The Way a Light From Ottawa Successfully Cheated a Hotelkeeper Here. Ottawa Journal.

A good story is told of a man who resides not fifteen miles from this city, which may be of use to detectives. Some weeks ago he went up to the limestone city to see his sweetheart, and put up at one of the principal hotels in that city. He was in light marching order, as far as baggage is concerned, but was loaded with other material, but so stowed away that the Custom house authorities could not bond it. After staying a couple of days in the hotel, taking in the sights of the city and visiting his sweetheart, he began to think that the proprietor of the hotel was looking as if he wanted money and as the traveller had none he worked up his | and axe which cased acute suffering to the wits until he struck upon a plan to get out | injured. of the difficulty. MIDLAND RAILWAY ACCIDENT.

A Dreadful Sacrifice of Life-The Horrors of the Rail-Twenty-Three Killed.

LONDON, Sept. 17.—The Midland train, which met with an accident yesterday, was crowded with excursionists going to Doncaster to see the race for the Doncaster cup. Suddenly a plate layer was noticed wildly waving a red flag. On looking out the passengers were horrified to see the express coming at full speed. Before realizing the danger there was a terrific shock. The express cut through the excursion train. The express engine was badly damaged, but kept on the rails. Its train practically sustained no damage.

The scene was horrible. Scores of people lay bleeding or dead, wedged amidst the splintered wood work and debris. Their shrieks and groans were heartrending, but it was impossible to release them till mechanical appliances arrived. Many were taken out shockingly mangled, with arms and legs severed; others were almost decapitated and disemboweled. The dead were laid in an adjoining meadow. Some were only recognizable by their clothing. The injured were conveyed in improvised ambulances to the nearest house. A number of surgeons were speedily in attendance. There were numerous broken legs, some requiring amputation. All that was possible to remove were taken to an infirmary. The guard of the excursion out-rail had a narrow escape. A mother with her baby in her arms was killed, while the child escaped unhurt. In another instance a mother and child were killed. One man had his head torn completely off and the body was found sitting upright in the carriage. The extrication was conducted by means of a saw
