" Opifer per Orbem Dicor."

A DISGRACE TO CANADA.

The brutal assault of a mob, in Quebec, upon the Salvation army suggests two thoughts: (1) That the soldiers are indiscret in courting the attack, and (2) that the police of the ancient city are either unwilling or incompetent to deal with the rowdy element. It is the peculiar delight of the salvationists to do the very opposite to that which "the enemy" desires of them. This antagonism is assidiously without warrant. It was shown in this city when an officer insisted upon making a noise with a horn for which there was neither need nor excuse, and continued the annoyance until punished by imprisonment. In Quebec the public feeling against the street parades of the army is very great, and those taking part in the same have been repeatedly assaulted. It should, perhaps, be an evidence of weakness to surrender in any particular, but until the people become more reconciled to this method, the army officers would be justified in making less demonstration. They are doing nothing illegal, however, and though they do not please the mob it has no right to stone them and brutally treat them as they were a few nights ago. In this country one's perfect freedom cannot be interferred with. The army cannot be driven off the streets, and the authorities should make this fact known beyond doubt. The incidents of last week are a disgrace to all Canada.

A COLLEGE IN LUCK.

The Syracuse university is in great luck. It has always been the institution of the people, made so by the interest taken in it by them, and the generous donations which that interest induces them to make to it. Of late it has been the recipient of some very handsome gifts. The great library of Von Ranke, the famous German scholar and historian, has been bequeathed to it. John Crouse, of Syracuse, has given it $200,000 for the construction and support of a female department, and it is announced that Franklin Holden, also of Syracuse, has agreed to pay for constructing and equipping an asstronomical and meteorological observatory. In reading of these things one laments that Queen's, especially at this particular period in her history, is not equally fortunate. An effort is being made to raise a quarter of a million dollars, wherewith to secure it absolute independence and equip it for a service unsurpassed by the state-aided and provincial university. One gift like unto that of Mr. Crouse, of Syracuse, would make the new endowment complete. And yet it is better to be otherwise. The more understood the appeal for assistance, and the more general the response, the greater the number of persons concerned in the welfare of the institution, and their anxiety for its success. Would that the quarter of a million of money were already secured, but from representatives of every portion of the large constituency which Queen's aims to minister to in educational matters.

"FOLLY OF PROTECTION."

The London Advertiser prints statistics to show what a folly-and more, what a loss-protection is in so tar as the United States is concerned. The statements given by our contemporary show that the American people are, even under the present high tariff, far from supplying themselves with all the manufactured goods they require. It is shown also that the manufacturers of iron and steel imported exceeded the exports of these articles last year by nearly $36,000, 000; that the imports of the manufactures of leather exceeded the exports by $750,000; that the imports of manufactured tobacco are slightly in excess of the exports; that the import of cotton goods is very nearly double the export; that in other words, in ency" the effect will not, however, be quite the manufacture of cotton goods, the raw material of which is produced in the country, the cotton manufacturers of the United States fail to fully supply their own market by $14,000,000. The people of the United States have been taxed upwards of 60 per cent. on imported silk goods, with a view of encouraging the manufacture of silk goods at New Jersey and elsewhere. Last year the importation of silk goods amounted to $31,347,916. And, after all this has been "shown" and "proven," will any appreciable effect be seen upon the public sentiment? For nearly a decade the discussion of free trade and protection has gone on, and upon three different occasions the people, by their votes, have indicated what they thought of the issue. In the last local political campaign a liberal speaker, the Hon. Oliver Mowat, was understood to say that the people had no reason to feel uneasy about the fate of the national policy, that it was a fixture, and, as such would be respected by whatever party succeeded to power. I Mr. Mowat expressed the feeling of his party the assaults of certain liberal papers upon protection will, for the present, amount to little. It may not be the best for the country, but until the people have been made to suffer as cotton, the sugar, the coal, and other combinations mean them to all in time, and if protection be an evil the remedy will come. A few more ringsrossly unjust in their creation and scan-dalously dishonest in their operation—will tection, under which they thrive, obnoxious to the masses.

PARTY EXPEDIENCY AGAIN.

If the American readers of the Forum were unable to realize the true position of Canada by a perusal of the article of Mr. David A. Poe, in the July number, the re- | Of joinder of Hon. Thomas White, in the September number, will not dissipate their doubts. The tault with both articles is their extreme partizanship. Mr. Poc writes with the feeling so characteristic of the pronounced liberal. Mr. White, as a member of the Canadian government, whose cause has been so sharply criticised, could not be expected to do otherwise than act as its apologist. We, therefore, have had in the Forum the extreme views of the representatives of opposing parties.

By one writer the country is shown to SEE OUR BEST KID GLOVES. Every have been grossly misgoverned; to have been controlled disastrously by the party machine, to have been made to pay for all manner of extravagance and waste, to have been saddled with a debt out of all proportion to its growth and resources. By the the been the saviour of the country, to have LADIES' DOGSKIN GLOVES! developed it in a way indicative of little short of heaven-born statesmanship, to have acted pursuant to the dictates of conscience and reason, and to have brought about a state of things calculated to delight and gratify and satisfy the people. For campaign purposes the discussion would have been eminently profitable, but other purpose they cannot serve, since they are exceedingly contradictory in all material re. spects. That Mr. White especially is simply writing for effect is made evident by his conclud. ing allusion to the constitutional difficulties of Canada. "In the distribution of powers between the central and provincial authorities some friction has arisen," but says Mr. White, "the courts are supplementing the written letter by authoritative interpre. SCHOOL tations, and these questions are thus solving themselves. They would have created no friction-would, in fact, have been regarded as the natural outcome of a complex system of government, and of the necessity of obtaining judicial decisions in respect of the powers conferred by it-but for the fact that the bitterness of party strife, and the absence of other grounds of party difference, have caused a party in the state to exaggerate their disputes into matters of political controversy." And Mr. White rests his denunciation there. He chides Mr. Poe for his indefiniteness of detail, and is guilty of the same offence himself. He rushes into the magazines to give a true and particular statement of the position of Canada, admits that, in the operation of the machinery originated with the confederacy, there has been a lamentable lack of smoothness, and leaves the impression that in regard thereto both of the great parties in the state have been equally to blame. Now as a matter of fact both parties have not been equally responsible for the strains that have been put upon the constitution. The federal government has, so far as Ontario is concerned, seriously encroached upon provincial rights and provincial freedom, BIOLOGY, and in respect of the Streams bill, the boundary award, the License act, the Mercier escheat bill, and the insurance case, showed a hostility to local government which the circumstances wholly unwarranted. More than this, Manitoba is now in a very rebellious | Slates, mood, and on account of federal interference, though Mr. White preaches that "there can be no encroachment of the federal upon the provincial authority under our system of government, except by the exercise of the power of disallowance." Is the power of disallowance, in relation to the Red River Valley for instance, not serious enough? It would appear so when a resort to armed force is threatened on behalf of both the federal and provincial governments. Is that disallowance not more serious still when prompted by a monopoly, for the sake of monopoly, without parliamentary warrant and against the public interest? Position lends importance to the utterances of some people, and the fact that Mr. White is minister of the interior, may, in the estimation of some persons, lend significance to his speech. With those who recognize him as the advocate of "party expediso influential.
