After getting the money he went into a side street and divided up with a young man named McLean, living near Hunter's, and then took the boat for Clayton, where he purchased a suit of clothes, and a ticket for Boston. Hunter being away from home at the time, found the two checks and his hired man missing on his return. He immediately laid the matter before constable Acton, who arrested McLean. So says the Brockville Recorder.

It turn out, however, that there in question are really to be purchased in Montreal, from the Goodyear Company, so that the virtuous indignation of the Whio is thrown forty minutes. After stating his convic away .- News.

Not at all, Mr. News. Our illustration of Tory inconsistency is quite apro pos, and our virtuous indignation is b no means thrown away. Because the hose is to be purchased from the Good year Company of Montreal it has no been proven that the article is of Canadian manufacture. Indeed we are in formed, and have every reason to be lieve, that the Goodyear Company do not whose death we announced several days make the hose they offer for sale, but constitute a Canadian agency (limited) for several United States firms. This being so our article still retains its point and pungency, and any remarks we have made about Protection and Protectionists are as applicable to the persons named to-day as they were on Friday last. The reference to any Council report which appeared in the Wate or any other paper convinces us of nothing wherein we erred, but the playful scolding we have received from our contemporary serves as another fostance of the handsome way in which some men can bounce into blunder when prompted by party impulses rather than by a desire to get at he facts of the case. Now, Mr. News, what think you of your mare's nest ?

The Primitive Methodist Church was filled last night by those desirous of hearing the promised sermon to young people. The subject was: "Seeking a Suitable Companion." The lessons read were appropriate, and the text selected was Genesis xxIV, 49: "And now if ye wil deal kindly and truly with my master tell me; and if not, tell me, that I may turn either to the right hand or to the left." REV. MR. CARRY'S SERMON TO THE YOUNG Last evening the Rev. W. B. Carey preached a very interesting sermon to 'young men." He took for his text the LXIII Pealm, and 1st verse, "O Ged, thou art my God, early will I seek thee." said he, we have taken God as our counsellor early in life, the text will be in teresting to each one. On the outset he might say that his opinion is that young people are a great power in the land There is not a mercantile or educational iustitution in which the young are not occupying important positions. People now-a-days cannot do without the vim and energy of youth. He did not wish nor-General, as an example of the high positions to which young aspire. This brought them to a thought which he wished to mention. One had gone from us whose example was of one who lived in the fear of God, a devoted Christian, an excellent Sabbath School teacher, and they should take her example as a gaide for themselves. He wished to say that young people should strive to keep the example of the Master in their hearts. Much injury was done to young persons by picturing the life of a Christian as something to be dreaded, place to find a wife for Isaac, among a instead of letting them see how happy and joyful it was. It is the duty of every Christian to be cheerful and happy. The time which God had given to them was not their own. They were only entrusted with it, and they would be required to give an account of how they spent it. They should employ a portion of it in devotion while here on earth. This kind of talk was all false. Amusements at home are as much required as devotion. If they do not have them at home the youth of the com munities will have them elsewhere without the consent of their parents. They should strive to have all the amusements at home, so as to make the family circle cheerful and happy. They should never attend anything to which they could not take Christ along with them, and he was | Overcoats from sure their consciences would be good judges whether it was proper or not.
