AND THE LIBERAL-UNIONISTS ARE RATHER SORRY FOR IT.

The Boom the Election Has Given to the Home Rule Movement-A Notice to the Government That It May Look Out For Squalls - Sir George's Last

Speech. LONDON, Aug. 3. -An election was held. to-day in the Bridgeton division of Glasgow to fill the parliamentary seat made vacant by the resignation of E. R. Russell, a home rule liberal, who at the last election got 4,364 votes against 3,507 for his conservative opponent, Colin Mackenzie. The election today resulted in the return of Sir George Otto Trevelyan, the liberal candidate, by a vote of 4.654. Evelyn Ashley, the conservative nominee, received 3,353.

LONDON, Aug. 3 .- Sir George O. Trevelyan's victory is felt in conservative circles to be the severest blow the unionist cause has yet experienced. Intenselinterest pervaded the clubs last evening. Each side attached supreme importance to the election as the first fought since the general election between a gladstonian and a liberal-unionist, the other contests having been between conservatives and gladstonians.

LONDON, Aug. 3.-Sir George O. Trevel: yan, in a speech last evening, said that his victory made it next to impossible for the government to proclaim the Irish National league. The election, he declared, largely settled the Irish question. Henceforth Ireland must be treated in a spirit of conciliation, kindness and confidence.

Sitting on the Nationalists.

LONDON, Aug. 3. - In the house of commons last evening, Mr. Dillon complained of a statement that appeared in a provincial paper, which he supposed was supplied by a conservative member, charging him, in a recent debate, with laughing in approval of the stoning of a daughter of the agent of Lord Sligo during a school - procession in Belleville, Aug. 3. A meeting of the Belfast. Mr. Dillon said he made it a rule creditors of Gordon, Morey & Co. was | not to notice newspaper assertions, but this held yesterday. The Speaker - Order. You must not make such charges against members. Mr. Dillon -I have reason to suppose that the offensive passage was supplied by a member. No more atrocious an accusation that it is true. Are Irish members to have any protection here? I heard the speaker call members to order for language which beside this sinks into insignificance.

The speaker-I am the judge of order here. The members who said that the accusation is true put their own version upon what passed during the debate referred to.

Mr. MacLean, amid an uproar, maintained that when the assault upon the girl was mentioned laughter was heard among the Parnellites, and that conservative members indignantly cried "shame." The fact would be found mentioned in the house reports. He would acquit Mr. Dillon of sharing in the laughter if he repudiated such conduct.

Mr. Dillon-You misrepresent what occured. I ask justice at the speaker's hands. The accusation ought to be withdrawn. charges of this character are allowed to be hurled against us, there will be an end to all public decency and order in parliament. The speaker-The laughter which members declare they heard was meant to be interpreted in an offensive sense If Mr. Dillon repudiates the statement the house can accept the repudiation.

Mr. Dillon insisted that this was not sufficient. He demanded the protection of the chair in the withdrawal of the charges, or that the speaker request the members to withdraw them.

The Speaker-Order. I have settled the Mr. Dillon-Then these measures of justice are for one set of members, and there is no justice for another set. (Home rule cheers.)

Progress on the Land Bill. London, Aug. 3 .- In the commons last night clause twenty-one of the Land bill, the consideration of which had been postponed, was omitted. The remaining original clauses were disposed of. Mr. Balfour submitted the first of the government's new clauses, which empowers the court to rescind the leases obtained since 1869 by undue influence. This clause and several minor clauses were agreed to, and progress was reported on the understanding that the committee stage will be finished to-morrow.

M'GARIGLE AT LARGE.

Still Flitting Around Canada, Keeping

Away From the Detectives, HAMILTON, Ont., Aug. 2.-McGarigle arrived from Strathroy, last night, and registered at the Royal hotel as "William James, of Toronto." He will probably make this his headquarters until everything is arranged in Chicago. He left on the 12:20 train for Toronto, to meet a Chicago commissioner, with a view of compromising his difficulty.

ST. CATHARINES, Aug. 2. - McGarigle arrived here about 2 o'clock this afternoon. He drove to the neighborhood of the St. John's residence where he alighted. It is house, and it is impossible to gain any further | board. An explosion followed which information. It is believed he will move set fire to the steamer. The Worst Shock on Record-And the Worst Has Not Yet Been Known.

PANAMA, Aug. 2 .- A letter from Cuenea, Ecuador, dated June 29th, furnishes the following: "At half past six o'clock a terrible earthquake awoke the citizens. Nearly all of them rushed into the streets without clothing. The movement was accompanied with a fearful noise. In the streets and squares the people threw themselves upon their knees. The curates meanwhile exhorted the people to fly to the churches. The turrets of San Blas church toppled over with a loud crash, and the walls of most of the churches have been severely damaged. Most of the houses have been destroyed and the few still standing are damaged." Letters from Azogues report damage there and the town hall is destroyed. Canar has has also suffered loss. At noon the earthquakes continue without cessation. All the bridges are damaged. The hospital is almost totally destroyed. The telegraph informs us that the shocks have been felt everywhere as far as Tulean, but with less violence than here. A procession is now passing through the streets, composed of all the ladies in the city, and they are imploring "the Almighty to appease his wrath." The Nacion, of Guayaquil, of July 1st, says: "Telegraphic communication with Guaranad having been re-established, we have received a message which informs us the earthquake was fearfully severe there, and that it has caused loss of life and done much damage." CHICAGO, Aug. 3.-A gentleman from Hopkinsville says the country about the scene of the earthquake is almost inaccessible save by old beaten paths. Golden Pond is a mere hamlet containing two settlements of negroes. On Monday night they felt shake but thought nothing serious had occurred and went to bed. About 12 o'clock everybody was awakened by a shock, and they had barely jumped to their feet when the earth, with a shaking dizzy motion, sank five feet, carrying houses and terrified darkies with it.

LEADVILLE LEADING IN LOW LIFE AND IMMORALITY.

The Orgies in the Dance Houses and the Variety Show-Men and Women Lured to Ruin Through the Agency of the Bar-The Scenes Witnessed by a Re-

(Leadville Correspondence of the St. Louis

Globe Democrat.) Vice display her most hideous mien here. Standing on Harrison avenue and looking westward along State street the locality is given up to those who inhabit it. Leadville authority only says "life and property must be safe here." Suppression, it is argued, would only cause the ulcer to spread and contaminate the whole city. So State street and its immediate vicinity is surrendered to the dance house, the variety show, and the brothel, and the rest of the city is kept morally clean. Practically no limit is put upon human A plague of sudden death is raging at | depravity. All night long the street is ities and colors go in and out of the wide open doors. Four-horse ore waggons are driven down from the mines and unloaded, fifty men at a time, in front of one another of the places of entertainment. And such an entertainment. The dance house is the form most frequent. No admission fee is charged at any of these places, but it costs money to get out. Take the dance hall for example. There is a bar at the door, and a gaudy placard stares all who enter. "Gentlemen will please patronize the bar." A little way back is a barrier cutting the long apartment in two. On this side of the barrier are the spectators, miners, cowboys, smelter hands and rounders looking on. Inside an orchestra is wrestling with three or four fiddles and a horn, while the floor is covered with dancers. A burly fellow, with a stout stick, is prowling about, coming up to the barrier every few minutes to shout at the top of his voice, "Choose your partners, boys, fer a roun' dance, a squah dance, or any other kind o' dance yer please."

This man is not called the floor manager. He is the "herder," and referring to the fact that he has been off duty for some time he calls out to the crowd : "I haint done any herdin for three months, and I'm a little bit rusty, but come on, we'll make it lively enough for yer." The women help on the hospitable intentions of the "herder" by coming to the barrier and putting their arms around the neeks of the bashful and urging them to dance. Every five minutes the music comes to a stop with anawful squawk, and then the women rush their partners into the corners for drinks. That is where the profit of the house comes in. The whole establishment is conducted for what there is in the patronage of the bar. The women get the drinks and at the same time a check. Later in the night the checks are turned in and cashed, and thus the women receive the compensation for their services. With beer at fifteen cents and every youngest child, John, aged two years, died | thing else in proportion the profits of the dance-house business are on a liberal scale.

A degree above the dance-house, not in respectability, but in expensiveness to the visitors, is the variety. Here, too, the doors are open. Across one end of the long, nar row hall is the stage on which the performance begins at 7 in the evening and lasts unshe was attempting to lrive the brute out of til about 3 in the morning, or a little later, if the attendance encourages. The lower part of the house is occupied by beer stables and chairs. Up stairs the gallery is cut up into a great number of little boxes with curtains, to be drawn at pleasure. There is no admission fee to any part of the house. "Patronize the bar" is the principle upon which the place is run. Two sets of women are employed. There are those in long dresses who earry little hand-bags to make change and who visit all parts of the house taking orders for drinks. They are plainer and older than the gaudily and slightly dressed young ladies who furnish the entertainment on the stage and help swell the, orders for drinks by their attentions to the patrons of the place until it is time to go "on" again. To say that the greatest imaginable freedom in speech and in mannerprevails does not express it, for no one, not even acquainted with the variety theatre of the east, can appreciate what the Leadville show off, as well as on, the stage is without seeing it. The performance is a medley of sketches, songs and dances, and the programme introduces "the operatic Patti of America," "the dashing serio-comic ladies," "the people's choice," "Leadville's favorite," "the pleasing song-and-dance specialist," "the pink of perfection," and numerous others. But right in the middle of one of "the latest songs of the day" there will be heard a prodigious thumping in one of the boxes. This is not applause. It only means that some actress, who is playing her part off the stage, has succeeded in persuading the subject of her wiles to buy the beer. A round of beers for a box party is always $2.50. A waitress rushes in the direction from which the thumping comes, and the performance on the stage proceeds. Occasionally there is an uproar in the box, and the stage business is turned to pantomine until the noisy mine can be subdued, and then the voices of the actors are once more distinguishable; but these side-shows attract little attention from the habitues of the place. They are taken as a matter of course. As the night wears on, the atmosphere in the theatre grows hot and stifling. No fresh air is admitted. The industrious fiddlers shed their coats. The waitresses grow tired and sleepy. They drop down in chairs, lean their heads upon the shoulders of "friends," and steal short naps between the calls from the boxes. It is a terrible life, written all over the once fresh faces. "Gentlemen," said a St. Louisan who has grown sons and daughters, "I wouldn't have believed such things as I have witnessed to night were possible if I hadn't seen them with my own eyes. And these poor creatures were once innocent girls."

NEW COLONIZATION SCHEME.

Recommendations That Will Attract Attention-The Terms Granted.

London, Aug. 3 .- The sub-committee on state directed colonization will recommend to the full committee the formation of a colonization board, with imperial and colonial members; that capital be raised by public subscription with interest at 3 per cent. guaranteed by the government for thirty years; that the colonists who receive advances shall pay 4 per cent, after the first year, the security given being a rent charge; and that the colony be expected to give free land, the rent charged to be redeemed by the colonist within thirty years.
