FRIDAY EV'NG, OCT.25, 1878. REMINDERS.

CONCERT in St. Andrew's Hall at 8 p.m.

With characteristic modesty the Belleville Intelligencer publishes the portrait of its proprietor, accompanied by what reads like an auto-biographical pen pic ture of "the subject of this sketch." as to challenge admiration, or, perhaps to invite comparison the 'cut' is placed juxtaposition with that of the new Premier. We will not say that the Hon. Minister of Customs suffers by comparison with his chief. On the face of John there is the truly life-like and miliar smirk of saucy bravado and cun ning humbug, while the distinguishing characteristic of Mr. Bowell's frontispiece is the expression of humble gratitude to his Chieftain for having made him a Minister.

The Tory organs are quoting, of course with an air of patronizing approval, the liberal and maguanimous suggestion of the St. John Reform press, that the Hon. Mr. Tilley, although lately returned by a majority of only four-and recount refused at that-should not be opposed on going back for re-election. At the same time these sapient organs applaud the bitter and malignant opposition now being offered to Hon. Mr. Cartwright in Centre Huron, where, in the recent contest, the Liberal candidate was elected by a majority of nearly four hundred! It is quite needless to say that the local Tory sheet is among the fatwitted exemplars of this truly refreshing consistency. Tory combatants know nothing about giving quarter in political battle, although they will take any quantity of it with the most ungrateful and unblushing effrontery.

The trouble between England and Russia still smoulders in spite of the too sanguine expectation that the Treaty of Berlin would extinguish it, at anyrete for the time. The firm attitude of the Ameer of Afghanistan is credited to expected aid and comfort from Russia, assistance which will no doubt be forthcoming in some indirect way, contraband though it may be-should the threatened trouble come to a head. The Russian press is already announcing that the fate of Afghanistan must not be decided, even in the event of British victory, without the consent of Russia. This is doubtless intended to pay off Disraeli for disturbing the treaty of San Stefano by the intervention of a European Congress. As England refused to permit victorious Russia to settle her Turkish quarrel alone, so the Russians will be sure to forge some pretext for interference at the close of the pending Afghan war. The rivalry of Empire will long continue between Britain and Russia both in Europe and Asia.

The Mail cannot understand what the WHIG could mean by the 'cherished principles' of the Reform party. Having no principles of its own we can from this fact well appreciate the obtuseness of the organ is regard to those of its opponents. Political principle is at a discount in a party which will furiously fight for power with whatever weapons may seem to be most available and effectual and throw those weapons to the winds as soon as ever the victory is won by their means. It was so in the late contest; the Mail ters would be as thankless a task as the proverbially unappreciative diversion of casting pearls before swine.

THE PACIFIC SCANDAL PENITENT.

There figured in the recent political contest in this city a gentleman who had formerly and bitterly opposed Sir John Maccionald, but who, because of a more recent misunderstanding with Hon, Mr. Mackenzie, was intensely anxious to find some ground of reconciliation with the Tory Chieftain. As the interested nature of his quarrel with Mr. Mackenzie was quite obvious and notorious, this local gentleman sought to find some high mora reason for "readjusting" his differences with Sir John. It was therefore publicly announced that the proven ain of the Pacific Railway Scandal was the only difficulty which had over sundered the sympathies of these high-minded gentlemen, and that if the perpetrator of that wrong would but confess his fault his reverend censor would grant him immediate absolution, and more, would lav his head in very homage at the Tory statesman's feet. Mistaking fuss and amoke for fire the Chieftain, hard pressed in the contest, and hoping that that the support of his erstwhile enemy might prove his salvation from dreaded defeat put together an ingenious little evasion. which was eagerly jumped at by the eccentrie gentleman as a bons-fide confession. We will not blame the latter for his too favorable construction on Six John's affected contrition. He certainly did arow his penitence, and promised never to do it again. Whereat his reverend friend was fairly overwhelmed. as he had promised to be, with mingled forgivenness and adulation. His affection for the returning prodigal knew no bounds, and, like the patriarch in the parable, he wanted to throw his arms around him in the embrace of a fatherly affection. At least so he said on nomination day. He knew how much it must cost a man of Sir John's position to make a public confession of a great public crime, and he accepted it as a setwhich his own sensitive moral nature had tween these kindred but alienated souls treal Post, that the late Government aid completed on the basis of the stipulated the Irish Catholics less than justice, and confession of the perpetrated sin. With literal truth does the Chieftain describe himself as a "Jack in the box. You put your finger on him and he isn' there! This at anyrate has proved to be the experience of the gentleman who extorted a hogus confession from the Chieftain as the public apology for his own erratic political performances.

TEMPERANCE AND POLITICS.

Among our gleanings we notice an in-imation to the effect that the temper ance people of St. John intend extending a public reception to Hon. Mr. Tilley on his return for re-election. On what score the temperance men of that or any other locality can bestow a public compliment on any member of Sir John's Administration, as such, we are completely at a loss to understand. We are all aware that Hon. Mr. Tilley has been a great temperance man in his day, but it is not too much to say that he so compromised himself on this question by entering the Macdonald Administration, as to do the 'cause'-so far as he might be connected with it-irreparable damage. Even admit- estimates, which may be very large. We gravity of the situation between Engting the temperance question to be an open one, so far as politicians are concerned, it is not too much to say that never did temperance legislation make such rapid strides of progress as under the auspices of the Mackenzie and Mowat Administrations. In proof of what we say, let the efficient Crooks Act, and Hon. Mr. Scott's Permissive Bill bear testimony. The obsolete Dunkin Act by its success sive failures wherever adopted, was bringing the cause of temperance into ridicule, and weakening the faith even of of value; even wicked men sometimes its stoutest advocates in the possibility or die. (Cheers.) practicability of prohibitory legislation The Reform Government, true to its name and mission, brought down and passed into law an Act in which the blunders and defects of the 'Act of 1864 are all eliminated or amonded, and which in the hands of any local temperance majority will prove effectual for the repression of an admitted evil. The License Act of Ontariois also universally conceded to be a capital measure for its intended purpose in restricting the liquor traffic | 000. and diminishing the vice and crime which are too often its attendants and consenences. What thanks have the Liberal Governments at Ottawa and Toronto received from the temperance community, as such, for all this advanced legislation in their favour? Not the least in the world. Of course the stanl taken by the Reform leaders in this matter to a very large extent arrayed the liquor interest against them, an additional reason, one would think, why the temperance community should have rallied to their support. Instead of this, however, the very stiffest and bitterest opposition Reformers had to encounter in the late contest came from socalled temperance men. Hon. Mr. Tilley's own course in descending from fought not for protection but for office the Governor's chair and moving Heaven with the protectionist argument.
