Mr. Dillon, in an interview to-day, said that it was impossible to deny the gravity of the agitation. The most disturbed dis-OTTAWA, Sept. 19.—To-day is the day | trict was South Galway, where a new agent was a gloomy one. Mr. Balfour was apparently determined to get all the nationalist leaders into the clutches of the law, and he (Dillon) would not be surprised if in a month or two the majority of the leaders, including himself, were found picking oakum. Mr. Balfour had been in Dublin con sulting with the magistrates. That looked like action, but Mr. Balfour always startled them by hurling proclamations into their midst and then flying from the country immediately being apprehensive perhaps, for his own safety. The government's persistence in enforcing the coercion act, would be certain to lead to trouble. He was positive that if the land commissioners gave only inadequate judicial reductions the Salisbury cabinet would find themselves face to face with a condition of things unparalleled in the history of Ireland. The commissioners in the past two years have been just, but there was every reason to fear the result of the later tory appointments. In that respect there was much danger in the situation. The government appeared te be determined to force an outburst of crime. If Mr. O'Brien, after the trial, was treated as a common felon, there would be violent indignation not only throughout Ireland, but in America. Referring generally to the causes of disturbances, Mr. Dillon said that the resident magistracy, as a body, were grossly incompent and that the constabulary, though a splendid body of man, were political agents of an unpopular government and in a constant state of hostility to the people.

Archbishop Walsh, in a letter to the Dublin Express, says that as the landlords at a meeting failed to adopt a manful attitude on the question of a conference between landlords and tenants, he fears that the opportunity to effect a settlement is now lost.

An Encounter With Nationalists.

Beleast, Sept. 18.—A party of Orangemen, while passing through Green Castle, a town near Belfast, last night, had an encounter with nationalist residents. Three policemen who tried to quell the disturbance were stoned and driven away. The local authorities, being unable to restore order, sent a dispatch to this city asking for aid, and a force of police was sent to Green Castle. The arrival of the reinforcements had the effect of awing the rioters, and peace | him. was soon established. Ten of the principal participants in the affray were arrested.

Reception of Father O'Leary.

MITCHELSTOWN, Sept. 18.—At a public meeting of the national league held here today, Father O'Leary, of St. Louis, was introduced to the assemblage as a clergyman who had sent ten of thousands of dollars from America to help the cause in which the league was engaged. The reverend gentleman announced himself a believer in the doctrines of Henry George and urged that no rent should be paid. At the Chicago convention he had expressed his readiness to become a chaplain in any army raised to relieve Ireland from the slavery she was enduring.

Mr. Condon, member of parliament, disapproved of Father O'Leary's remarks, and advised the people to continue in the constitutional path now pursued for the redress of their grievances.

VIEWS OF THE ANARCHISTS. Still Hopeful That the Chicago Condemned

Will Not be put to Death.

CHICAGO, Sept. 18. - Mrs. Parsons, wife of the condemned anarchist, says in relation to the decision of the supreme court that she does not believe the people will permit what she calls "this judicial murder." She says: "These men could have been hanged when the jury found them guilty. At that time the world would have permitted, but not now. The people of America will not allow it. I have faith in the American spirit of fair playand justice, and that will not allow these men to be hanged." "Are there any other reasons why you believe these men will not be hanged?" "No, only I am assured of it by letters I. have received from people I have met all over the country. Why, humanity will not allow this murder." "But what if they are hanged, anyway." "Well, if they are hanged-" she paused, on the carpet, "if they are hanged, why, the revolution is so much nearer at hand. And what does a revolutionist care for death?"

Die Freihert, has an editorial asking that no stone be left unturned to secure the freedom of the condemned Chicago anarchists. He closes as follows: "The question of their bloodshed is not settled yet. Let every one do his duty and the social revolution." Editor Shevitsch, of the Leader, the socialistic newspaper says it cannot be asserted that the condemned men had any connection with the throwing of the bomb.

RELLEVILLE, Sept. 17 .- Unly a small attendance greeted the exhibition game between the Park Nine and the home team today. IMPRESSIVE MEMORIAL SERVICE.

Last Great Day in Connection with the Centennial Event in Philadelphia. PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 17. - This was the third and last day of the third centennial celebration at the cradle of liberty. Over one of the triumphal arches which span Chestnut street were displayed in bold let ters the famous words of John Bright : "All the civilized world, all who love freedom in it must regard the event as one of the most important in the annals of men. And this seemed to be the popular sentiment.

At the front of the stand hung a photo graphic copy of the original constitution. At the east side of the stand stood the quaint high backed chair occupied by George Washington as the presiding officer of the congress which adopted that honored and venerated document. The Marine band, for half an hour before the exercise commenced, discoursed music. At half past ten the chorus of 2,000 children, with 200 leading, sang a patriotic air, which brought them rounds of applause. Among the distinguished guests were Hannibal Hamlin, ex-President Hayes and wife, and Chief Justice Waite.

During the president's reception one handsomely dressed lady of about 35 years of age threw her arm around his neck and kissed him, At 10:30 o'clock the presidential party took carriages for the memorial meeting in Independence square.

LYNCHING IN BUCKINGHAM.

Threatened Upon Three Book-Agents By the Indignant Towns-people.

Buckingham, Sept, 17.—Some time ago a book agent visited Buckingham offering a history of Canada for 60 cents. Numbers of the farmers and others subscribed signing, an order for it. A few days ago five men came around to collect payment, and the people discovered that the little bill was only $21.60. Their wrath at being swindled was beyond description and culminated in a crowd of the victimized ones and sympathizers collecting and inviting the book agents to hand over the notes. This the agents refused to do and were set upon and three of them soundly thrashed. Finally, the agents, still obdurate, the crowd procured a rope and threatened to lynch them unless the notes were procured immediately. Appalled by the sight of the rope the unfortunate agents promptly handed over the required notes.
