WOMAN'S OPPORTUNITY.

And at that moment there came from among the leaves, skipping up the flowery paths and across the sparkling waters, a very bright and sparkling group; and when I saw their step I knew it, and when I heard their voices I thought I knew them; but their apparel was so different from anything I had ever seen, I bowed, a stranger to strangers. But after awhile, when they clapped their hands and shouted, "Welcome! welcome!" the mystery was solved, and I saw that time had passed, and that eternity had come, and that God had gathered us up into a higher home; and I said, "Are we all here?" and the voice of innumerable generations answered, "All here;" and while tears of gladness were raining down our cheeks, and the branches of the Lebanon cedars were clapping their hands, and the towers of the great city were chiming their welcome, we began to laugh, and sing, and leap, and shout: "Home! Home! Home!"

Then I felt a child's hand on my face and it woke me. The children wanted to play Children always want to play more.

The Gypsies' Custom of Visiting.

"Visiting" is in great favor with them. When two or more camps are contiguous this is kept up unceasingly; in the winter quarters it is constant; and I have known families and bands travel from New Braunfels, Tex., to Pembroke, Me., more than 2,500 miles by road, to "visit" another band, comprising relatives and a few friends who had but recently landed in this country from England. "Pretty George," his mother and two sisters, over there in the handsome wagon nearest the brook, live in Ohio and own several farms there. Brewer is a land owner in southern Indiana. Both these and their famlies are visiting "Uncle Job," who is very rich and lives in Vermont. Last year the affair was reversed and "Uncle Job," with his large family and splendid wagons, traversed the pleasant roadsides of Ohio, while his camp is daily visited by scores of wealthy Gypsies from Boston, One family, the Coopers, the rich horse traders of East Somerville, Boston, have two fine houses alongside their stables, and the entertainment here at the camp is returned there in what would be pretty comfortable style for anybody. must not be imagined that the Romany are

The Oldest Newspaper. It is generally believed that The Times of London and The Gazette de France of Paris are the oldest papers in existence, but this appears to be a mistake. The honor belongs to the Chinese, who possess a journal started nearly 1,000 years ago. Its name is The King Pan. It was founded, says a learned bibliophist, in the year 911 of the Christian era. At first it was published at irregular periods, but in 1361 it became a weekly. In 1804 it underwent another transformation, and appeared daily. It costs a halfpenny, and issues three editions. The morning edition, printed on yellow paper, is devoted to commerce; the noon edition, printed on white paper, contains official acts and miscellaneous news, while the evening edition, printed on red paper, is taken up with political information and leading articles. It is edited by six members of the Academy of Science, and the total sale of the three editions is 14,000 copies. -Pall Mall Gazette.

Timber Supply of the Country.

Notwithstanding the great draw upon the wood reserves of the country, there is no danger of exhaustion at present. New England is by no means denuded of its timber. The great northwestern pineries are comparatively unexhausted. There is also a vigorous second growth of white pine in New England, where the forests are already yielding between 200,000,000 and 300,000,000 feet of timber annually. Southern pine, although stripped from the banks of the streams flowing into the Atlantic, is practically untouched in the gulf states, especially those bordering on the Mississippi. The hard wood forests of the Mississippi basin are still prolific. In Michigan, particularly the northern peninsula, hard wood is plentiful, maple especially. In the Pacific coast region the great forests of fir are practically intact. The forest capacity of the country is vast. Strange to say, the decimating element of most potence is fire, and not the axes of mercenary timber speculators.—Boston Bulletin.

A Synonym for Man.

Is "insect" a good synonym for man? The poets think it is, but I confess I do not agree with them. Not because the word is itself absurd as applied to creatures with solidly continuous bodies like men and women (for poetry does not of necessity concern itself with the real meanings of words), but because I am no pessimist, and think much too well of my kind to allow that human beings are either reptiles, vermin or insects. Wha "vermin" are I do not know. In western America the red Indians are called vermin by the blackguard whites. In Australia "wild horses" are vermin, so on the continent are wolves; in our English game preserves so are hawks, owls, jays and weasels. Professional "vermin" killers mean by the term moles and rats. Patent "vermin" killing powders and pastes are directed against blackbeetles and crickets. In hospitals "vermin" means lice. So that anything between a red Indian and a louse may be "vermin."-Gentleman's Magazine.

Lord Eldon and the Decalogue.

You will perhaps be surprised to hear that I was first brought into notice on the northern circuit by breaking the Ten Commandments. I was counsel in a cause, the fate of which depended on our being able to make out who was the founder of an ancient chapel in the neighborhood. I went to view it. There was nothing to be observed which gave any indication of its date or history. However, I observed that the Ten Commandments were written on some old plaster which, from its position, I conjectured might cover an arch. Acting on this, I bribed the clerk with ten shillings to allow me to chip away a part of the plaster, and after two or three attempts I found the keystone of an arch, on which were engraved the arms of an ancestor of one of the parties. This evidence decided the cause, and I ever afterwards had reason to remember with some satisfaction having broken the Commandments.—Detroit Free Press.

Advice to Mothers.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to the taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhoea, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup, and take no other tative at Washington from July 4, 1861, to March 3, 1863, and was twice afterward elected to the same distinction, serving in the Forty-first and Forty-second congresses. His third term as representative expired March 3, 1873. The day following he took his seat as United States senator from California. Mr. Sargent was a man of strong and admirable character and a fervent Republican. His name was prominently mentioned in connection with the secretaryship of the interior when President Arthur's cabinet was made up. He was appointed envoy extraordinary to Germany, March 2, 1882, and he declined the Russian mission in 1884. He was unpopular at Berlin on account of his views on the "great American hog question."

THE INDIAN TROUBLE.

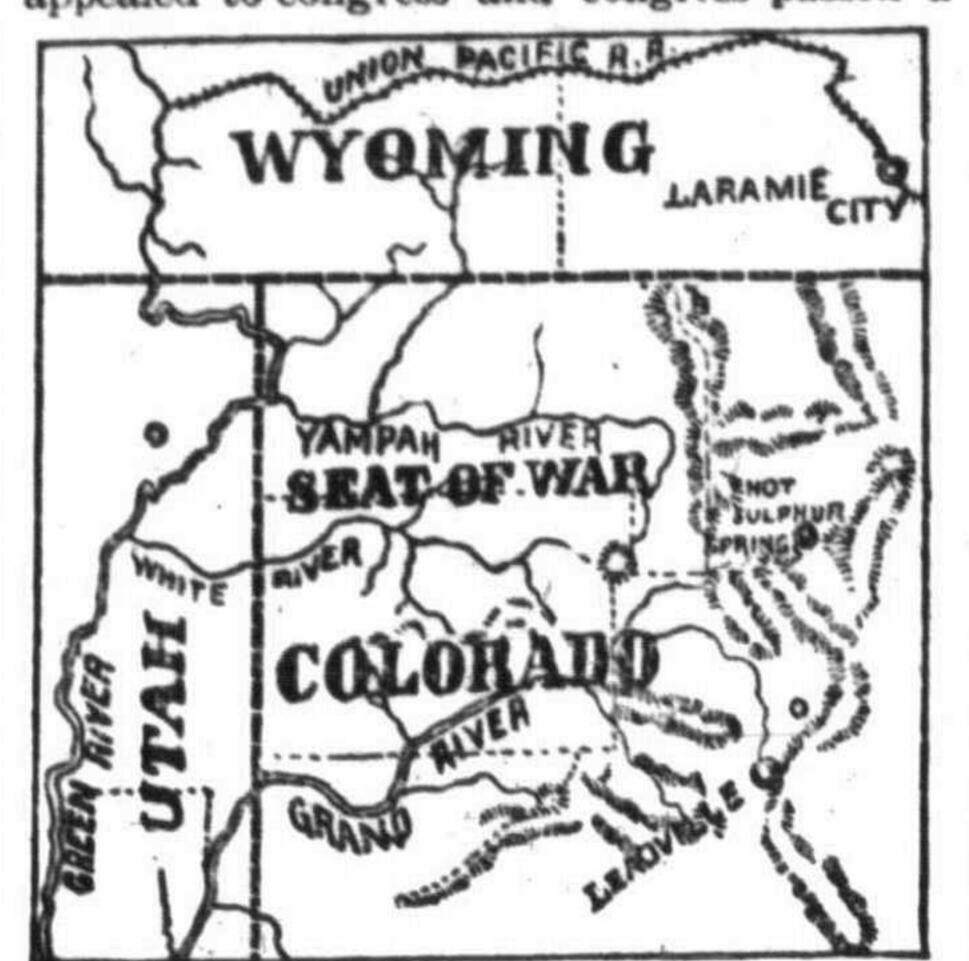

Something About Colorow, the Chief of

of the Utes. The noble red man does not seem to be satisfled with the rapidity of the processes of extermination of himself that are constantly and relentlessly at work. So he has decided to have another war with the whites. That UTE TYPES. is, old Colorow, the Ute chief, now the most talked about of all the Indians, has come to that decision, hence the disturbances in the White river region of Colorado. We present a map of the seat of the war and a cut showing the type of the Utes. The present trouble grows out of the dissatisfaction felt by many of the Utes with the settlement of the difficulties several years ago. Prior to 1879 a hue and cry was raised by Colorado settlers against the Utes, who then held some of the finest, lands west of the mountains. They wanted the land and wanted to oust the Utes at any cost, so they appealed to congress and congress passed a bill providing for a treaty. A commission was sent out. The Utes were given choice of certain lands in southern Utah, and as a bonus to induce them to accept the situation were granted certain annuities.

Colorow, who is big, fat and "sassy," was one of the first of the Utes to express dissatis faction with the effort to deprive them of their rich lands. The Utes were, however, finally removed. Driven from their fine lands at the point of the bayonet, they settled in Utah, and upon an arid desert, the lava bed tract; Colorow resisted all the time. He would not stay in Utah, but returned to western Colorado with sixty braves and their families. He used to go to the agency, however, when the annuities were distributed and claim his

Since 1880 Colorow has been adding to his following from the dissatisfied Utes of different tribes. He took part in the frightful Meeker massacre at the White River Agency. Among his associates was Capt. Jack, who, when a prisoner, was ordered to leave his tent, and upon his refusal was blown out of the tent and out of existence at the same time with a mountain howitzer. Colorow used to visit Denver often, and on one occasion went to Governor McCook's office and became rather insolent. Governor McCook solved the Indian question right there. He kicked Colorow out of his office and down a flight of stairs into the street, introducing a style of warfare with which the huge savage was not familiar.

THE ORIGINAL AND ONLY GENUINE.

ADVICE TO INVALIDS-If you wish to obtain quiet, refreshing sleep, free from headache relief from pain and anguish to calm and assuage the weary achings of protracted disease, invigorating the nervous media, and regulate the circulating systems of the body, you will provide yourself with that marvellous remedy discovered by Dr. J. Collis Browne (late Army Medical Staff) to which he gave the name of CHLORODYNE, and which is admitted by the profession to be the most wonderful and valuable remedy ever discovered.

From Symnes & Co., Pharmaceutical Chemists, Medical Hail, Simla, Jan. 5, 1880. To J. T. Davenport, Esq., 33 Great Russell Street, Bloomsbury, London. Dear Sir,-We embrace this opportunity of congratulating you upon the wide-spread reputation this justly esteemed medicine, Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne, has earned for itself, not only in Hindostan, but all over the East. As a remedy of general utility we must question whether a better is imported into the country, and we shall be glad to hear of its finding a place in every Anglo-Indian home. other brands, we are happy to say, are now relegated to the native bazaars, and judging from their sale, we fancy that their sojourn there will be but evanescent. We could multiply instances "ad infinitum" of the extraordinary efficacy of Dr. Collis Brownes Chlorodyne in Diarrhosa and Dysentery, Spasms, Cramps, Neuralgia, the Vomiting of Pregnancy, and as a general sedative, that have occurred under our personal observation during many years. In Cholera, Diarrhoea, and even in the more terrible forms of Cholera itself, we have witnessed its surprisingly controlling power. We have never used any other form of this medicine than Collis Browne's, from a firm conviction that it is decidedly the best, and also from a sense of duty we owe to the profession and the public, as we are of the opinion that the substitution of of any other than Collis Browne's is a DELIBERATE BREACH OF FAITH ON THE PART OF THE CHEMIST, TO PRESCRIBER AND PATIENT ALIKE. We are, Sir, faithfully yours, Symes & Co., Members of the Pharmacy Society of Great Britain. His Excellency the Viceroy's Chemists.
