"WE ARE WITNESSES."

whole truth, and nothing but the truth, With what you have seen with your own eyes, and from what you have heard with your own cars, is there power in this Gospel to give calmness and triumph in the last exigency! The response comes from all sides, from young, and old, and middle aged: "We are witnesses!"

You see, my friends, I have not put before you an abstraction, or a chimera, or anything like guess work. I present you affidavits of the best men and women, living and dead. Two witnesses in court will establish a fact. Here are not two witnesses but thousands of witnesses—on earth millions of witnesses, and in heaven a great multitude of witnesses that no man can number, testifying that there is power in this religion to convert the soul, to give comfort in trouble, and to afford composure in the last hour. If ten men should come to you when you are sick with appalling sickness, and say they had the same sickness, and took certain medicine, and it cured them, you would probably take it. Now, suppose ten other men should came up and say: "We don't believe there is anything in that medicine." "Well," I say, "have you ever tried it?" "No. I never tried it, but don't believe there is anything in it." Of course you discredit their testimony. The skeptic may come and say: "There is no power in your religion!" "Have you ever tried it?" "No, no." "Then, avaunt!" Let me take the testimony of the million; of souls that have been converted to God and comforted in trial and solaced in the last hour. We will take their testimony as they cry: "We are witnesses!"

Some time ago Professor Henry, of Washington, discovered a new star, and the tidings sped by submarine telegraph, and all the observatories of Europe were watching for that new star. Oh, hearer, locking out through the darkness of your soul, canst thou see a bright light beaming on thee? "Where?" you say, "where? How can I find it?" Look along by the line of the cross of the Son of God. Do you not see ft trembling with all tenderness and beaming with all hope! It is the Star of Bethlehem.

Deep horror then my vitals froze, Death struck, I ceased the tide to stem,

When suddenly a star arose-It was the Star of Bethlehem

Oh, hearer, get your eye on it. It is easier for you now to become Christians than it is to stay away from Christ and heaven. When Mme. Sontag began her musical career she was hissed off the stage at Vienna by the riends of her rival, Amelia Steininger, who had already begun to decline through her dissipation. Years passed on, and one day Mme. Sontag, in her glory, was riding through the streets of Berlin, when she saw a little child leading a blind woman, and she said: "Come here, my little child, come here. Who is that you are leading by the hand?" And the little child replied: "That's my mother; that's Amelia Steininger. She used to be a great singer, but she lost her voice, and she cried so much about it that she lost her eyesight." "Give my love to her," said Mme. Sontag, "and tell her an old acquaintance will call on her this afternoon."

The next week in Berlin a vast assemblage gathered at a benefit for that poor blind woman, and it was said that Mme. Sontag sang that night as she had never sung before. And she took a skilled occulist, who in vain tried to give eyesight to the poor blind woman. Until the day of Amelia Steininger's death Mme. Sontag took care of her and her daughter after her. That was what the queen of song did for her enemy.

But, oh! hear a more thrilling story still. Blind, immortal, poor and lost-thou who, when the world and Christ were rivals for thy heart, didst hiss thy Lord away-Christ comes now to give thee sight, to give thee a home, to give thee heaven. With more than a Sontag's generosity he comes now to meet your need. With more than a Sontag's music he comes to plead for thy deliverance.

The Government and Geological Survey. The report of the government geological survey for the first six months of 1887 is an exhibit that reflects great credit on the bureau. It shows, also, how close a connection purely scientific work has with the economical prosperity and the agricultural, mineral and commercial development of the country. The survey has found, for instance, large deposits of green sand and marl along the North Carolina coa., that may, if properly applied, turn much of the barren land in that state into a veritable garden. In northern Michigan and Minnesota, its investigations may be relied upon to direct intelligently the prospecting for iron and for gold which is in course of prosecution. Further west, the survey has shown the existence of an important field of coal, natural gas and petroleum in Montana, while in California the extent and quality of the quicksilver deposits have been fully determined. These are important contributions to the actual cash welfare of the country, if such a phrase may be permitted. In strictly scientific circles all over the world, it is pleasant to know that our "reports" are placed in the front rank by specialists.—The Epoch.

To Stop the "Nose Bleed." "Yes, sir," said Johnny. "Do you know that by repeating a verse of Scripture to a man suffering from nose bleed, that the blook will stop flowing right off?" The listener expressed his incredulity very forcibly.

"I tell you it's so. I have stopped the nose bleed on lots of persons that way." "What is the verse?"

"Oh, it must be communicated by a man to a woman and then by a woman to a man alternately." "Very well; tell Mrs. M- and the she can tell me." "No, that won't do. It must be done out of the hearing of all but the two parties." "Very well; I will go out and then you can tell Mrs. M-. Then she can come out and whisper it to me." "That won't do either. The verse must not be given to anybody that asks for it." "Johnny, I'm afraid you're superstitious."

"Maybe, but the verse will stop nose bleed every time."-New Orleans Immes-Democrat.

The Secret of Success.

The secret of getting the most out of men, of getting out of them more than their wages, of securing a service which is never paid for, because it cannot be estimated in wages, is to make them the sharers of the enthusiasm which you feel yourself, and make them feel not only that they are well paid for their services, but that they are thoroughly appreciated for their best work. If you tough a man always on his best side, sooner or later you make this best side the equivelent of the whole man, and then it is comparatively easy to keep him at his best. This is the secret of the success of individual men in great enterprises. They have not only thought large themselves, but have made other men wise co-operators with them, and used their joint labors in reaching a single result.—Boston thirty-eight first class torpedo boats, thirty-

They were something that demanded courage

The largest war ships were armed with 120

guns, and those in the broadsides were 32

an enormous height above the water. An hour of close fighting would unavoidably rid-

the men who served their guns and the officers who commanded them have said if any one had hinted that ships could be protected by armor plating! They would have hooted at him. Brave Englishmen were they, but not clairvoyant as to the future. And how did they maneuver? By getting their own ship
