Collision And Loss of Life.

VIENNA, Oct. 10. - The Austrian steamer Hapeburg to-day collided with and sank a Bavarian steamer on Lake Constance. Many passengers in the cabin were drowned. The exact number is as yet unknown. Two bodies have been recovered. Divers are working at the scene of the disaster.

Where to Hit the Landlords.

DUBLIN, Oct. 10.-A league meeting was held at Tongford. The platform collapsed, and a government reporter was injured. Mr. Healy said that there would soon be no landlands left im Ireland. They were more bothered by the plan of campaign than by the killing of bailiffs. The deadliest place to hit them was their pockets.

Sugar Combination Burst.

TORONTO, Oct. 9.-Mr. Mills, president of the retail grocers' association, on Saturday called upon Mr. Ince, president of the wholesale guildary, and requested him to release the retailers from their obligation to maintain a standard for granulated sugar. The request was agreed to and the combination is now a thing of the past.

Waiting to Get Out of a Hole.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—The Heralds London dispatch says the law officers of the crown are confident that the decision of the magistrate in the case of the lord mayor of Dublin will be reversed. The ministerial authorities deny that any mistake has been made and they throw all the blame upon the magistrate.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 10.—The Russian Invalid, the organ of the war office, says Ayoub Khan has reached Glazni. His influence has so seriously affected the situation in Afghanistan that the ameer's position in Cabul has become one of extreme difficulty, and he evidently doubts of ultimate success for he is sending his treasures and valuables to Khanajbad.

Wrestling Out of Humour.

SYRACUSE, Oct. 10. - Last night, in this city, a Graeco-Roman wrestling match was won from the Jap by Muldoon on a foul. Afterward, behind the scenes, the enraged oriental tried to hit Muldoon. The latter got the "Jap" on all fours and held him there for a short time. A few people who were back of the scenes forced the "Jap" to his room, where he became quite ill.

Worse and More of It.

Paris, Oct. 10.-In the house of Madame Limonson, who has been arrested in connection with the Cafforel case, there were discovered about 300 letters to M. Wilson and others from M. Herbette, and if the government had known the extent of the scandal Gen. Cafforel would not have been arrested. Baron Keritmayer, the German implicated in the affair, was ostensibly a horse dealer. It is suspected he and Madame Limonson obtained and translated military papers for Germany. Paris, Oct. S. -General Cafforel was suspended from chief of the war department for selling civil decorations.

Emma Abbott Talks Back, NASHVILLE, Oct. 10 .- In the McKendree church, to-day, Rey. W. A. Chandler deliver a very severe sermon on the theater. Miss Emma Abbott at its conclusion entered a protest against the very general character of the pastor's denunciation. She declared that her life was as free from blame as that of any living woman. The great lights of the stage, Jenny Lind, Modjeska, Albani, and others had been good women and model wives and mothers. She defied any one to say aught against the fair fame of Emma Abbott. There was considerable applause at the conclusion of her remarks. During the day a great many ladies called upon Miss Abbott and commended her spirited defence of the profession.

WOMEN WHO GET MUCH THE BEST OF THEIR HUSBANDS.

Amusing Cases in Court-An Expensive Trip to the Theatre-The Late Yacht Race-Dr. Parker in Plymouth Church Pulpit-More Scandal.

(Copyrighted 1887.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 7. -- There be wives and wives, and husbands and husbands, and right here we have a choice assortment of both, and from the records of the courts this week it is evident that the so-called weaker sex are not always the sufferers. A case in point was tried on Wednesday where a wife had her husband arrested for assault and battery and non-support. He was a poor attenuated little anatomy, that a hundred pound weight in the opposite scale would have sent flying up like a shuttlecock, while his poor injured wife was a good healthy beefy looking woman, who wore a forty-eight inch belt-ribbon and would make the steel yards look sick at two hundred and fifty. The brutal husband was dressed in a linen duster that looked as though it might have survived the perils of the civil war, and a pair of pants that needed repairing in that portion which no gentleman likes to have out of repair. His feet were encased in a pair of rubbers, and his shirt, innocent of collar, was without a button at the neck. But this is no uncommon case. The wretched wife had on a fine sealskin sacque, a beaded-silk dress, a blooming high hat and feather, gold bracelets and liamond earrings. She looked the picture of rosy health, while her husband had his head tied up in a towel, and looked as though he had been attending a first-class frish wake. - The case was called, and the lady took the witness stand. The judge asked her what was the matter? She said brutal treatment and non-support, and she wanted her husband sent to the penitentiary. The judge told her to state specifically the circumstances of the assault. She said that she had been down to Coney Island with a friend, and, being detained till the cars stopped running, she was unable to get home that night. Next day when she did get home, her husband told her that she must not do it again, and she told him that she'd do it as often as she liked. Then he said sporting world on a broad guffaw. No man that he'd leave the house, and she told him that he shouldn't do it. Then he tried to get | Bill Daily. Be that as it "Last week, judge, and I haven't had a cent | may he hobbles about with a stick. He since." "How much did you receive, madam ?" Only eighteen dollars, judge." "How much does your husband earn per week ?" "Twenty dollars, judge." "Then it appears you get the lion's share ?" "Well, judge, he | Romeo to her Juliet. It's awfully funny, wouldn't tell me what he did with the other | but Mrs. Daily don't think so, so she sues two dollars." Said the judge, looking at the for a divorce and $200,000. Uncle Bill pair : "You don't look to be suffering, madam, either for clothes or food. Have you any means outside of what your husband gives you?" "Not much, judge." "How much?" "Five hundred and eighty dollars in the Bleecker Street saving bank, and one hundred and seventy-two in the Seaman's. "Who owns the house you live in?" "I do." "How did you get it?" "Husband bought it for me." "And all the money you have in the bank he gave you ?" "Yes." "Now, flounced out of court as much as to say, 'There is no justice left in this country." Another case occurred this week which was attended with rather serious consequences, and that it did not result in dreadful loss of life no thanks to the parties concerned. A foolish young married woman got so infatuated with the theatre that she took every opportunity to indulge her whim, and when her husband returned home from his work the other night he found that his wife had shouldered the baby and had gone off to the theatre. Angry at not finding any supper ready he started off in a rage, and found his wife and baby in the gallery among the toughs. He immediately ordered her home, but she had paid her twenty five cents, and she was determined to see the thing out. One word brought on another, and at last he slapped her in the face. She had some of the blood of our glorious forefathers in her, and she caught him a paster under the ear. Then they grappled, and just at the critical moment when everybody was rushing forward to see the fight, some fool cried fire! The remembrance of the terrible calamity of the burning of the Brooklyn theater eleven years ago, where nearly three hundred people lost their lives, made the audience act like a herd of frightened deer, and they rushed for the door pell-mell. Women fainted, some screamed, and many men acted like curs, thinking only of themselves. At last order was restored. The husband who raised the disturbance was dragged out by the police, and, as he violently resisted, they clubbed him soundly, and threw him bleeding and blinded in the cells. But his wife saw the play all the same, and stopped till the curtain fell on the fifth act. The husband was fined ten dollars. That means a week's work. His beating will lay him up for a couple of weeks at least. that on the whole the lady may conclude that she has been indulging in a very costly amusement. I did not say a word about the races last week, because I felt I was treading on dangerous ground in indulging in any kind of prophecy. Everybody now is ready to cry out, "I told you so." But while the beat is a beat and a fair one, and it is conclusively proven that the Volunteer can out point the Thistle, yet coming home before the wind she pulled right up on her rival and if the course had been a hundred miles instead of twenty the Thistle would have got in first. The lack of sympathy for their defeat, and the general jubilation, are due to several causes. Firstly, to the air of exclusiveness which kept everybody at arm's length, and to the mystery thrown around her build and the declared impossibility of her defeat. Mr. Bell and those having charge of his yacht were not so of fensively snobbish as Sir Richard Sutton, of the Genesta, but there was sufficient of it to cause those who would have been otherwise pleased at her victory to be gladdened by her defeat. Whether real or pretended Mr. Bell seems in nowise cast down at the success of his rival. It is not probable that he will ever try it again. When the cup gentleman's name that carries it won't be eulogy on Henry Ward Beecher at the Academy of Music in Brooklyn on Tuesday. On the Sunday previous he preached at Plymouth church, his audience packing every portion of it as it used to be filled in the olden time under the great Plymouth pastor. It would be unfair to criticise any man placed in as trying a position as Dr. Parker was. He evidently felt the situation keenly, and made a herculean effort to please. But the methods were not those of Plymouth church. Confidence in himself he had. Severe as was the ordeal through which he was passing it was evident to every man, woman and child that the thought of failure never entered into his head. Our city in just now full of Englishmen and Scotchmen, who have come here to see the races, and they seemed almost as anxious for the success of their countryman in the pulpit as they were for the Thistle upon the sea. Handreds of them went over to Brooklyn on Sunday only to be turned away, there not being an inch of available standing room long before the service commenced. The membership of Plymouth church is some thing over 3,000, and as the church will only hold about 1,500, you see that there is not much room for outsiders when all the family is at home. But, as I said, the church was packed, and I can only say, to put it in mild form, that the enthusiasm was not of that violent form to threaten anybody's health. His lecture on Tuesday was an eloquent and scholarly review of the life and services of his dead friend. He was addressing an audience in entire sympathy with every telling point he made, and the result was more satisfactory than his effort on Sunday. If the academy had been twice as large it could easily have been filled; in fact, all the tickets were sold several days in advance of the lecture, which, although a great financial success, was away below many efforts that Mr. Beecher in his life made for local or state charities. If I mistake not, his lecture for the building of the Soldiers Home at Bath, in this state, realized for that institution $13,000 It is safe to say that Dr. Parker in due time will return to his charge in London. Under the charge of Major Pond, Mr. Beecher's favor ite agent, he will make a lecture tour through the United States, and a good solid bag full of American eagles will undoubtedly be a pleasant reminder to him of his visit to the western wilds to deliver a grateful tribute to Plymouth's dead pastor.

The latest divorce suit has set all the is better known on our race-courses than old has the spring halt, and is spavined, his skin is like tan bark, and he is not pretty to look upon. Marriage That Could Not be Because of an Unfortunate Relationship-The Young Man Suicides And the Young Woman Goes Insane.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—On Monday last Edward Wilder applied to an insanity expert in Brooklyn to have his adopted daughter placed in a private insane asylum. This fact brought out a remarkable story. In a little frame cottage on Liberty avenue, in the town of New Lots, 27 years age lived Louis Hart and his wife. They had four remarkably pretty children. Three were boys, and the other, Marguerite, was a beautiful little girl but 18 months old. Their next door neighbor was Edward Wilder, a wealthy man, who seeing the struggle of Louis Hart for existence, finally obtained his consent to the adoption of little Marguerite. She was separated from her family and grew to be a handsome, intelligent girl and the favorite of her set. In the sum mer of 1883 heradoped father took her to Newport where she was the acknowledged belle. It was generally known that she was an heiress, and that with her beauty brought many suitors to her feet. Among them was a handsome young lieutenant of the United States navy. He was a young man with many virtues and but few faults, and the result was an engagement. Marquerite told her supposed father about the matter, and he set inquiries affoat as to the young man, his past and his future prospects. Then he peremptorily forbade the match. The daughter told him she would leave him and go away with her lover unless his consent was given, and then Mr. Wilder was forced to tell her that her lover was her own brother, from whom she had been separated in infancy. The young lady fainted and woke in delirium. Weeks afterwards, when she grew physically better, it was found that her mind had given away, and when young Hart was acquainted with the terrible truth, he grew morose and melancholy, and a few days after committed suicide. Since that time Marguerite has grown worse, until a few days ago her heart-broken foster parents decided to place her in an asylum, and then the sad story came out.

CLUBBED BY THE POLICE.

George Men Try to Disturb a Progressive

Labour Meeting - The Result. NEW YORK, Oct. 9. The ratification mass meeting of the progressive labour party, in Union square last night, was turned into a riot. From 3,000 to 4,000 men turned out with banners and torches. Speeches were made from three places. For some time the people on the platform of the cottage saw that some kind of trouble was going on at the outskirts of the crowd and the cry of "George, George, Henry George," could be heard above the voices of the speakers and warning the crowd broke and ran in the direction of Fourth avenue, and behind it was a double line of police, using their long night sticks most mercilessly. All who came within reach of the clubs were not spared, and the sound of the blows could be heard above the shricks of women. the cries of men and the music of a band that unconscious of what was going on, was playing the "Marseillaise." Back fell the frightened crowd and when they did not move quickly enough a policeman aided their progress. Men who carried transpar encies dropped them and police broke them with their clubs and jumped upon them. American flags were torn from the trucks by the officers and thrown to the ground to be trampled upon. There was only one red flag at the meeting, and that was carried away by the man who had charge of it.

WANTING WORK OR BREAD.

A Parade of the Homeless and Penniless-And the Object in View.

London, Oct. 8.-Two hundred of the poor homeless, unemployed, persons, who slept at night in Trafalgar square, to-day paraded in a body through the principal streets in the west end. They carried a black banner bearing in white letters the inscription: "We will have work or bread." large force of police, mounted and on foot, accompanied the procession, which eventually returned to Trafalgar square, and with the followers attracted held a meeting. The orators described the hardships of those whose only resting place in London at night is in a public square, and declared that the only means they had of drawing the attention of the public to their condition was by such demonstrations as they had just made. The meeting adopted a resolution to assemble in the same place next Monday and to continue to parade daily until relief is afforded.

CANADIAN FISHERY CASE.

An Argument That Will Not Hold Good -Cases Put in Contrast.

LONDON, Oct. 10.—The Post, commenting on the fisheries dispute, says the contention of the Americans is that no nation has the right of jurisdiction over the sea beyond a three mile limit. In the Pacific America is acting in flat contradiction to any such principle of interstate comety or treaty rights. British vessels have been arrested far outside of the limit, and their captains fined and imprisoned. In some cases the vessels and cargoes have been forfeited. America's Pacific claims form an excellent counter argument to America's Atlantic and as such will be of great and direct to Mr. Chamberlain.

Mr. Chamberlain, it says, in the absence of information from independent sources is helpless to contend against American evidence, and it urges Lord Salisbury to collect evidence lest Mr. Chamberlain be hampered in the negotiations.

NEW PLAN OF CAMPAIGN.

What Mr. O'Brien Will do if He is Again Committed to Prison.

LONDON, Oct. 9.-New features in the Irish struggle will be developed next November. William O'Brien has, after consultation with his friends in London, concerted a plan of campaign to be put in force when he is committed to gaol. This involved a refusal to submit to any of the grosser regulations of prison regimen. Mr. O'Brien is a man of his word, and what he threatens he will perform. The result will probably be a series of sickening scenes. The government, I believe, has no intention to modify in his favor the treatment accorded ordinary con-
