The dying leaves fall fast, Chestnut, will aw, oak and beech, All brown and withered lie, New swirling in the cutting blast Now sodden under feet—they teach,

That one or all must die. This autumn of the year Comes sadly home to my heart, Whose youthful hopes are fied, The darkening days are drear—

Each love once mine I see depart As withered leaves and dead. But is it all decay? All present loss-no gain remete? Monotony and pain?

And, of all flowers, the first Beneath these leaves in spring shall blow Sweet violets blue and white, So all lost love shall burst In springlike beauty, summer glow,
