MARITIME COURT.

prehensible that Toronto should be fajurisdiction on a County Court Judge, while Kingston, which has a larger lakegoing traffic, should be without such an institution. The member for Frontenac was, to his credit, the first to introduce the subject before the House of Commons, and he will confer a favor on the community by getting the Department of Justice to dispose of an application made some time ago for the establishment of a Maritime Causes Court here. We have now a County Judge physically able to discharge the duties of his office, and as qualified as he is assiduous in the discharge of those duties. It is said that the Ottawa Bar are making an effort to get a Court of this jurisdiction established in that city with the view of centralizing their practice for the eastern part of Ontario. The success of such an effort would be contrary to the letter of the Act, under which any County is entitled to jurisdiction over local eauses within the scope of the Act.

Yesterday there arrived here for the Penitentiary four persons, A. McTaggart, W. Roszel, Dennis Moore and John Hoar, who are known around Hamilton as the "masked burgiars." The three first are in for five years, and the last for one y ar, who is an old man, and who pleaded "guilty" for three years. The other prisoners, Wm. Knox and John Brophy, were sentenced to nine months in Central Prison, they having turned Queen's evidence. Roszel's sisters, brother and other relatives were in Court during the proceedings, and on the rising of the Court a most affecting parting scene took place between the women and the prisoner, all being bathed in tears, while the little niece, whom he had often fondled, was handed to him and he covered it with kisses and tears. So touching indeed, was the parting that many of the onlookers were seen to weep, and even the reporters and policemen drew their handkerchiefs across their eyes. The criminals all belong to respectable families, and their disgrace is most keenly felt, even beyond their own immediate

A Silk Factory. At the Gananoque Council meeting of Monday evening last, a proposition from Mesars, E. R. Steinhardt & Co. was received as follows. They will agree to establish a Silk Factory in that village, looms, with about six hundred shuttles, six winding frames, (about three hundred spindles) four silk warping frames, three machines, (about seventy-five spindles) one double machine (about thirty, spindles) and ribbon roller, one steam engine, and to employ on an average at least one hundred operatives luring the term of ten years, on the cona bonus of $2,000 and exempt them from taxes for ten years. The Reporter says a public meeting was held at which the ratepayers discussed the proposition. Mos vote was taken at the close, no one voting but those who were owners of property and entitled to vote on the By-law and the result was that thirty-five were in favar of submitting a By law, and thirty two against it. The vote was seclose that the Council will probably dis cuss the matter further before proced-

GRAND JURY PRESENTMENT. The Grand Jury presented their rert, which is as follows: The Grand Jury for our Lady the Queen, for the General Sessions of the Peace, for the County of Frontenac, beg most respectfully to offer your Honour their congratulations on your elevation the Bench. The county is to be cougratulated on securing the services of a gentleman of such acknowledged ability to preside over the Courts. It is our sinere hope that your Honour may be long. pared to fill the high position you now gracefully occupy. The Grand Jury regret the cause that necessitates the abs nee of Mr. A. S. Kirkpatrick, and ope that ere long his health will be established so as to enable him to resume his duties as County Attorney. blank criminal calendar has afforded us much gratification, and we have noted with pleasure the presentation to your Honour by the Sheriff of the customary pair of white gloves, as showing the significant fact that he had no prisoner under, his care awaiting trial, which speaks well for the peace and morality of the county. In accordance with Honour's directions the Grand visited the Penitentiary and Rockwood Lunatic Asylum, and were received with every courtesy by the Warden, Mr. Creighton and Dr. Metcalfe, the acting Medical Superintendent, and were much pleased in finding both institutions models of cleanliness and discipline. next issted the County Gaol and enquired into its management; visited every il and day room in the Prison, together th the kitchen and several yards. We ound every portion scrupulously clean, neat and comfortable. The prisoners made no complaint as to their treatment. THE EXPERTAINMENT OF LAST EVENING The enterteinment given in St. Andrew's Hall, tast night, by the Elecuti Association of Queen's College, was a de ided success. Though not large, audience was a thoroughly appreciative one, listening to the songs and reading throughout with the utmost attention One thing we could not help noticing namely, the changes that had taken place in the personnel of the Glee Club since last session -- no loss than five or six new faces being noticeable among its members. By the way, we must congratulate Mr. Heath, the leader, and the club on the improvement that is clearly to be seen in their performances this session. The singing of Dr. Rathbun in "Blue Balls" was really excellent, while that of Messrs. Heath and Daly, in "Swallows, Happy Swallows," was fair, though not so good as usual. The duet is a difficult one, and requires long practice to enable singers to render it properly. "Hetai Roi" brought down the house, "Ca cachiabunk" being given as an encore. to the readings, they were much above the average, both as regards the selections themselves and the manner of rendering them. Mr. Ross was the first reader. His selection was from one of the Exeter Hall lectures, and was well rendered, the stately and majostic composition, of it self, riveting the attention of every hearer. "Jub Browin's opinion Rubenstein" was the next reading, being that given by Mr. Stewart, who entered heartily into the character, and who, at the close of the piece, imitated so well written from the programme, and a recitation from King Henry the VII. subary and histronic power in his rendition f Wolsey's solitoquy. Mr. Nairn was of course quite at home in the proper use and pronunciation of "Scotch Words. Mr. Elliott's reading of the 'Spanish Duel' elicited round after round of well named gentleman is a reader of whom the Association may justly feel proved. We consider his conception of the posm to be very accurate, and his rendition of it almost perfect. Professor Watton, who presided, announced, before closing, that the next entertainment would probably prove useful: -Be prepared on arriving at the scene f action, for discovering that by an unlucky accident you have forgutten your gimlets. N. B. - Coupled circumstance it will be usually found that your skates have an abnormally small screw rendering all other gimlets on the spot

Be also prepared for such trifling casualties as the breaking of a strap, the coming out of a screw, or even the coming off of the heel of your boot. Nerve yourself with Spartan resolution to bear the torture which the putting on of skates implies; sometimes, under the hand of an energetic caster, the gimlet screw of the skate goes in too far. Take care to start of boldly. Irreso lution in starting is fatal, and leads to those andden falls and inelegant sitting positions, accompanied by those painfu jerks, which are the skater's bane. Prepare your landlady for seeing you brought home on a shutter, and have a fire ordered in your bed-room.
