"Opifer per Orbem Dicor."

TOOK HIS ADVICE.

From the Regina Leader we learn that Lord Salisbury has taken the course Mr. Davin in his speech on home rule said should be taken, and he has abandoned the course Mr. Davin condemned. The connection between the tendering of Mr. Davin's advice and his departure for England, is seen quite plainly in the light of recent events.

NO DICTATION, PLEASE.

The council cannot refuse to provide the money necessary to meet the expenses of school elections, held other than at the same time as the municipal elections. It is no business of the council how the school board conducts its business, and to what extent it acts antagonistic to public sentiment. The law says the council shall levy a rate sufficient to meet the requirements of the board, and the trustees would be strange men indeed if they permitted the aldermen to dictate to them what they shall not do. At the same time it may be remarked that the trustees have not met public expectation in regard to the election matter, that the majority of the people believe it would be more economical and tend to an increased interest in educational questions if the selection of trustees and aldermen were made on the one day. The experiment was worth the trial, and the legislature must have thought well of it when it amended the school act to admit of the same.

WORK OF THE PRESS.

It is a compliment to the press that it is again the means of drawing attention to one of the greatest scandals of the times, and of forcing the government to take steps towards its suppression. Broadbent has, in his New York correspondence, told of the shocking treatment accorded to a young Norwegian woman, who, for a social sin, was under a cloud, and coming to America desired to join her indiscreet lover, and, by a life of good work, atone for the past. The commissioners of emigration wanted to send her back to Norway, and would have done so but for the interference of the New York World, which had the case investigated and with results disastrous to the commissioners. These men, by way of revenge, then showed the World reporters great discourtesy, and they in turn gave the affairs of castle garden such an overhauling—showing that the poor emigrants were imposed upon in every shape, robbed, and even criminally used—that the secretary of the treasury ordered the enquiry, and it is now progressing. The indication is that the World will have another triumph, and one by which journalism will be benefitted and honoured.

THE WHEAT CROP.

The indications show a more than average European crop, and the United States will have a surplus of wheat for export amounting to say 120,000,000 bushels, and Australia 1,000,000 bushels more than last year. India's large surplus of last year will be reduced by some 20,000,000 this year, but this will not affect the general plenty. The United Kingdom is the principal purchaser, and draws supplies largely from North America. During the first six months of the current year, of 48,000,000 bushels imported there two-thirds came from the United States alone, and something more than one-eighth from India. A noteworthy feature is the higher value of American wheat, which averaged 5c. per bushel above that from Russia, and 8c. per bushel above that of India in the English market. America is also the steadiest source of supply, being less affected on the whole by drought than India or Russia. The news will be welcomed by those who feared that India would outbid America in the supply of wheat. In quantity, in quality, and in value of its production, it is behind this continent this year.

COURTS WON'T AFFECT IT.

The Week, discussing the disturbance existing in the North-West, and originating out of the Red River Valley railway construction, gives an opinion similar to that expressed by the Whig, and to the effect that an adverse court decision will not check the Manitobans. The Norquay government's action, in carrying the case before the privy council, is wise and praiseworthy, in that it shows a desire for the approval of the crown, but The Week thinks it is exceedingly doubtful if the crown's disapproval, presupposing the expression of an opinion, which is not at all certain, would prevail to move the people from their present attitude one inch. Decisions of the privy council form admirable deniers resorts for provincial and dominion disputants in probably ninety-nine cases out of a hundred, but where they clash with the direct interests of an entire provincial population, acting in accordance with what they believe to be both their moral and their legal rights, we are afraid that they would represent opinion and authority alike foreign and impotent. Pending the decision and events that follow it, about the only conclusion that can be drawn from the unfortunate state of things in Manitoba is that the government cannot be congratulated upon the policy that made it possible. So say we all.

ROMANCE IN REAL LIFE.

The Part Love Played in an Albany Merchant's Life—Happy at Last.

Albany Journal. Thirty-five years ago Mr. Barrington Lodge, of this city, was a resident of St. John's, N.F. Another resident of the same city was Miss Christine Graham, a belle in society. Foremost among her suitors were Mr. Lodge and Mr. Strachan. The pretty Christie seemed to favour Lodge, but he was poor. Realizing that he could not furnish the young lady with a home befitting her station he did not press his suit, and the result was that Miss Christie was married to Mr. Strachan. Mr. Lodge emigrated to this city and started in the knit-goods business as a clerk. He soon became a member of the firm of Lodge, Sheldon & Co., next of Lodge, Gregory & Co., next Lodge, Wilkins & Co., and B. Lodge & Co.

Although he still held in remembrance his early love he deemed her lost to him, and some years ago married Miss Anna Scott, and established himself in a handsome residence on Hill place. Their domestic happiness was unmarred until the death of his wife, two years ago. Meanwhile Mr. and Mrs. Strachan had removed to Ballarat, Australia, where Mr. Strachan engaged in business. He accumulated a large fortune and died a few years ago.

About a year ago Mrs. Strachan learned from her brother in Newfoundland where Mr. Lodge was located, and that he was alone in the world. The old love had not yet died out of her heart. She wrote to him suggesting that if the recollection of the past still warmed his heart she would like to hear from him. He answered the letter and a correspondence ensued, in the course of which he elicited an expression of her desire to come on and see him and marry him. He wrote back that if she was ready to accept the old man she could come on and he would meet her at Buffalo.

She did not hesitate, but arranging her affairs, started July 1st on the journey of ten thousand miles. She came by way of Auckland, New Zealand, Sydney, and the Sandwich Islands to San Francisco by steamer, and thence by rail to Buffalo, where she arrived on Tuesday and found Mr. Lodge in waiting. He found her changed, it is true. Thirty-five years effect many changes, but it was into a matronly, well-preserved woman, who still retained a generous proportion of the beauty possessed by her in her girlhood. In him she found a still active and vigorous man, with clear brown eyes, an erect figure, and the flush of health on his cheek. They were at once married, went to Niagara Falls for a day or two, and yesterday came to Albany to reside in Mr. Lodge's elegant residence on Hall place.

SCOTT'S WOMAN IDENTIFIED.

A Reporter Has an Interview With Her—Afterwards She is Arrested.

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—Mrs. B. Roberts, described in Teller Scott's affidavit, charging her with receiving from him $10,000 of the money stolen from the Manhattan company's bank, while Lawyer Duna received and appropriated the remainder, $140,000, was found at No. 105 West thirty-eighth street. The reporter was shown into a handsomely furnished parlor and saw a pretty woman, about thirty years of age. A very slight English accent was noticeable, which she said she had inherited from her mother. To the reporter's questions she said, with apparent surprise: "You are the first to tell me what Scott has stated in his affidavit. I was informed at breakfast that there was something in the papers about me, but had not had time to read what it was. I never use the name of 'Fanny' when speaking or writing of myself, but usually sign 'Mrs. J. R. Roberts.' I am a widow, having some means, and occupy this house with my colored man and maid servants. My name is Fanny S. Roberts, and I suppose that I am the person alluded to in the affidavit you have read to me. Of course such a publication as this is not pleasant, but I have no fear of facing the trouble it may arise. I never heard until to-day of Richard S. Scott, and certainly could not have been friendly with him. No, it is not true that I received $10,000 from Scott, or from any man by that or any other name."

Later it was learned that Mrs. Roberts had been arrested and taken to Ludlow street jail.

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—Mrs. Roberts has not yet been sent to gaol, though guarded by the police at her residence. Her counsel says she will not be sent to gaol, as bail will be forthcoming.

ROWDYISM IN PARIS.

The Vulgar Crowd Waiting For the Executioner of Pranzini.

PARIS, Aug. 25.—The whole interest of Paris at present is absorbed by Franzini. Night after night the Place de la Roquette is crowded by thousands of howling, blaspheming vagabonds, mingled with whom are numbers of well-dressed, relatively respectable people, hungry to see the execution of the Rue Montaigne murderer. The execution may take place at any moment, unless Pranzini manages to delay it by making his promised revelations. Many people, notably Maitre Demange, his defender, still believe firmly in Pranzini's innocence of the crime. Their theory is that he was only an accomplice, the chief criminal walking about unmolested. Anyhow the crowd now seething and foam about the gates of La Roquette are in such an unsatisfied mood that unless somebody be guillotined there will be riots. Voices are shouting in chorus: C'est Pranzini-zini-zini. C'est Pranzini qu'il nous faut. Oh! oh! oh! oh!

This outlandish chant, echoed and re-echoed by wine-soaked throats, nightly arouses Pranzini from his last slumbers. His keepers tell him that it is only an emette, and the wretched man goes to sleep again.

"MY QUEEN."

The moonlight falls upon the sea, While my barque rides over wave, The heavens are bright with stars of night, And my crew are firm and brave.

They sing Auld Scotia's bonnie songs, O' piprock wild and sweet, While Erin's woes an England's rose Make my heart with devotion beat.

For thee, my bonnie dark eyed queen, I'll roam the seas no more; But at thy side, while life doth glide, I'll stay until life is o'er.
