QUATERMAIN ALLAN

A FROWNING CITY.

BY H. RIDER HAGGARD,

Author of "King Solomon's Mines," "She," 'Dawn," etc. Published by the Rose Published by the Rose Published by the Rose Published by all the Book-sellers. Copyrighted.

CHAPTER XI. - A FROWNING CITY. For an hour or more I sat waiting (Um slopogaas having meanwhile gone to sleep also), till at length the east turned gray, and huge misty shapes moved over the surface of the water like ghosts of long-forgotten dawns. They were the vapors rising from their watery bed to greet the sun. Then the gray turned to primrose, and the primrose grew to red. Next, glorious bars of light sprang up across the eastern sky, and through them the radiant messengers of the dawn came speeding upon their arrowy way, scattering the ghostly vapors and awaking the mountains with a kiss, as they flew from range to range and longtitude to longitude. Another moment and the golden gates were open and the sun himself came forth as a bridegroom from his chamber, with pomp and glory and a flashing as of ten million spears, and embraced the night and covered her with brightness and it was day. But as yet Ic u I see nothing save the beautiful blue sky above; for over the water was a thick layer of mist, exactly as though the whole surface had been covered with billows of cotton wool. By degrees, however, the sun sucked up the mists, and then I saw that we were affoat upon a glorious sheet of blue water of which I could not make out the shore. Some eight or ten miles behind us, however, there stretched, as far as the eye could reach, a range of precipitous hills that formed a retaining wall, of the lake; and I have no doubt that it was through some entrance in these-hills that the subterranean river found its way into the open water. Indeed, I afterward ascertained this to be the fact; and it will be some indication of the extraordinary strength and directness of the current of the mysterious river, that the canoe, even at this distance, was still answering to it. Presently, too, I, or rather Umslopogaas, who woke up just then, discovered another indication, and a very un pleasant one it was. Perceiving some whitish object upon the water Umslopogaas called my attention to it, and with a few strokes of the paddle brought the canoe to the spot; whereupon we discovered that the object was the body of a man floating face downward. This was bad enough; but imagine my horror when, mslopogaas having turned him on his back with the paddle, we recognized in the sunken features the lineaments of-whom do y u suppose? None other than our poor servant who had been sucked down two | millwright and engineer, is doing the job in days before in the waters of the subterranean river. It gave me quite a turn. thought that we had left him behind forever; and behold! borne by the current, he had made the awful journey with us, and with us had reached the end. His appearance also was very dreadful. He had been a black man, now he was a livid white; for the boiling water had scalded off nearly all his outer skin. Also he bore traces of having touched the pillar of fire-one arm plished, it retired; the real reason, no doubt, being that turning it on its back allowed a free passage to the gas. Down it went into the transparent depths-fathom after fathom we could trace its course, till at last a long line of bright air-bubbles, swiftly chasing each other to the surface, alone remained where it had passed. At length these, too, were gone, and that was an end of our poor servant. Umslapogaas thought-

"What did he follow us for?" he asked.

"'Tis an ill omen for thee and me, Macum-being completely shriveled up and all his hair being burned off. The features were,

as I have said, sunken, and yet they preserved upon them that awful look of despair that I had seen upon his living face as the poor fellow was sucked down.

Really the sight quite unnerved me, weary and shaken as I felt with all that we had gone through, and I was heartily glad the body began to sink just as though it had had a mission, which having accom-azahn." And he laughed. I turned on him angrily, for I dislike these unpleasant suggestions. If people have such ideas, they ought in common decency to keep them to themselves. Idetest individuals who make one the subject of their disagreeable presentiments, or who, when they dreamed that they saw one hanged as a common felon, or some such horror, will insist upon telling one all about it at breakfast, even if they have to get up early to do it,

Just then, however, the others woke up and began to rejoice exceedingly at finding that we were out of that dreadful liver and once more beneath the bluesky. Then followed a babel of talk and suggestions as to what we were to do next; the upshot of all of which was, that, as we were excessively hungry, and had nothing whatsoever left to eat except a few scraps of biltong (dried game-flesh), having abandoned all that remained of our provisions to those horrible fresh-water crabs, we determined to make for the shore. But now a new difficulty arose. We did not know where the shore was, and, with the exception of the cliffs through which the subterranean river made its entry, could see nothing but a wide expanse of sparkling blue water. Observing, however, that the long flights of aquatic birds kept flying from our left, we concluded that they were advancing from their feeding-grounds on shore to pass the day in the lake, and accordingly headed the boat toward the quarter whence they came, and began to paddle. Before long, however, a stiffish breeze sprung up, blowing directly in the direction we wanted, so we improvised a sail with a blanket and the pole, which took us along merrily. This done, we proceeded to devour the remnants of our biltong, washed down with the sweet lake water, and then lit our pipes and awaited whatever might turn up.

It became evident that the occupants of the advancing boat had made us out.

When we had been sailing for an hour, Good, who was searching the horizon with a spy-glass, suddenly announced joyfully that he saw land, and pointed out that, from the change in the color of the water, he thought we must be approaching the mouth of a river. In another minute we perceived a great golden dome, not unlike that of St. Paul's, piercing the morning mists, and while we were wondering what in the world it could be, Good reported another and still more important discovery. namely, that a small sailing boat was advancing toward us. This bit of news, which we were very shortly able to verify with our own eyes, threw us into a considerable flutter. That the natives of this unknown lake should understand the art of sailing, seemed to suggest that they possessed some degree of civilization. In a few more minutes it became evident that the occupant or occupants of the advancing boat had made us out. For a moment or two she hung in the wind as though in doubt, and then came tacking toward us with great swiftness. In ten more minutes she was within a hundred yards, and we saw that she was a neat little boat-not a canoe "dug out," but built more or less in the European fashion, with planks, and carrying a singularly large sail for her size. But our attention was soon diverted from the boat to her crew, which consisted of a man and woman, nearly as white as ourselves.

We stared at each other in amazement, thinking that we must be mistaken; but no, there was no doubt about it. They were not fair, but the two people in the boat were decidedly of a white as distinguished from a black race, as white, for instance, as Spaniards or Italians. It was a patent fact. So it was true, after all; and, mysteriously led by a Power beyond our own, we had discovered this wonderful people. I could have shouted for joy when I thought of the glory and the wonder of the thing; and as it was, we all shook hands and congratulated each other on the unexpected success of our wild search. All my life had I heard rumors of a white race that existed in the highlands of the interior of this vast continent, and longed to put them to the proof; and now here I saw it with my own eyes, and was dumfoundered. Truly, as Sir Henry said, the old Roman was right when he wrote, "Ex Africa Semper aliquid novi," which he tells me means that out of Africa there always comes some new thing.

With Increased Knowledge.

Of the laws governing health and the treatment of diseases, resort to the physicians is less often made than formerly. Successful treatment can be made in such minor ailments as headache, biliousness, consti pation, fluttering at the heart when sympathetic, foul breath, &c., all the various disorders resulting from deranged action of the liver and stomach, by the use of Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut. These pills being entirely composed of vegetable extracts they form an admirable substitute for the numerous tonic bitters in the market. in results, safe in all kinds of weather, and form the best family medicine extant. N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston.

A Narrow Escape.

People who are exposed to the sudden changes of our northern climate have little chance of escaping colds, coughs, sore throat and lung troubles. The best safe-guard is to keep Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam at hand. It is a quick relief and reliable cure for such complaints.

To Avoid Baldness or Grey Mair. Use Dr. Dorenwend's Great German Hair Magic. It keeps the scalp clear and free from dandruff, and promotes the growth of the hair. It prevents premature greyness and stops all falling out of the hair. On bald heads, where the roots have not perished, it will invigorate them and force a new growth of hair. Ask for Hair Magic It is the only reliable. For sale by J. G. King, A. P. Chown, and all druggists.

The Modus Operandi.

The mode of operating of Burdock Blood Bitters is that it acts at once and the same time upon the stomach, liver, bowels, kidneys and the blood, to cleanse, regulate and strengthen. Hence its almost universal value in chronic complaints.

W. Goodbody, Gananoque, on Monday attended his father's funeral at Mallorytown. Deceased was born at Montmellic. He was married in 1829, but his partner in life was called away years ago, since which he has lived on the bank of old St. Lawrence with his family who are grown up.

Holloway's Ointment and Pills.

Those to whom seasons of changeable temperature are protracted periods of trial should seek the earliest opportunity of removing all obstacles to good health. This cooling ointment, preservingly rubbed upon the skin, is the most reliable remedy for overcoming all diseases of the throat and chest. Quinsey, relaxed tonsils, sore throat, swollen glands, ordinary catarrh and bronchitis, usually prevailing at this season, may be arrested as soon as discovered, and every symptom banished by Holloway's simple and effective treatment. This ointment and pills are highly commended for the facility with which they successfully conquer influenza; they allay in an incredibly short time the distressing fever and teasing cough.

Try And Be Cured.

Lame back and nervous debility, associated with rheumatism, is sometimes met with in every day life, but as a rule we find not more than two of these complaints in the same party. Be this as it may. The only sure and perfect cure is electricity and the best form of administering it is by Norman's electric belts and insoles. W. J. Wilson is agent, and from him you can procure testimonials and circulars relating to any of your complaints.

Advice to Mothers.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to the taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bewels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhoea, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup, and take no other kind.

Yellow Oil cures all painful complaints and injuries.

A Good Treatment.

The usual treatment of catarrh is very unsatisfactory, as thousands of despairing patients can testify. On this point a trustworthy medical writer says "Proper local treatment is positively necessary to success, but many, if not most of the remedies in general use by physicians, afford but temporary benefit. A cure certainly cannot be expected from snuffs, powders, douches and washes." Ely's Cream Balm is a remedy which combines the important requisites of quick action, specific curative power with perfect safety and pleasantness to the pa-

Cured by B.B.B.

Mr. Samuel Allan, of Lisle, Ont., states that he tried all the doctors in his locality while suffering for years with liver and kidney trouble; nothing benefitted him until he took Burdock Blood Bitters, four bottles of which cured him.

On Monday the barn on Charles Alguire's farm, east of Farmersville, was discovered to be on fire. It was useless to attempt to save the building, with a large cow barn adjoining. A quantity of grain, straw and hay and, farming implements were consumed. The loss is partly covered by insurance.
