"Domestic economy lies at the foot the highest life of every true woman So remarked H.R.H. in reply to an address presented to her by a deputation of women at Montreal. Princess Louise thus gave a hint of her practical nature, and it were well that her meaning be duly considered and properly applied.

The smallness of the Dominion Government has been further demonstrated the refusal to recognise the appoint ment of the clerks placed in office by Speaker Anglin, who had a perfect right to make the nominations. Had Mr. Mac kenzie's government acted with the same bitter spirit which seems to characterize the present government there would have been the next thing to a riot in the Hon. W. Macdougall is still in Ottawa. He is tooking after Sir John and himself at the same time. Failing to get a seat in the Cabinet it is understood he was promised the Speakership, but now Dr. Blanchet and Hon. Mr. Cockburn are mentioned as candidates for the position of First Commoner. Mr. Macdougall evidently means to fight for place, and if chested out of the Speakership he will have to have some other borth equally as cozy and lucrative.

Quite a little newspaper breeze has been caused by some Roman Catholic papers, notably the Ottawa Herald, which have objected to the form of oath followed by His Excellency in taking reins of office, protestantism having received a prominence which, it is contended, itshould not have, in view of the mixed population over whom the Governor-General other officials, somewhat as a means of rerules as the representative of the Queen. The question has been discussed at some length. The Mail admitted that the oath, in both countries, in this respect, is an obsolete fiction, whereupon the Herald says that granting this to be correct what is the use or purpose of perpetuating an 'obsolete fiction!' The in a sensitive spot.

The Belleville Intelligencer affects to Mr. Mackenzie and Mr. Mowat, should therefore, be taken as revelation ing to the editor behind the door and the editor gives the public the benefit of his knowledge. All that passed between them, however, cannot be accounted as gospel truth even though the story happens to be similarly told in the Mail. This is a likelihood of Mr. Blake becoming leader of the Opposition in the House harder place to live in than what Lonof Commons, but neither Mr. Mackenzie don is. and Mr. Brown will feel very sad about it.

The Toronto Telegram thus pertinently remarks: Mr. John Leys has this advantage over Mr. Morris, that he is a local man, is well acquainted with the An instance of what an Apache Indian legislative requirements of the city, and has never been looked upon as a virulent political partisan. That he will make a owner of the ranche was an American good run goes without saying, although. of course, it must be admitted that the fact of the constituency having just been held by a Conservative will be something feet thick, In the coral a herd was in his opponent a favour. COURT ETIQUETTE.

The Montreal Gazette appears to te deeply affected by the comments of the Mail on Col. Littleton's outlandish notice ladies desiring an introduction to H.R.H. that they would have to appear in low necked dresses, without court trains, unless certificates were produced from a medical authority advising a different costume. Says the Gazette: "The fact seems to be that the Mail has been a long in the habit of keeping our 'ne'er do well' legislators' in order that it has hastily applied to the management of a lady's drawing room the same vigorous method which holds in awe the representatives of the people, and has rushed to transfer the principles of responsible government to a sphere in which that glorious political system is quite inapplicable." The Gasette is very artful in its way of putting the matter, and there is really no occasion for so much delicacy in dealing with questions more practical than otherwise. Nor do we think the Mail's comments too severe or too hastily applied. Canadians, untrained to Court etiquette, in so far as exhibition of figure is concerned, and living in a climate altogether unfavourable to such a system of fashion, naturally feel that style is being carried a shade too far when it comes to an order such as Col. Littleton had issued. It may be that H.R.H. was not consulted in the case referred to. We should think not. and we entertain the hope that her good sense and practical nature will see to it that such a manifestation of old country customs will not be forced upon those who naturally rebel against it, but who at the same time are anxious to do honour

The circumstances of our Fi nance Minister's failure will now serve to illustrate the good fortune which attended Mr. Cartwright's visits to England on similar errands, his loans having been floated at rates better than which could not be expected. But the vigilant herdsman had driven the cattle at a gallop into the corral before the Indians could stampede them. One night there came a fearful storm. A solitary Apache, unarmed, and with nothing but a blanket to protect him from the cold rain, climbed over the correl wall; crouching in the corner, he waited for day. Early in the morning the storm having passed away, eight herdsmen, mounted and armed, waited at the corral gate for the herd to be turnen out. The gate was opened. Saddenly up sprang the Apache.
