MARK TWAIN'S YOUTH.

HOW HE CAME TO BE A PILOT ON THE MISSISSIPPI.

A Chat with the Veteran Under Whom Clemens Learned the Crooks and Shallows of the Great River-First Literary Work.

Capt. Horace Bixby, of the magnificent steamer City of Baton Rouge, is the most popular man on southern waters. Capt. Bixby is a well preserved relic of the golden age of the river, and has been a constant student of currents and chutes for forty years. Horace Bixby is the man who taught Mark Twain how to steer a steamboat, and the success of his whilom cub has reflected considerable glory on the tutor. That was away back in the '50s, when Bixby was a pilot, and after all these years he is now of the opinion that a pilot is a bigger man than a captain any day, and especially on a dark night in a tight place. Capt. Bixby is now 61 years of age, and he says: "I am just nine and a half years older that Sam Clemens," When in a reminiscent mood the other day he said: "It was quite remarkable how Sam Clemens happened to become a pilot. He has written a great deal about it himself, but I don't believe he ever told it all. It was in the spring of '57. I was then running regularly between St. Louis and New Orleans and occasionally doing an outside job on the Ohio river from Cincinnati to New Orleans. was on one of these outside trips that I first met Clemens. I was taking the Paul Jones down from Cincinnati, and he was a passenger on board. In those times the pilot house was a great loafing place for passengers and pilots out of work. They came in, spit all over the wheel, swapped lies, and then left the pilot on duty to slosh around in the debris. I didn't like it a bit, and I was mighty short with all passengers who attempted to talk with me. One morning when the boat reached Island No. 85 in the Mississippi river, and we were booming along at a good gait, a young man walked into the pilot house, and after watching me for a few minutes, said 'G-o-o-d m-o-r-n-i-n-g,' in a drawing manner."

"I said 'good morning' mighty sharp, thinking it would freeze him out. But it didn't. He said:

" 'D-o-n-'t y-o-u w-a-n-t a b-o-y t-o l-e-a-r-n t-h-e r-i-v-e-r! "'No; don't want any boy to learn the river. What are you pulling your words that way for?

"I d-o-n-'t k-n-o-w, y-o-u w-i-l-l h-a-v-e t-o a-s-k m-y m-o-t-h-e-r. S-h-e d-o-e-s t-h-e s-a-m-e t-h-i-n-g. "I thought he was chaffling me when he said that and I looked up, but his face was just as sober as a preacher's. He then asked me if I knew the Bowens who were on the river. I told him that I did and worked with one of them in 1853. He told me that the Bowens lived next door to his father, Judge Clemens, of Hannibal, Mo. In his drawling way he told me of his plans. He had learned printing at Hannibal on his brother's paper, but it did not agree with him, and be was going to South America for his health. He liked the river, however, and would abandon his projected invasion of South America for an opportunity to become

"'There is only one thing that would induce me to teach you the river,' said I.

" 'W-h-a-t-'s t-h-a-t?" he asked.

" 'Money,' said I.

" 'Mone-y?' he echoed. "'That's just it,' I answered.

a pilot,

"'H-o-w m-u-c-h?' he gasped. "'Five hundred dollars,' I said.

"'We-ll, I ai-n't go-t that mu-ch,' said he. "'Then you better get it if you want to learn the river,' I replied.

"'I've go-t e-i-g-h-t l-o-t-s up in K-e-o-k-u-k, I-owa, but I d-on't know w-hat they wo-uld bring, an' I'-ve go-t 2,000 acres of l-and in Ten-ness-ee that I can get twenty-five cents an acre for,' said he summing up his assets. We talked for some time and he impressed me very favorably. It was finally agreed that he was to pay me $100 down and $75 every six months until the debt was paid. I told him that he would have to provide his own clothes and board while in port. On the river he would receive his board and lodging free. He started in as a cub on the Aleck Scott and he learned rapidly. He was then just past 21, and rather eccentric. He always had writing paper and pencil around the pilot house, and was eternally scribbling away at something. I seldom ever tried to investigate the mysteries of his manuscript, but I soon turned his talent to good account. In those days pilots made out reports of the condition of the channel, and Clemens at once developed into a brilliant and picturesque river reporter. His reports were humorous and contained all the information, and were frequently copied into the papers just as he wrote them. This, I think, was the first public writing that he did, except, perhaps, some squibs for the Hannibal paper. He was a good boy, not addicted to dissipation, and obeyed orders. He hated suspenders, and used to enjoy himself in very loose clothes, with his hair roached back. We steered together on many trips, and then he changed around and in two years received a license that made him a full fledged pilot. His first boat was the Alonzo Child, under Capt. De Haven, and he kept turning the wheel until the war broke out. His boat was then in the south, and he piloted three months for the Confederacy. Then he got through the lines and went home, but after a short stay at Hannibal he went as a volunteer for three months in the army of Gen. Sterling Price, the Missouri Confederate. He fought for the Confederacy three more months on land and then retreated in good order, with his right resting on St. Louis. His brother, Orrin Clemens, was at that time nominated secretary of the territory of Nevada, and Sam accompanied him west. Everybody knows the

Three years ago Clemens accompanied Capt. Bixby down the river, and the old stosies and glories were revived. The result of the trip was the book "Old Times on the Mississippi."-St. Louis Cor. Chicago Tribune.

Roulette Players' Ingenuity.

A large sum was won years ago by a smal company of players in the following manner: An ingenious mechanic having come to the conclusion that it was impossible to maintain a cylinder in such perfect working order that it should not tend a little to one side or another, and thus favor certain numbers more than others, haunted the rooms for months, and was rewarded by finding that his conclusions were right, and that certain numbers, at certain tables, appeared in the registers he kept with undue frequency. These numbers the members of his company set to work to back, and with such success that they had won very largely indeed before the proprietors discovered their secret. It is said that after a quarrel among themselves, one of the party gave information as to their mode of procedure; but, be this as it may, the cylinder of every roulette board is now removed and tested after each day's play, and no more money is to be made in the manner described - Charles C. Welman in The Cosmopolitan.

It is not generally known that in Ethiopia a people numbering about 200,000 have the Old Testament in Ethiopic version and stil adhere strictly to the Mosaic ceremonies and laws. They are the children of Hebrew immigrants who in the time of the great dispersion settled in Abyssinia and married wives of that nation.

Heels on the shoes first originated with the Persians. A person of low stature was regarded as an object of contempt, and therefore the heel was the happy thought of some one of the unfortunates, thus providing by art that which nature denied. But, as in modern fashions, it was carried to excess, persons who were already too tall to look well adopting them because they were the

They have had the jubilee fever very strong in New Zealand. The Herald of that colony contains abundant evidence of the fact. Here is one advertisement: "Wanted-Two jubilee ladies want two jubilee husbands. Apply 25 Queen street." Here is another: "Wanted-Jubilee wives, husbands, housemaids, waitresses, housekeepers, barmaids, and general servants can be had for the asking. A. McLeod, 25 Queen street."

For the first time in many years cabin passengers on an ocean steamship were landed recently at Castle Garden. They came in on the Chateau Margaux from Bordeaux and were in a hurry to get ashore. As there is a young army of customs inspectors stationed in the Garden they were accommodated. They didn't seem to mind the close proximity of their laces and good clothes to the soiled immigrants, in fact some seemed to enjoy the curious scene.

SOME LARGE STORIES.

A man in Putnam county, Ga., has finger nails over two inches in length.

Zachariah Shelton, who resides in Huntington Center, Conn., and is 79 years old, has an attack of whooping cough. F. O. Carpenter, of Boston, is said to have climbed twenty-seven mountains in New Hampshire in thirty days. He belongs to the Young Men's Christian association.

Martin Dexheimer, of Hillsdale, N. Y., has a pig that is something of a porker. Although not quite 2 years old, the pig in question weighs 903 pounds.

A raft is being towed down Lake Huron to Bay City which contains about 8,000,000 feet of timber, and is valued at nearly $100,000. When they speak of a raft of anything up north they mean a job lot.

A woman in Coweta county, Ga., picked a cabbage out of her garden the other day, and upon slicing it, preparatory to cooking, found a bird's egg imbedded in the vegetable. Some bird had made a nest in the cabbage.

The two oldest trees in the world are supposed to be the one in Calaveras county, Cal., that is believed to be 2,565 years old, and the cypress of Somma, in Lombardy, Italy, that is 1,911 years old or planted forty-two years before Christ.

Boston has a knife grinder, not needy particularly, but exceedingly muscular, so that he is renowned for his strength. One of his performances, as handed down by admirers, was picking up a small car horse at the Lenox street stables and carrying him bodily into the car house,

A San Diego, Cal., citizen who is "above suspicion" has a big grape vine, of which he says: "Last year I helped pick and weigh 1,143 pounds of fruit from that vine. I saw these grapes pressed into 123 gallons of wine by a man 83 years of age, and the most of the product was retailed to medical men here at $2 per gallon."

Town Clerk Whittaker, of Salem, Ills., has a young Leghorn rooster that has a fine ear for music. When Miss Whittaker seats herself at the piano to play he hurries into the room through the door or window, flies upon the instrument, and, after looking at the keys for a short time, hops upon them and pounds out notes that seem to fill kim with delight.

A San Francisco newspaper says that a pet chipmunk in that city hurt its foot so that the flesh dropped off and left the bone exposed. Thereupon the little fellow bit off or amputated the foot at what would correspond to the wrist joint. In the course of a few days the bone still remained uncovered, because no provision had been made for a flap of the flesh to cover it. The chipmunk then, with his nose, turned back the flesh and bit off a piece of the bone above the end of the flesh so that it projected beyond the bone. In two weeks it had healed up and the result i a perfect stump.
