 10 Vale Caprice, composed for the Piano (Soloist) by R. Henning.

TICKETS-75 and 50 cents. For sale at McAnley's Bookstore. Concert at 8 o'clock, THURSDAY, the 10th day of October. Undergoing repairs the Concert will take place in the Ontario Hall. Oct. 7th.

DOMINION MART. Parties having Second-hand Furniture or other Goods will please have them in by Friday evening. J. E. HUTCHISON, Auctioneer, Oct. 8th.

SHOP TO LET. I have building on Prince Street, formerly occupied by Messrs. Macdonald & Co. as a Law Office. Plans of alterations which will be made to adapt a desirable room may be examined on application at the office of BAWDEN & MACLACHLAN, Golden Lion Block, Queen St. W. Oct. 2nd.

Notice. MONEY TO LOAN in large or small sums on easy terms. THOMAS BRIGGS, Manager Prudential Loan and Investment Society, 8th floor, July 18, 1878.

TO-DAY'S TELEGRAMS.

The "Ocean Telegraph" and jolly tars of the British fleet were enthusiastically greeted at Quebec last evening in their concert under the auspices of local Good Templars. -Bad weather at Quebec yesterday when we had six hours. -Mr. Valois, M.P., had a triumphal passage through Port-au-Prince yesterday. Hundreds accompanied him enthusiastically despite the rain. -Dea New Haven, Conn. Rev. Mr. Hayden has been re-arrested charged with the murder of Mary Stannard. A tonic was found in her stomach, and a witness testified Hayden recently purchased arsenic. The new evidence is strong. -Gen. Grant leaves Paris on Saturday for Spain, Portugal and Algiers. He will winter in Paris. -Fred Plaisard and Evan Morris will row a two mile race over the Hulton course near Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, to-day.

THE U. S. ELECTIONS.

Ohio, Indiana and Virginia Speak. (By Telegraph To-day.) New York, Oct. 9.—The Times says that in Ohio the returns received show large Republican gains. The State ticket is elected by from 8,000 to 10,000 majority. The Republicans have elected eleven, probably twelve, out of twenty Congressmen. Indiana has gone Democratic on the State ticket by about the same majority as in 1876. The Indiana Congressional delegation will probably stand six Republicans, five Democrats, and two districts in doubt. From Iowa the largest vote polled is reported, and the Republican majority is large. Two Democratic Congressmen have been elected in Wisconsin. (By Telegraph To-day.)

THE LAST RACE.

Regan's Last Pull—Day Wins. (By Telegraph To-day.) Boston, Oct. 8.—The single pull race on Silver Lake, to-day, between Patrick Regan, Boston, and M. F. Davis, Portland, Me., four miles, $2,000, was won by Davis; time 28 mins., 61 secs. Base Ball Victory. Last week closed the struggle for the International championship pennant. The standing of the contending clubs.

CITY OF KINGSTON.

TENDERS FOR Coal Oil Lamps and Firewood. SEALED TENDERS will be received at the City Clerk's office, Until Friday, the 18th day of October Instant, At Noon, from persons willing to undertake the CONTRACT OF PURCHASING THE SEVERAL CITY STREET COAL OIL LAMPS, according to specification to be seen at said office.

AT HENDERSON'S

English Magazines ARRIVED. Bow Bells for November. Every Month do London Journal for October. Sunday at Home do Good Words do &c. &c. AT HENDERSON'S DESIRABLE PROPERTY FOR SALE.

A Vacant Lot, Three Cottages and a Comfortable Two Story House. Terms easy. Apply to J. F. McDERMOTT, Oct. 9th. INSOLVENT ACT OF 1875, AND AMENDING ACTS. In the Matter of JNO. BROCKENSHIRE. John Brown, John McNeil and John Crawford, doing business in the name of "J. Brockenshire," INSOLVENTS.

AT HENDERSON'S

Snow Apples! VERY FINE—JUST TO HAND FROM PRINCE EDWARD. Also WINTER APPLES To arrive next week—ALL CHOICE FRUIT. REES BROS Manufacturing Confectioners. Oct. 9th. You will get Shiraz, Collared and Cuffs at factory prices at Ashley's shirt Store.

OTTAWA.

Government Appointments Made—The Resignation. (By Telegraph To-day.) Ottawa, Oct. 8.—The following appointments were made yesterday by the Privy Council: Judge Tachereau, of Kamouraska District, has been elevated to the Superior Court Bench, vice Justice Tachereau, resigned. Henri Taschereau, ex-M.P., will become Judge of Kamouraska District. Mr. W. Buckingham, the Premier's Secretary, has been appointed Deputy Minister of the Interior; Mr. Laframboise, ex-M.P., has been appointed Judge of the District of Gaspe; Mr. Weatherbe, of Halifax, has been appointed to the vacant Judgeship of Nova Scotia; Mr. H. J. Hubertus has been appointed Gas Inspector at Ottawa. A despatch from the Governor-General for Montreal after attending the above meeting of the Privy Council, where he signed the commissions of the Judges appointed, and sanctioned other minor appointments. The despatch of the following this morning: It was the intention of the Government to resign yesterday afternoon, but action was postponed until to-day. Two Council meetings were held, the first being held in session up to a late hour yesterday evening. The Premier will leave for Montreal at nine o'clock this morning, and tender his resignation to His Excellency the Governor-General. A serious disagreement has arisen between Mr. Laframboise and Mr. Mackenzie, the former refusing to meet the latter before he left for Montreal. Sir A. J. Smith will leave to-morrow for New Brunswick.

TO-DAY'S GLEANINGS.

The liabilities of Savings, Lyman & Co., are from $300,000 to $500,000. -The autumn bonnet will not be visible to the naked eye. -Madame Nison's recent loss of property amounted to $200,000. -John Thomas, colored, was lynched at Franklin, Tenn., for outraging a five year old girl. He confessed. -A despatch from the Governor-General for Montreal after attending the above meeting of the Privy Council, where he signed the commissions of the Judges appointed, and sanctioned other minor appointments. The despatch of the following this morning: It was the intention of the Government to resign yesterday afternoon, but action was postponed until to-day. Two Council meetings were held, the first being held in session up to a late hour yesterday evening. The Premier will leave for Montreal at nine o'clock this morning, and tender his resignation to His Excellency the Governor-General. A serious disagreement has arisen between Mr. Laframboise and Mr. Mackenzie, the former refusing to meet the latter before he left for Montreal. Sir A. J. Smith will leave to-morrow for New Brunswick.

CURRENCY.

The eruption of Mount Vesuvius has moderated. -Potatoes in some parts of the west failed to be much injured by rot. -Yacht "hells" are arriving near Batleford, in the North-west Territory. -The rumor regarding Chief Justice Richards' superannuation is discredited in Ottawa. -Le Zephyr, of Paris, makes an appeal to the French people on behalf of the yellow fever sufferers. -Miss Kye has arrived at Quebec on the steamer "Polynesian," with forty orphan children. -The workmen of Ottawa are going to give Sir John Macdonald a reception when next he visits the Capital. -Italy asks for a share in the administration of Egypt, if it is to be governed by an international commission. -The amount of damage by fire in the city of Hamilton during the past three months is upwards of $80,000. -A young lady, on being asked where her native place was, replied "I have none; I am the daughter of a Methodist minister."

BANK ROBBERY.

ARREST OF A MAN WITH TWO THOUSAND DOLLARS WORTH OF STOLEN NOTES. James Smith, alias "Ainsworth," alias "Broker Dick," was arraigned in the Toronto Police Court yesterday on a charge preferred by Walter Watson, manager of the Consolidated Bank of Canada. About two weeks ago Detectives McNaught and Crawley, heard that some persons in the west were trying to dispose of some of the $10 notes of the Consolidated Bank of Canada, stolen from the bank on the 6th of November, 1876. Since that time the bank has issued nothing but $1, $5, $20, $50, and $100 bills. The $10 notes in being stolen at that time, all of them, being of the denomination of $10, have been useless to the persons who held them. The detectives sent a man named Johnston to Smith, who it was ascertained had the notes, and an appointment was made for the two to meet in a room in a downtown hotel. Johnston was then to pay Smith 50 cents on the dollar for the Canadian bills. The meeting took place in the room next to Smith and Johnston, and there was a hole cut in a panel of the door, so that the detectives could see and hear all that was going on in the room. The money was changed into notes with him. He had no sooner placed them on the table in front of Johnston than the detectives walked in and arrested him. -N. Y. World.

At the Fair.

To the Editor of the British Whig. DEAR SIR,—It was my intention to have exhibited at the Midland Central Fair, partly owing to the request of the Secretary, Mr. Bowden, who promised that I should have plenty of space to exhibit and asked me to bring along as many of my trawlers as I could. Great as they were I did so, and when about to hang my pictures along side of some that were already on the wall I was ordered to desist, by a person named Smith, who told me that he was working on the same ground as I was, and that the space was all taken up. I then informed Messrs. Bowden and I. Simpson that such was the case, and Mr. Bowden pointed out a place where I might hang them. I proceeded to hang them, but found that it was too dark to arrange them to my liking and left them till this morning. When I went to hang them this morning I found that my pictures were some of them hooked about the wall, and the other were with sides of leather. Not being able to find Mr. Bowden and their being no other space available to show my pictures, I removed them again to my own place of business, at 1001, Great Street, and the public to judge whether I have been fairly treated or not. Yours truly, H. HENDERSON, October 9th.

The Auld Kirk.

Callingswood, Oct. 8.—On Sunday last the new church in connection with the Church of Scotland at Callingswood was opened by the Rev. Gavin Lang, of Montreal. Rev. David Watson, of Toronto, and the Rev. Robert Burnett, of London, preaching to large and overflowing congregations. Explanations were given in regard to the state and condition of the Church of Scotland, as making in the Province. The Temporalities Board suit was now before the Superior Court, Montreal, and a judgment on the appeal would be rendered on the 21st inst. If the appeal be dismissed, then the case will be heard upon its merits. The applicants are the Canada Presbyterian Church and the respondents the Church of Scotland. The latter have now in the 77 communion thirty-three congregations and eighteen ministers. A speaker stated that a wonderful reaction seemed to be taking place in many districts, and that, in fact, the Union was no Union. It is contemplated to raise congregations in all the leading centers of the Province, and terms generous received from the Old Kirk people in Toronto and other centers, there is every prospect of success. An interesting part of the proceedings was the presentation of a handsome present to the Old Kirk, by the ladies of the Union, the Rev. Dr. Campbell, by the ladies of the Church.

POLITICAL MUTATIONS.

The recent revolution in the political sentiment of Canada, although so unjust to the men who were honestly and capably administering the Government of the country, is by no means without parallel or precedent. The causes for that revolution are not far to seek. Light and tolerable as was the Canadian depression as compared with the same thing in the United States and other countries, yet there was enough of it to produce a vague and rankling discontent of which the demagogues of the Tory party degraded themselves to take advantage. Most unjustly they fomented the popular discontent by placing all the trouble at the door of the Government, and a sufficient number of fools were to be found in many of the constituencies to visit the misfortunes of the country on the heads of those who had done all that mortal men could do, first to avert and then to mitigate those misfortunes. But, as we have said, the ill-luck and the undesired fate of the Hon. Mr. Mackenzie's administration is not, without precedent, nor is the very decided reversal of the majority in our House of Commons at all unique in British parliamentary annals. In corroboration of this statement we quote the Westminster Review for July last, written, therefore, antecedent to the Canadian election, and having reference to an entirely different matter: "Anybody who has been in the habit of reading history may have observed that the course of theebb and flow of political parties. That which a moment ago seemed stable and enduring is suddenly gulphed in a surge of public opinion; that which seemed on the brink of destruction re-appears in apparent, if not in actual security. Thus it was with Roman Catholic emancipation; thus it was with electoral reform; thus it was with the Corn Laws. Catholic emancipation never seemed more hopeless than at the moment when it was passed; reform never seemed more distant than on that day when the Duke of Wellington became Prime Minister; the repeal of the Corn Laws seemed doomed under a Conservative Ministry for July last, written, therefore, antecedent to the Canadian election, and having reference to an entirely different matter: "Anybody who has been in the habit of reading history may have observed that the course of theebb and flow of political parties. That which a moment ago seemed stable and enduring is suddenly gulphed in a surge of public opinion; that which seemed on the brink of destruction re-appears in apparent, if not in actual security. Thus it was with Roman Catholic emancipation; thus it was with electoral reform; thus it was with the Corn Laws. Catholic emancipation never seemed more hopeless than at the moment when it was passed; reform never seemed more distant than on that day when the Duke of Wellington became Prime Minister; the repeal of the Corn Laws seemed doomed under a Conservative Ministry for July last, written, therefore, antecedent to the Canadian election, and having reference to an entirely different matter: "Anybody who has been in the habit of reading history may have observed that the course of theebb and flow of political parties. That which a moment ago seemed stable and enduring is suddenly gulphed in a surge of public opinion; that which seemed on the brink of destruction re-appears in apparent, if not in actual security. Thus it was with Roman Catholic emancipation; thus it was with electoral reform; thus it was with the Corn Laws. Catholic emancipation never seemed more hopeless than at the moment when it was passed; reform never seemed more distant than on that day when the Duke of Wellington became Prime Minister; the repeal of the Corn Laws seemed doomed under a Conservative Ministry for July last, written, therefore, antecedent to the Canadian election, and having reference to an entirely different matter: "Anybody who has been in the habit of reading history may have observed that the course of theebb and flow of political parties. That which a moment ago seemed stable and enduring is suddenly gulphed in a surge of public opinion; that which seemed on the brink of destruction re-appears in apparent, if not in actual security. Thus it was with Roman Catholic emancipation; thus it was with electoral reform; thus it was with the Corn Laws. Catholic emancipation never seemed more hopeless than at the moment when it was passed; reform never seemed more distant than on that day when the Duke of Wellington became Prime Minister; the repeal of the Corn Laws seemed doomed under a Conservative Ministry for July last, written, therefore, antecedent to the Canadian election, and having reference to an entirely different matter: "Anybody who has been in the habit of reading history may have observed that the course of theebb and flow of political parties. That which a moment ago seemed stable and enduring is suddenly gulphed in a surge of public opinion; that which seemed on the brink of destruction re-appears in apparent, if not in actual security. Thus it was with Roman Catholic emancipation; thus it was with electoral reform; thus it was with the Corn Laws. Catholic emancipation never seemed more hopeless than at the moment when it was passed; reform never seemed more distant than on that day when the Duke of Wellington became Prime Minister; the repeal of the Corn Laws seemed doomed under a Conservative Ministry for July last, written, therefore, antecedent to the Canadian election, and having reference to an entirely different matter: "Anybody who has been in the habit of reading history may have observed that the course of theebb and flow of political parties. That which a moment ago seemed stable and enduring is suddenly gulphed in a surge of public opinion; that which seemed on the brink of destruction re-appears in apparent, if not in actual security. Thus it was with Roman Catholic emancipation; thus it was with electoral reform; thus it was with the Corn Laws. Catholic emancipation never seemed more hopeless than at the moment when it was passed; reform never seemed more distant than on that day when the Duke of Wellington became Prime Minister; the repeal of the Corn Laws seemed doomed under a Conservative Ministry for July last, written, therefore, antecedent to the Canadian election, and having reference to an entirely different matter: "Anybody who has been in the habit of reading history may have observed that the course of theebb and flow of political parties. That which a moment ago seemed stable and enduring is suddenly gulphed in a surge of public opinion; that which seemed on the brink of destruction re-appears in apparent, if not in actual security. Thus it was with Roman Catholic emancipation; thus it was with electoral reform; thus it was with the Corn Laws. Catholic emancipation never seemed more hopeless than at the moment when it was passed; reform never seemed more distant than on that day when the Duke of Wellington became Prime Minister; the repeal of the Corn Laws seemed doomed under a Conservative Ministry for July last, written, therefore, antecedent to the Canadian election, and having reference to an entirely different matter: "Anybody who has been in the habit of reading history may have observed that the course of theebb and flow of political parties. That which a moment ago seemed stable and enduring is suddenly gulphed in a surge of public opinion; that which seemed on the brink of destruction re-appears in apparent, if not in actual security. Thus it was with Roman Catholic emancipation; thus it was with electoral reform; thus it was with the Corn Laws. Catholic emancipation never seemed more hopeless than at the moment when it was passed; reform never seemed more distant than on that day when the Duke of Wellington became Prime Minister; the repeal of the Corn Laws seemed doomed under a Conservative Ministry for July last, written, therefore, antecedent to the Canadian election, and having reference to an entirely different matter: "Anybody who has been in the habit of reading history may have observed that the course of theebb and flow of political parties. That which a moment ago seemed stable and enduring is suddenly gulphed in a surge of public opinion; that which seemed on the brink of destruction re-appears in apparent, if not in actual security. Thus it was with Roman Catholic emancipation; thus it was with electoral reform; thus it was with the Corn Laws. Catholic emancipation never seemed more hopeless than at the moment when it was passed; reform never seemed more distant than on that day when the Duke of Wellington became Prime Minister; the repeal of the Corn Laws seemed doomed under a Conservative Ministry for July last, written, therefore, antecedent to the Canadian election, and having reference to an entirely different matter: "Anybody who has been in the habit of reading history may have observed that the course of theebb and flow of political parties. That which a moment ago seemed stable and enduring is suddenly gulphed in a surge of public opinion; that which seemed on the brink of destruction re-appears in apparent, if not in actual security. Thus it was with Roman Catholic emancipation; thus it was with electoral reform; thus it was with the Corn Laws. Catholic emancipation never seemed more hopeless than at the moment when it was passed; reform never seemed more distant than on that day when the Duke of Wellington became Prime Minister; the repeal of the Corn Laws seemed doomed under a Conservative Ministry for July last, written, therefore, antecedent to the Canadian election, and having reference to an entirely different matter: "Anybody who has been in the habit of reading history may have observed that the course of theebb and flow of political parties. That which a moment ago seemed stable and enduring is suddenly gulphed in a surge of public opinion; that which seemed on the brink of destruction re-appears in apparent, if not in actual security. Thus it was with Roman Catholic emancipation; thus it was with electoral reform; thus it was with the Corn Laws. Catholic emancipation never seemed more hopeless than at the moment when it was passed; reform never seemed more distant than on that day when the Duke of Wellington became Prime Minister; the repeal of the Corn Laws seemed doomed under a Conservative Ministry for July last, written, therefore, antecedent to the Canadian election, and having reference to an entirely different matter: "Anybody who has been in the habit of reading history may have observed that the course of theebb and flow of political parties. That which a moment ago seemed stable and enduring is suddenly gulphed in a surge of public opinion; that which seemed on the brink of destruction re-appears in apparent, if not in actual security. Thus it was with Roman Catholic emancipation; thus it was with electoral reform; thus it was with the Corn Laws. Catholic emancipation never seemed more hopeless than at the moment when it was passed; reform never seemed more distant than on that day when the Duke of Wellington became Prime Minister; the repeal of the Corn Laws seemed doomed under a Conservative Ministry for July last, written, therefore, antecedent to the Canadian election, and having reference to an entirely different matter: "Anybody who has been in the habit of reading history may have observed that the course of theebb and flow of political parties. That which a moment ago seemed stable and enduring is suddenly gulphed in a surge of public opinion; that which seemed on the brink of destruction re-appears in apparent, if not in actual security. Thus it was with Roman Catholic emancipation; thus it was with electoral reform; thus it was with the Corn Laws. Catholic emancipation never seemed more hopeless than at the moment when it was passed; reform never seemed more distant than on that day when the Duke of Wellington became Prime Minister; the repeal of the Corn Laws seemed doomed under a Conservative Ministry for July last, written, therefore, antecedent to the Canadian election, and having reference to an entirely different matter: "Anybody who has been in the habit of reading history may have observed that the course of theebb and flow of political parties. That which a moment ago seemed stable and enduring is suddenly gulphed in a surge of public opinion; that which seemed on the brink of destruction re-appears in apparent, if not in actual security. Thus it was with Roman Catholic emancipation; thus it was with electoral reform; thus it was with the Corn Laws. Catholic emancipation never seemed more hopeless than at the moment when it was passed; reform never seemed more distant than on that day when the Duke of Wellington became Prime Minister; the repeal of the Corn Laws seemed doomed under a Conservative Ministry for July last, written, therefore, antecedent to the Canadian election, and having reference to an entirely different matter: "Anybody who has been in the habit of reading history may have observed that the course of theebb and flow of political parties. That which a moment ago seemed stable and enduring is suddenly gulphed in a surge of public opinion; that which seemed on the brink of destruction re-appears in apparent, if not in actual security. Thus it was with Roman Catholic emancipation; thus it was with electoral reform; thus it was with the Corn Laws. Catholic emancipation never seemed more hopeless than at the moment when it was passed; reform never seemed more distant than on that day when the Duke of Wellington became Prime Minister; the repeal of the Corn Laws seemed doomed under a Conservative Ministry for July last, written, therefore, antecedent to the Canadian election, and having reference to an entirely different matter: "Anybody who has been in the habit of reading history may have observed that the course of theebb and flow of political parties. That which a moment ago seemed stable and enduring is suddenly gulphed in a surge of public opinion; that which seemed on the brink of destruction re-appears in apparent, if not in actual security. Thus it was with Roman Catholic emancipation; thus it was with electoral reform; thus it was with the Corn Laws. Catholic emancipation never seemed more hopeless than at the moment when it was passed; reform never seemed more distant than on that day when the Duke of Wellington became Prime Minister; the repeal of the Corn Laws seemed doomed under a Conservative Ministry for July last, written, therefore, antecedent to the Canadian election, and having reference to an entirely different matter: "Anybody who has been in the habit of reading history may have observed that the course of theebb and flow of political parties. That which a moment ago seemed stable and enduring is suddenly gulphed in a surge of public opinion; that which seemed on the brink of destruction re-appears in apparent, if not in actual security. Thus it was with Roman Catholic emancipation; thus it was with electoral reform; thus it was with the Corn Laws. Catholic emancipation never seemed more hopeless than at the moment when it was passed; reform never seemed more distant than on that day when the Duke of Wellington became Prime Minister; the repeal of the Corn Laws seemed doomed under a Conservative Ministry for July last, written, therefore, antecedent to the Canadian election, and having reference to an entirely different matter: "Anybody who has been in the habit of reading history may have observed that the course of theebb and flow of political parties. That which a moment ago seemed stable and enduring is suddenly gulphed in a surge of public opinion; that which seemed on the brink of destruction re-appears in apparent, if not in actual security. Thus it was with Roman Catholic emancipation; thus it was with electoral reform; thus it was with the Corn Laws. Catholic emancipation never seemed more hopeless than at the moment when it was passed; reform never seemed more distant than on that day when the Duke of Wellington became Prime Minister; the repeal of the Corn Laws seemed doomed under a Conservative Ministry for July last, written, therefore, antecedent to the Canadian election, and having reference to an entirely different matter: "Anybody who has been in the habit of reading history may have observed that the course of theebb and flow of political parties. That which a moment ago seemed stable and enduring is suddenly gulphed in a surge of public opinion; that which seemed on the brink of destruction re-appears in apparent, if not in actual security. Thus it was with Roman Catholic emancipation; thus it was with electoral reform; thus it was with the Corn Laws. Catholic emancipation never seemed more hopeless than at the moment when it was passed; reform never seemed more distant than on that day when the Duke of Wellington became Prime Minister; the repeal of the Corn Laws seemed doomed under a Conservative Ministry for July last, written, therefore, antecedent to the Canadian election, and having reference to an entirely different matter: "Anybody who has been in the habit of reading history may have observed that the course of theebb and flow of political parties. That which a moment ago seemed stable and enduring is suddenly gulphed in a surge of public opinion; that which seemed on the brink of destruction re-appears in apparent, if not in actual security. Thus it was with Roman Catholic emancipation; thus it was with electoral reform; thus it was with the Corn Laws. Catholic emancipation never seemed more hopeless than at the moment when it was passed; reform never seemed more distant than on that day when the Duke of Wellington became Prime Minister; the repeal of the Corn Laws seemed doomed under a Conservative Ministry for July last, written, therefore, antecedent to the Canadian election, and having reference to an entirely different matter: "Anybody who has been in the habit of reading history may have observed that the course of theebb and flow of political parties. That which a moment ago seemed stable and enduring is suddenly gulphed in a surge of public opinion; that which seemed on the brink of destruction re-appears in apparent, if not in actual security. Thus it was with Roman Catholic emancipation; thus it was with electoral reform; thus it was with the Corn Laws. Catholic emancipation never seemed more hopeless than at the moment when it was passed; reform never seemed more distant than on that day when the Duke of Wellington became Prime Minister; the repeal of the Corn Laws seemed doomed under a Conservative Ministry for July last, written, therefore, antecedent to the Canadian election, and having reference to an entirely different matter: "Anybody who has been in the habit of reading history may have observed that the course of theebb and flow of political parties. That which a moment ago seemed stable and enduring is suddenly gulphed in a surge of public opinion; that which seemed on the brink of destruction re-appears in apparent, if not in actual security. Thus it was with Roman Catholic emancipation; thus it was with electoral reform; thus it was with the Corn Laws. Catholic emancipation never seemed more hopeless than at the moment when it was passed; reform never seemed more distant than on that day when the Duke of Wellington became Prime Minister; the repeal of the Corn Laws seemed doomed under a Conservative Ministry for July last, written, therefore, antecedent to the Canadian election, and having reference to an entirely different matter: "Anybody who has been in the habit of reading history may have observed that the course of theebb and flow of political parties. That which a moment ago seemed stable and enduring is suddenly gulphed in a surge of public opinion; that which seemed on the brink of destruction re-appears in apparent, if not in actual security. Thus it was with Roman Catholic emancipation; thus it was with electoral reform; thus it was with the Corn Laws. Catholic emancipation never seemed more hopeless than at the moment when it was passed; reform never seemed more distant than on that day when the Duke of Wellington became Prime Minister; the repeal of the Corn Laws seemed doomed under a Conservative Ministry for July last, written, therefore, antecedent to the Canadian election, and having reference to an entirely different matter: "Anybody who has been in the habit of reading history may have observed that the course of theebb and flow of political parties. That which a moment ago seemed stable and enduring is suddenly gulphed in a surge of public opinion; that which seemed on the brink of destruction re-appears in apparent, if not in actual security. Thus it was with Roman Catholic emancipation; thus it was with electoral reform; thus it was with the Corn Laws. Catholic emancipation never seemed more hopeless than at the moment when it was passed; reform never seemed more distant than on that day when the Duke of Wellington became Prime Minister; the repeal of the Corn Laws seemed doomed under a Conservative Ministry for July last, written, therefore, antecedent to the Canadian election, and having reference to an entirely different matter: "Anybody who has been in the habit of reading history may have observed that the course of theebb and flow of political parties. That which a moment ago seemed stable and enduring is suddenly gulphed in a surge of public opinion; that which seemed on the brink of destruction re-appears in apparent, if not in actual security. Thus it was with Roman Catholic emancipation; thus it was with electoral reform; thus it was with the Corn Laws. Catholic emancipation never seemed more hopeless than at the moment when it was passed; reform never seemed more distant than on that day when the Duke of Wellington became Prime Minister; the repeal of the Corn Laws seemed doomed under a Conservative Ministry for July last, written, therefore, antecedent to the Canadian election, and having reference to an entirely different matter: "Anybody who has been in the habit of reading history may have observed that the course of theebb and flow of political parties. That which a moment ago seemed stable and enduring is suddenly gulphed in a surge of public opinion; that which seemed on the brink of destruction re-appears in apparent, if not in actual security. Thus it was with Roman Catholic emancipation; thus it was with electoral reform; thus it was with the Corn Laws. Catholic emancipation never seemed more hopeless than at the moment when it was passed; reform never seemed more distant than on that day when the Duke of Wellington became Prime Minister; the repeal of the Corn Laws seemed doomed under a Conservative Ministry for July last, written, therefore, antecedent to the Canadian election, and having reference to an entirely different matter: "Anybody who has been in the habit of reading history may have observed that the course of theebb and flow of political parties. That which a moment ago seemed stable and enduring is suddenly gulphed in a surge of public opinion; that which seemed on the brink of destruction re-appears in apparent, if not in actual security. Thus it was with Roman Catholic emancipation; thus it was with electoral reform; thus it was with the Corn Laws. Catholic emancipation never seemed more hopeless than at the moment when it was passed; reform never seemed more distant than on that day when the Duke of Wellington became Prime Minister; the repeal of the Corn Laws seemed doomed under a Conservative Ministry for July last, written, therefore, antecedent to the Canadian election, and having reference to an entirely different matter: "Anybody who has been in the habit of reading history may have observed that the course of theebb and flow of political parties. That which a moment ago seemed stable and enduring is suddenly gulphed in a surge of public opinion; that which seemed on the brink of destruction re-appears in apparent, if not in actual security. Thus it was with Roman Catholic emancipation; thus it was with electoral reform; thus it was with the Corn Laws. Catholic emancipation never seemed more hopeless than at the moment when it was passed; reform never seemed more distant than on that day when the Duke of Wellington became Prime Minister; the repeal of the Corn Laws seemed doomed under a Conservative Ministry for July last, written, therefore, antecedent to the Canadian election, and having reference to an entirely different matter: "Anybody who has been in the habit of reading history may have observed that the course of theebb and flow of political parties. That which a moment ago seemed stable and enduring is suddenly gulphed in a surge of public opinion; that which seemed on the brink of destruction re-appears in apparent, if not in actual security. Thus it was with Roman Catholic emancipation; thus it was with electoral reform; thus it was with the Corn Laws. Catholic emancipation never seemed more hopeless than at the moment when it was passed; reform never seemed more distant than on that day when the Duke of Wellington became Prime Minister; the repeal of the Corn Laws seemed doomed under a Conservative Ministry for July last, written, therefore, antecedent to the Canadian election, and having reference to an entirely different matter: "Anybody who has been in the habit of reading history may have observed that the course of theebb and flow of political parties. That which a moment ago seemed stable and enduring is suddenly gulphed in a surge of public opinion; that which seemed on the brink of destruction re-appears in apparent, if not in actual security. Thus it was with Roman Catholic emancipation; thus it was with electoral reform; thus it was with the Corn Laws. Catholic emancipation never seemed more hopeless than at the moment when it was passed; reform never seemed more distant than on that day when the Duke of Wellington became Prime Minister; the repeal of the Corn Laws seemed doomed under a Conservative Ministry for July last, written, therefore, antecedent to the Canadian election, and having reference to an entirely different matter: "Anybody who has been in the habit of reading history may have observed that the course of theebb and flow of political parties. That which a moment ago seemed stable and enduring is suddenly gulphed in a surge of public opinion; that which seemed on the brink of destruction re-appears in apparent, if not in actual security. Thus it was with Roman Catholic emancipation; thus it was with electoral reform; thus it was with the Corn Laws. Catholic emancipation never seemed more hopeless than at the moment when it was passed; reform never seemed more distant than on that day when the Duke of Wellington became Prime Minister; the repeal of the Corn Laws seemed doomed under a Conservative Ministry for July last, written, therefore, antecedent to the Canadian election, and having reference to an entirely different matter: "Anybody who has been in the habit of reading history may have observed that the course of theebb and flow of political parties. That which a moment ago seemed stable and enduring is suddenly gulphed in a surge of public opinion; that which seemed on the brink of destruction re-appears in apparent, if not in actual security. Thus it was with Roman Catholic emancipation; thus it was with electoral reform; thus it was with the Corn Laws. Catholic emancipation never seemed more hopeless than at the moment when it was passed; reform never seemed more distant than on that day when the Duke of Wellington became Prime Minister; the repeal of the Corn Laws seemed doomed under a Conservative Ministry for July last, written, therefore, antecedent to the Canadian election, and having reference to an entirely different matter: "Anybody who has been in the habit of reading history may have observed that the course of theebb and flow of political parties. That which a moment ago seemed stable and enduring is suddenly gulphed in a surge of public opinion; that which seemed on the brink of destruction re-appears in apparent, if not in actual security. Thus it was with Roman Catholic emancipation; thus it was with electoral reform; thus it was with the Corn Laws. Catholic emancipation never seemed more hopeless than at the moment when it was passed; reform never seemed more distant than on that day when the Duke of Wellington became Prime Minister; the repeal of the Corn Laws seemed doomed under a Conservative Ministry for July last, written, therefore, antecedent to the Canadian election, and having reference to an entirely different matter: "Anybody who has been in the habit of reading history may have observed that the course of theebb and flow of political parties. That which a moment ago seemed stable and enduring is suddenly gulphed in a surge of public opinion; that which seemed on the brink of destruction re-appears in apparent, if not in actual security. Thus it was with Roman Catholic emancipation; thus it was with electoral reform; thus it was with the Corn Laws. Catholic emancipation never seemed more hopeless than at the moment when it was passed; reform never seemed more distant than on that day when the Duke of Wellington became Prime Minister; the repeal of the Corn Laws seemed doomed under a Conservative Ministry for July last, written, therefore, antecedent to the Canadian election, and having reference to an entirely different matter: "Anybody who has been in the habit of reading history may have observed that the course of theebb and flow of political parties. That which a moment ago seemed stable and enduring is suddenly gulphed in a surge of public opinion; that which seemed on the brink of destruction re-appears in apparent, if not in actual security. Thus it was with Roman Catholic emancipation; thus it was with electoral reform; thus it was with the Corn Laws. Catholic emancipation never seemed more hopeless than at the moment when it was passed; reform never seemed more distant than on that day when the Duke of Wellington became Prime Minister; the repeal of the Corn Laws seemed doomed under a Conservative Ministry for July last, written, therefore, antecedent to the Canadian election, and having reference to an entirely different matter: "Anybody