RAPID SIGHT SEEING.

The Brain Capable of Taking in Impres. sions Quickly-A Pointer to Tourists.

Americans traveling abroad are often laughed at for their passion for rapid sight seeing. But why may not the brain take impressions as swiftly and as easily as the photographer's chemically prepared plate! "How long will it take me to see the exhibition?" asked a lady of a gentleman who had just come from the world's fair at Philadelphia. "Fifteen minutes," was the response. The lady of course was astonished, and the respondent proceeded to explain. "To study all the details of the exhibition would require many months, but to obtain an impression of its magnitude, to seize upon its salient features, fifteen minutes would do wonders for you. A ride around the circuit of its connecting railway would give you a succession of pictures never to be forgotten." What is true of a great fair is true of a great city. It has been said that very few people really know London fully, but any one may obtain an idea of its physiognomy, of its characteristic features, in a half hour's drive through its streets. To discover all the qualities there are in a painting I must study it well, but a single glance gives me an idea of the composition and the scheme of color. In truth this first instantaneous impression in art is invaluable, and a painting should always be approached, if it is possible to do so, under conditions that enable the spectator to get a full view promptly. How often a painter turns his picture to the wall and there lets it remain long enough to allow him to obtain an unprejudiced and instantaneous impression when he sees it again! Study and analysis are of course indispensable factors in some things, but the flash, the revealing glance, the sudden insight, the instantaneous photograph on the sensitized brain, are things of value in life as well as in art.—Home Journal.

New Soup Pot for the French Army. Without his soup the French soldier is nothing, and during the Franco-German campaign Zouaves and Tirailleurs were often surprised by Prussians or Bavarians while engaged in skimming their pot au feu or watching the simmering of their soupe aux potreaux.

Gen. Forron proposes to prevent any recurrence of this disastrous state of affairs by adopting a campaign cooking pot, which shall enable each particular Dumanet or Tommy Atkins to make his own soup, and that of course more speedily than when he had to prepare it for three besides himself in the rather cumbersome and complicated apparatus which was set down in the books of the army stores and the inventories in the barrack rooms as the utensile a quatre.

The new soup pot was tried with success some years ago in France and Algeria, but in 1882 it was rejected by Gen. Billot on the ground that it would destroy esprit de corps by isolating the soldiers from each other. Gen. Ferron combats this view by alleging that the soup may be divided between three at least when made in the new pot, and that in any case comradeship was not so well fostered under the quadruple regime as to necessitate the continuance of the old marmites; but his great reasons for the change are based on the speed and the saving which the new pot will realize.—St. James' Gazette.

Advice to Mothers.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to the taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhoa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup, and take no other

She Wanted Her Dues of Courting. A respectable farmer in the parish of Cummock, being a widower, went a-court ing a young lady, the daughter of a neighboring farmer in the parish of Auchinleck. The farmer, who was no great orator, but was young, had a good person, and was in affluent circumstances, addressed his fair one rather bluntly, and proposed marriage out much ceremony. The lady replied, in the same frank and open way, "Deed, Jamie, I'll tak ye, but ye maun gie me my dues o' courtin' for a' that." The wedding took place accordingly.
