SYRACUSE VS. KINGSTON.

THE HOME TEAM WINS A GLORIOUS VICTORY AT CRICKET.

Interesting Remarks by a Syracuse Paper -The Attraction Presented by a Banker-Member of the Kingston Team-Details of a Match to Which Importance Was Attached.

Syracuse Standard. The cricketers who came here yesterday from Kingston, in white trousers and gor. V. B. Rivers, b. Millward. geous blazers, walked easily away with their Syracuse adversaries. Last night the Canadians, in their native habiliments, rambled about town with the lower buttons of their waistceats undone. The game began at 11 o'clock in the morning. It was a capital game. William Cowie captained the home eleven and J. Galloway the Visitors, Syracuse elected to take their innings first. The Kingstonians had the appearance of athletes, and there was no little consternation among the Syracusans when they beheld the stalwart form of T. Y. Greet. He bears a striking resemblance to the redoubtable W. G. Grace, and the Syracusans trembled in their shoes at the unwelcome apparition. Their fears, however, were speedily dispelled, when they discovered that Mr. Greet was really a Canadian and not the formidable doctor in propria persona. Mr. Greet is like the celebrated batsman, though not quite so tall nor so broadly built.

Hutchins and Scott went first to the wickets for Syracuse, and the fourth ball sent down by Galloway took Scott's bails. ()ne wicket for two runs. Lloyd Jones, who followed, evidently meant business, but being too anxious he misjudged a run, slipping a ball which was smartly fielded and was run out. This was very unfortunate-2 for 9. Brawn then joined Hutchings, who was playing a careful game, and gradually scoring, when Galloway sent a teaser down which took Brawn's bails. The score was 3 for 13. Betts had been bowling at the other end for Kingston, and when Greaves came to the bat Field was substituted. His fifth ball being a tempting lob Greaves swiped at it, but played across his wicket, and broke into his leg stump-4 for 13. Richardson then followed, but he was quick. ly retired by Galloway, who sent down a beautiful bailer-5 for 14. Matters now began to look anything but cheerful for Syracuse, the only man who had as yet made any stand being Hutchings. Millward now came upon the scene, and between the two batsmen a very different complexion was put on the game. Runs came rapidly, Hutchings making a clean drive for three up to the boundary, and Millward piling them up in twos and singles. Galloway was bowling in fine form and the fifth ball of his eleventh over clean bowled Millward with a deceptive shooter. Six for 41. Vine now became the partner of Hutchings, Pearson relieving Betts in bowling, and in the third over the latter dismissed Vine by taking his off stump. Seven for 49. The score was gradually improving thanks to the excellent play of Millward and Hutchings, and William Cowie coming in assisted Hutchings to further score, when a ball from Betts was put into the slips by Hutchings and caught. retiring the latter. Eight for 49. Hutch. ings played a scientific defense, his score being 17, made up of 8 singles, 3 twos and 1 three, and on coming to the pavilion he was heartily cheered. Spalding then went to bat, and Cowie was easily caught by Field at square leg. Nine for 50. Mallender joined Spalding, but he spooned a slip to up by a tug and towed into the harbor. Boutellier, and Syracuse was retired with a total score of 50. The Syraeusans appeared well satisfied with this figure and were anxious to put the Kingstons on their mettle.

Prior to the visitors going to bat a substantial lunch was served, to which every. body did ample justice, the bracing air and healthy exercise being excellent sauce for a good appetite. Jones and Oglivie went to the wickets first for Kingston to the bowling of Richardson and Brawn. The fourth ball from the latter hand clean-bowled Jones. One for 4. Boutellier followed, and after making two boundary hits for 3, he was bowled by a bailer by Brawn. Two for 14. Field, who is a cousin of W. G. Grace, then joined Oglivie, when the latter was smartly caught by wicket-keeper Greaves. Three for 14. Greet now came to the wicket, and Kingston anticipated great things from their giant, but after he had scored four runs he was clean-bowled by Richardson. Four for 21. Runs were coming too fast to be pleas: ant, so Millward went on at Richardson's end, and his second ball was a shooter which lowered the sticks of Rivers. Five · for 30. Galloway now kept Oglivie company, the last ball of Millward's second over taking Oglivie's middle stump. Six for 39. Millward now changed ends with Brawn, and his first ball proved too much for Galloway, breaking into his off wicket. Seven for 39. The game began to be interesting, as the Kingstons had but little faith in their tail enders being able to avoid a defeat on the first innings. Pearson's off stump was lowered by Millward's fourth over, and Glidden was tempted by a Yorker which Millward kindly sent him, but he played across the ball and paid the penalty by having his wickets scattered. Eight and nine for 42. The last man now came in, in the person of Nelles. His first ball from Millward being carefully blocked, the next safely landed into point's hands, thus retiring the Kingstons for 42, and giving Syracusans a majority of 8 on the first in-

After a short interval the Syracusans went to the bat again, but were not so successful as they were in the first attempt, there being a too evident anxiety on the part of all to score. They were therefore quickly disposed of for the small total of 45. Kingston had then an easy task to fulfil, requiring only 53 runs to tie the score, and that they were determined to get them was soon very evident. Rivers played in grand style and so also did Field, both hitting very freely. Rivers drove Millward three times to the boundary for 3, and Field's made the crack hit of the day by punching Millward to long field, clean over the fence, for 4. The result was that Kingston won-the match by six wickets. The "duck eggs" were pretty equally divided, as the score below will show :

HAMILTONS GOT THERE.

THEY DID THE BEST FIELDING BY A LARGE PER CENT.

Their Three Pitchers Used Terribly Bad By the Local Sluggers-The Kingstons Unable to Hold Anything-Their Weak Point Still Very Weak.

On Saturday afternoon about 800 spectators witnessed the Hamilton league base-ball team defeat a nine, composed of some of the best professional ball players resident in this city. The game was played on the Rugiopolis college grounds.

The local nine comprized four members of the Park Nine and five of the Kingstons. Young and McHale constituted the battery. The latter caught, in the place of Barnfather, who has a disabled hand. Considering that Young is a hard pitcher to hold, and that he had not caught him before, Mc-Hale did excellently.

Young pitched wide at times and at no stage in the game as effectively as in some previous games. Of course he was pitted against an able team, as it has the best batting record of any team in the Internation-

They had their batting ciothes on Saturday and pounded the ball terribly.

The Hamiltons started the game with Pete Wood in the box, and Warner behind the bat. The players struggled hard to hold the flies batted to them, but generally failed in their attempts. The Hamiltons did not play loosely; if they had the Kingstons would have won. The Hams are good players on the field. I heir outfielding was especially good, some of the catches being brilliant ones.

At the finish of the game the score stood Kingstons, 12; Hamiltons, 21.

Umpire Sagendorff called the game at 3:40, and the Kingstons went to the bat. Allen hit to centre field and got two bases. Everybody thought this was a good commencement and applauded the strike Young got to first. While Osterhout was at the bat Warner, the catcher for Hamil. ton, was severely hurt. Replaced by Moore. Osterhout sent the ball to short stop Phillips, who took it in beautifully and started a double play. Young was retired at second and the batter at first.

The audience liked this kind of work and longed for more of it. Allen was standing on third looking homeward when McHale flew to the pitcher and the side was retired and chicagoed. Knight smashed the ball to the centre fielder, and on Wright's safe hit to left field, he got to second bag. Wood called Knight in and arrived at first safely. Wright ran to third. Phillips flew to Ambach and Wright scored. Jones was put out by a second baseman and Wood and Phillips' scored. Moore and Weir died at first. Kingston closed their second inning with four runs to their credit, while | Hamilton | only got one. The Kingstons batted Wood severely. And he didn't like it. Little and Fisher got on the bases. Iraynor was put out at first. Ambach got to first on the pitcher's error, and Little scored. Weidman went to the bat. The ball was then mismanaged by the catcher and pitcher and between them Ambach chased Fisher home. The spectators again applauded vigorously. Weidman struck hard, but into the centre fielder's hands. Allen hit past the left fielder. He reached second base and came home when Young struck. Osterhout got his base on balls, when Young was on third and tried to attract the attention of the players by running to second so as to let Young score. Young did not get home, but did some neat dodging and gave the Hams a sca re. McHale died at first.

Warner scored for Hamilton'on Woods' hit to left field. Horner, Phillips and Knight died at the first base.

Kingston's part of the third inning was very short. Little got out at first. Fisher lifted the ball over the fence to Brock street and got two bases, but was retired after Ambach's fly was caught in left field. For the Hams. Jones and Moore got on bases. Weir was retired. Jones walked home on a pass ball, and Moore followed him. Warner and Horner failed to score. The Kingstons in the tourth had another blank, and Hamilton got two runs. The Kingstons had a decidedly hard run of luck.

Mickey Jones, a left-handed twirler and a sharp one especially when men are on bases, now pitched.

Weidman was retired by the centre fielder. Allen was hit by the pitcher and limped to first. Young struck to no purpose. Osterhout was caught out. For the Hams. Knight got to first by loose play, reached third, and on Young's error scored. Wright came home on Woods' hit to right field. The striker got his base, but was captured between second and third base. Phillips and Jones were caught out by the second baseman.

The Kingstons were whitewashed in the fifth inning. None of the strikers reached first base. They were McHale, Little and Fisher. On the other side Moore flew to right field. Wier got first on the short stop's error. Horner sent the ball out to the property and chased Moore, Weir and Horner home. Knight got his base, reached second, and, on a pass ball, stole third and finally scored. Wright was given his base. was captured running to second.

A base ball match to be played by the members of the Blossoms base ball club and the Artillery park nine occurs next Saturday afternoon. The New York baseball club played an exhibition game with the Lowells on Friday and was beaten 6 to 3. Titcomb and Murphy were New York's battery. The new Chicago team for 1888 will very probably consist of Williamson (captain), Pfeffer, Darling, Van Halfren, Clarkson, Flint, Daly, Glasscock, Denny, Pettit, Boyle and Tebeau.

"Smiling Mickey Jones," the Hams. left hand tosser of the sphere, is "a rum un to look at but a rare un to go." He is the wildest pitcher on earth, but throws a de ceptive ball when he gets it straight, and is quite effective. He was not found after the Kingstons hit him in the sixth innings.

While a number of boys were playing ball in New York John Gale, crossing the field, was struck over the eye by a ball batted by a player named Miller, was rendered unconscious, but soon recovered. He was unable to go to work, however, and grew rapidly worse until Friday night, when he died.
