It would have been further confirmation of the truth of phree noly had these been included in the enumeration.

A representative of our contemporary went all the way to Belleville to inform the friends and admirers of Mr. Bowell that the accession of this gentleman to the new Cabinet "had given great satisfaction to the Conservatives of Kingston." AXES TO GRIND

The Montreal Berald has an able art. cle on "Sir John Macdonald's constitu encies," bringing to light the interested notives which have actuated Marquette and Victoria in the nomination of Sit John Macdonald after his disastrous defeat in this city. Our contemporary truthfully points out one great contradis-tinction between Hon. Mr. Mackenzie and Sir John to consist in the fact that while the former consulted the good of all the people-the greatest good of the greatest number—the latter sought, by pandering in all directions to particular interests,' to bribe sufficient support to float himself into power and to support him when he got there. Knowing this to be the special characteristic of the man, the electors of Marquette eagerly jumped at the chance the Kingston defeat of Chieftain afforded to utilize him for their local purpose. Of course the people of Marquette were anxious for the Pacific Railway to traverse their neighborhood, and when Mr. Sandford Fleming's survey decided another direction to be both chesper and shorter, and the government selected the line recommended, instantly the support of Mr. Ryan, the member for Marquette, was lost to the government. and the whole Province to a great degree estranged and disappointed. At the risk, nay, with the certainty, that take the course the public rest demanded, would excite the local discontent of the prairie province, Mr. Mackenzie unhesitatingly decided for the country and for the future, determined that he would not, even at the risk of losing power, repeat the criminal Intercolonial blundering of his predecessors, and, to catch parliamentary support sea. Similarly with Victoria. As though the pledge to build the Pacific Road in ten years were not sufficient proof of infatuation, Sir John, it seems, by an order in Council, made Victoria the terminus of the Railway, although there was nothing in the original bond requiring or implying such an extraordinary step. Being an island port, the selection of Victoria as the terminus necessitated the building of a "Vancouver affairs. Island Railway'' as well as most expensive bridging across the strait to the mainland. All this vast outlay was avoided by Hon. Mr. Mackenzie's simple deci sion to place the terminus on the main land and to leave it to local enterprise to make connections with Victoria. Even the original promise of Sir John, extravagant and impossible of fulfilment as it was, only pledged the country to touch the Pacific with the western terminus of the Road. This compact the late Government's plan would have carried out to the letter, without entailing a vast expenditure for what might well be undertaken out of provincial resources. It was said that one reason why Sir John declined to sit for Marquette was the 'use' which the people of that constitu the alteration of the route so suit their girl. local purposes. Equally will he be compromised by his acceptance of the parliamentary seat for Victoria. While the purely political vote between DeCosmos and Davies was nearly equal, the almost unanimous vote cast for Sir John Macdonald is a clear intimation that the people of that city expect him to make it the terminus of the Pacific Railway, montrous injustice as would be the financtal burden which such a course would roll upon the people of the rest of the Domi. nion. Each of the two constituencies named had a railway axe to grind, and it was simply the hope and expectation that the discarded of Kingston would be just the tool for their purpose that prompted them to place their seat in parliament ao readily at his disposel

New York, October 27 .- The Manhatan savings and deposit bank, corner Broadway and Bleecker streets, Iwas entered this morning by burglars, who succeeded in carrying off a large amount of money, jewelry and plate, and other valnables. The robbery was one of the most daring and complete ever committed in this city, and from the manner in which the details of the robbery were carried out the police are of the opinion that they are first-class operators, from what can be gleaued as to the manner in shich the robbery was committed. appears the bank has two watchmen besides the janitor, Louis Werkler, who resides with his wife and mother. after 6 o'clock Laviel Healy, one of the watchmen, who had been on duty all night, went up stairs and Werkler. The latter immediately got up and commenced dressing. watchman, after seeing that all safe, went down stairs again left the premises by the side door in Bleecker street. A few minutes before Werkler had time to dress himself, seven men, all wearing masks walked, into his spartments and with revolvers in hand ordered him to remain quiet. They then handcuffed him and his wife and after wing his mother-in-law to the bedstead. they took him to the door of the bank and told him to give up the keys. At first Werkler, who is about 6) years old, refused, but the burglars threatened to kill him, and he finally gave to them the keps which led to the banking rooms. The burglars opened the door and by threats compelled him to give the com-

Madrid, Oct. 28 - The assassin who attempted the King's life fired from a sidewalk in front of a house not far from the arched entrance. He fired too low, and the ball passed through the hand of a soldier standing guard on the opposite side of the street. The king saw the flash, and with an involuntary movement checked his horse momentarily. He then rode tranquilly on towards the palace. the criminal.
