Camping out on a Wonderful Mountain

Top-A Courney That Many Canadian | go. Ladies Would Not Like to Take-Talking About Kashmir - Miss Beatty, M D, ID,

The following extracts are from a letter written by Miss Marion Oliver, M. D., a recent graduate of the Women's medical college of this city :

"Cam at present in the abode of Miss Beatty at Kashmir, India, a house so rudely constructed that a back woods shanty might be called a mansion. Just as in the early days in Canada, so 'tis here. Everybody is on the same level as far as their house is concerned. We have generals, colonels, mayors, even the agent of the Gov.-General, all around us with their families, and all in just such grand palaces as ours.

"This is the way English people in India seek a change instead of going to a fashionable watering place, and certainly it is a much surer way of finding health, for if one can't get strong in this bracing air, one may give up the search. Where are we you begin to wonder. Away on the top of the mountains of Kashmir some ten thousand feet above the sea. Kashmir may be called the Sanitarium of India, though it is only within the last few years that English women have ventured into it, owing to the great difficulty of getting over the Himalayas into it. To me that was by far the pleasantest part of our journey, and I think I may say the same of all our party. We came in regular gipsy fashion, taking a couple of weeks to get over the nearly 160 miles of mount-

"Coolies carried our baggage and provisions; also the children, invalids and weakly ones of our party had to be carried . by coolies in a sort of boat in which one could sit or lie. What magnificent views we got. Great towering snow capped mountains above us, with streams tumbling down their sides, and below us the roaring Jhelum. The road follows the course of the river all the way and is often a thousand feet above it. It seems like hanging in "The valley of Kashmir is very much like some parts of Ontario. When we came in the middle of April the apple and peach trees were in full bloom, and the houses made one think of our finest Canadian spring weather. The houses are rudely constructed, even the palaces, and all the roofs are covered with grass. I saw one roof a perfect mass of bright tulips. Srinagar, the capital of Kashmir, is a city of about 125,000 inhabitants and is an abominably dirty place. The part reserved for English residents is away beyond the native city, and it would be all the better were it a few miles farther away from Srinagar odours. The river Jhelum forms the main street of the city. There is no wuch thing as a wheeled vehicle in all Kashmir. People go to the bazar in boats. We tented for the first three weeks in the part of the city reserved for English visitors. When finding a lovely spot on the side of a lake, the lake celebrated in Moore's Lalla Rookh, we moved our tents to it and remained there. It began to grow sultry and warm, when ten days ago we climbed the mountains to this table land. This will be our last move until we set out on the homeward journey, in about three weeks hence. "Miss Beaty is not yet strong enough for the journey, and will not return before September. Owing to her extreme weakness, we were obliged to make a slow journey even on the railway when coming from In-

"The inhabitants of Kashmir are nearly all Mahommedan, but are ruled by a Hindoo Maharajah, who keeps them in a state of almost slavery. None are allowed to leave the valley without his special permission. He bought the land from the English government for 65 lach of rupees. He compels the people to hand over to him half of all that is grown or manufactured, also half of all cattle or sheep.

"I have been spending my days here over Hindi, and hope I may master enough of it to do something with the patients when get to Indore.'

A COLLECTION OF RELICS.

Venerable Articles at Mr. Johnston's Tonsorial Quarters-Quite Interesting.

Mr. James Johnston, barber, Wellington street, has in his possession some very old articles which have adorned his late mother's home for upwards of half a century. Hang ing in the window of his shop is a candle chandelier, used by his father fifty years ago when he kept a shop on Brock street near the American express company's office. It is made of tin and has six branches extending from a large bowl in the centre. The light, from the candles which this chan delier held, was all that Mr. Johnson used when shaving his customers in the evening. It was recognized as a magnificent article in those days, so much so that on occasions when balls were held it was borrowed to decorate the rooms in which our ancestors tipped the light fantastic toe. James also has a silk pocket handkerchief, of an odd pattern, which is over forty years old, and a gold twenty five cent piece. Mr. Johnson is a descendant of a very long-lived people. His mother died over a week ago at the advanced age of 93 years, 11 months and 14 days. On the day of the funeral (July 31st) Mr. Johnson received a telegram from Utica stating that her brother, Peter Freeman, had just passed to his reward, at the age of 86 years. Mr. Freeman was married fifty-eight years previous, and had at the time of his demise, the suit which he wore at his wedding and which cost him $60. It was his desire that he be burried in this suit, but when the chest, in which it was concealed, was opened the cloth was found to have been eaten by moths and consequently his desire was not complied with. Mr. Johnson's grandmother lived to within six weeks of being one hundred years of age. The family originally came from New Haven, Conn. The venerable articles are valued very highly by Mr. Johnson. It is his intention to leave the chandelier on exhibition in his shop window. It is a great curiosity.

The Barbers and Tailors at it-Very Good Ball Playing Shown.

A base ball match, not remarkable for brilliant features, took place in the Park Nine grounds yesterday in the presence of a large audience. The nines engaged comprised barbers and tailors. When the barbers went to the bat it was evident that they intended to knock the cover off the ball, and made desperate wipes at it. During the first three innings they pounded Keleher for eight runs, while the tailors only obtained three. In the next six innings the barbers made ten runs, while the tailors scored nine. The fielding of the barbers did them infinite credit. A. E. Elmer wore a base ball suit, the only uniform to be seen. WATER WORKS BY-LAW CARRIED BY A SWEEPING MAJORITY.

Anguish Stricken Capitalists Retire Home Under a Heavy Burden-The Electors Declare For Pure Water And Plenty of it-The Way the Figures Came in-The Aldermen in High Feather.

Nearly eight to one ! This is the way the electors condemned the monopolistic water works company. The cabal of stockholders was buried un der an avalanche of votes. Freedom is what the consumers wanted and they get it, thanks to the liberality oftheir friends, the non-consumers.

My, but doesn't the minority look insignificant as you slowly speak out the result.

There were many anxious persons about the yesterday morning. They were fearful of the result of the voting. But along about noon their spirits revived and the old time buoyancy returned, for they found, at the polls, that they were fighting but a phantom opposition. When they met it squarely in the face it melted into thin air. The result was a consummation devoutly to be wished.

For the past five years the question of the purchase of the water works was a live subject. Last year the council, headed by that prince of diplomatists, ex-Mayor Whiting, pluckily tackled it, and driving the water works company into a corner made them affairs in public. Three honorable men acted as judges, and, after fifteen days' calm consideration, decided that the monopoly must be yielded to the city for $120,000.

And the electors by a vote of 884 to 114 yesterday authorized the issuance of bonds to that amount on the credit of the city. RECEIVING THE VOTES.

There was not much excitement over the submission of the by-law. The aldermen were interested, and they worked hard for its acceptance. They were satisfied the people favored the scheme and were bound to see that nothing was left undone to make the declaration at the polls as signal as possible. The mayor was an energetic perclaimed: "You'll kill your horse driving so hard." The mayor quickly replied: "I would rather willingly, kill a half dozen horses than see the by law defeated." For the past month the mayor has been a most indefatigable worker, and much of the victory is due to his personal efforts. He has without a doubt carried out the pledges made at the time of his election.

As soon as five o'clock struck an interested group began forming in front of the Witte other, where the returns were bulletined. St. Lawrence ward was the first heard from, tollowed in a very short time by Victoria ward's figures. . 'The by law is passed, said a bystander and he threw his hat in the air. Another sarcastically exclaimed: "Richardson and Breden and Wilson and McCormack have a wonderful amount of strength in Victoria ward." But there were some who were not so sanguine as to say the by-law was carried before hearing from other outlying wards. Then the Sydenham warders smilingly arrived, and their figures sent the tally up in the two hundreds in favor of the by-law. "Here's Rideau ward!" was the exclamation as the mayor, with a beaming face, rushed up in his chariot and exclaimed "219 to 21" ! The purchase was now a settled fact for Rideau warders were declared to have been willing to puncture the scheme in a decided way, but the style they cut showed the loyalty of the electors. We hope the sweeping vote there will not be forgotten when the water works extension becomes a certainty. But we forget the mayor. He was cheerful and swung his hat in the air as he viewed the bulletin board. Then he suddenly remarked "Have I beaten Jim Thompson? If haven't he will do tall blowing." Ontario ward added its quota to the increasing majority, and Cataraqui ward inflated the thing to nearly 600 of a majority. Then two cab loads of enthusiastic Frontenacers appeared, and when they reported it was discovered that a bouncing majority of 770 had been secured. The company's coat tails trailed in the dust and the city corporation tramped on them as high as the waist band.

THE FIGURES GIVEN.

The following was the vote	cast:

Majority for.... Had two more ballots been cast the total vote would have been one thousand. About seven hundred votes were unpolled. There was a very large number of electors away from the city. As soon as the result was made known the mayor was asked what would be the next step. He said it would be premature to antember 1st." Another gentleman made the ample water could be provided on the upper levels for domestic and fire purposes. It was thought to build a tower at the reservoir and to extend the supply pipe into the lake would cost $30,000, while larger mains and better pumping apparatus would increase the cost to $50,000. Before any such work is done a by-law will have to be submitted to the people for money to make the improvements. Ex-Mayor Whiting was heartily greeted last night. Many said that to him the successful carrying out of a long desired scheme was largely due. A city engineer will now be appointed and the estimates will be brought down minus any big water works fees. It is probable that the water works can be controlled by a committee of the council. If commissioners are needed they will have to be annually elected. The city solicitor will, of course, act in a similar capacity in water works

Yesterday afternoon, in Cape Vincent, Miss Amanda Sackett Ainsworth was married to D. D. Otis, of New York. The ceremony occurred in St. John's church, which was handsomely decorated. Deputy Sheriff Galpin arrived in Chicago on Tuesday from Kingston, having in charge two of the seamen from the schr. Edward Blake, J. M. Yorsson and Paul Swanson. The men were tired from their trip, and were taken at once to a hotel, where they remained close over night. Sheriff Matson visited and talked with them. He said he found them to be fairly intelligent men, who would be able to tell a clear story on the witness stand. The sheriff said he was convinced that the men had nothing to conceal. The men were at the sheriff's office yesterday to tell their story more fully.

Wasted All Its Sweetness.

The effect of the opposition manifesto in the water works election may be judged by a slight inquiry into figures. Only 114 votes were cast against the by-law. The six protest signers control in their own families, and through their privilege as property holders of voting in every ward, over fifty votes; other shareholders in the works and its officials number probably thirty, leaving thirty four as the real expression of independent public opinion. As there are that many who would be in the opposition in any question, the effect of the manifesto and the influence of its signers is not a visible quantity.
