FUNERALS OF THE IANARCHISTS.

They Will be Very Imposing Affairs-The Different Orders Agitated.

CHICAGO, Nov. 12.—Arrangements for the funerals of the dead anarchists were completed at a meeting of the defence committee last night. The friends are requested to meet at the homes of all the anarchists at 12 o'clock on Sunday, noon. There will be a procession, which will start from the home of Mrs. Fischer, No. 2 Dean street, and proceed thence to Mrs. Parsons' home at No. 785, Milwaukee avenue; then the procession will march to Aurora Turner hall, on Huron street, near Milwaukee avenue, where the remains of Spies will be guarded by the Aurora Turn-Verein, of which Spies was German typographical union will take ready." charge of the remains of Fischer, and the to secure speakers, both English and Ger- appearing like ghosts up the steps of the man, and the services of several singing gallows. societies. be at Aurora Turner hall.

Rumors of Dissolution - tharges of Bood. ling in Connection With the Outlay.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 12. - Important developments are daily expected. The split in the cabinet has grown serious, and rumors of dissolution are rife. Attorney General Hamilton in the east, has been wired to return at once, and Hon. Mr. Lariviere, provincial treasurer, has tendered his resignation. A break up of the ministry is anticipated. It only succeeded in retaining power last session by the vote of men not elected straight ministerialists and the majority even then was only four. A dissolution or change in government is bound to come. The trouble has been brought to a head by the failure of the Red River Valley railway scheme and charges against the government in connection with the Hudson Bay railway. The Free Press has charged the provincial government with issuing $256,000 worth of provincial bonds to the contractors, Mann and Pelt, and with giving 256,000 acres of | in front of the store formerly kept by Engel land, without taking security, as provided | and was harrangued by the brother of the in the provincial statutes. Rumors of boodling in connection with this road are flying, and a number of prominent individuals are said to be deeply implicated.

WIMAN TO CHAMBERLAIN.

The Resolutions Passed by the Inter-Provincial Convention.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12. - Erastus Wiman has written Joseph Chamberlain a letter, drawing his attention to the resolutions of the recent Canadian inter-provincial conference in favor of commercial union between the United States and Canada, Mr. Wiman says: "No event in the recent history of Canada bears a significance comparable with this resolution from a body so essentially representative, so fully informed of the people's desires, yet so we'll qualified to judge of what is best for the interests of the country. The conclusions thus reached are a fitting culmination of a movement toward a desire for a changed condition of relations between the two countries, the rapidity and growth of which has had no parallel in the history of any country. Your attention is drawn to the strong sentiments of loyalty to British institutions which pervades the resolutions, and the absence of any fear that the connection between the colony and the mother country will in any degree be imperilled."

FREE SPEECH IN LONDON.

There's so Be an End to It as to the Meetings in Trafalgar Square.

LONDON, Nov. 12. - A deputation of west end tradesmen waited on Mr. Matthews, home secretary, yesterday and urged him to maintain the prohibition of meetings in Trafalgar Square and to afford increased protection to the tradesmen and other residents of the vicinity. Mr. Matthews said the government was most unwilling to interfere with open air meetings, but that it was convinced that no useful purpose was served by the meetings in Trafalgar Square. On the contrary the gatherings there had been tumultuous and disorderly. He recommended that the residents in the neigh: borhood swear out information that the meetings are dangerous to the public peace.

Some of its Members Accused of a Desire to Revive Fenianism.

DUBLIN, Nov. 12.-A complete disunion of the Gaelic athletic association has taken place. After a meeting at Thurles, Father Scanlon and the delegates from Tipperary, Kilkenny, Wicklow, Wexford and Dublin withdrew from the organization, accusing the other members of an intention to clash with the national league and form a fenian association. Archbishop Croke has also resigned. The Freeman's Journal deprecates the disunion and says serious misin longer in Tings and have the back of an are Scenes Occurring on the Street During the Erecution-The Row One Man Made-Homes of the Dead Men Last Night-Fischer's Brother Talks.

CHICAGO, Nov. 12. - A correspondent has described the last moments of the condemn ed men's lives. When Sheriff Matson finished reading the death warrant to Spies the doomed editor said : "Sheriff, you are now about to commit a judicial murder. " He stepped quickly from his cell threshold to be pinioned and hidden in the white shroud. Taking his watch from his pocket he requested it to be delivered to his mother. A strong leather belt was then passed around his body, securely fastening his arms straight down to where a pair of bright hickel plated manacles behind him fastened his wrists together.

Fischer was more indifferent than Spies. He told the sheriff that he was a judicial murderer. He nodded to Spies and asked him how he felt. Spies replied that he felt Sharp Parsons had nothing to say. He stepped lightly from his cell, but drew back involuntarily at the sight of the three ghostly looking figures shi uded before him. Again he stepped out, now with a look of defiance. "Bind me tight," he said, "and be sure and make no mistake." Parsons had member. But the grotesque laugh stopped in an instant, and Parsons meekly cast his eyes upward at the dangling line above him. The execution was delayed from 10 to 12 to permit of the gevernor giving an answer to Capt. Black's final appeal. The sheriff did not let the anarchists speak, lest what they said, in addition to written statements, might add to the public excitement. The drop of the gallows made a noise as if a house were falling. Some of the police on guard at the gaol dropped their guns and clapped their hands. On all sides a sense of relief was

Several Exciting Scenes.

A crowd of about 300 people assembled As he spoke ten or twelve policemen cleared the place, pushed Engel into his stose, lock. ed the place up and put out the lights.

The moment the trap fell, and the word reached the outsiders, there was a scene of the wildest excitement. As the throngs were clamouring for a confirmation of the the news the East Chicago avenue patrol waggon, with gong at full play, dashed down Clark street. "Fire!" "Look out for the engines!" "Make way, make way!" and the crowd rushed with crushing force upon the walks. At the corner of Kinzie street the waggon encountered a mass of struggling beings. In the centre a half dozen policemen were struggling with a prisoner, who had attracted attention by loud and insurrectionary remarks. Officer Garrity seized the orator by the shoulders and told him to "move on." As he did so the officer struck the man across the hips with his club. Instantly he whipped a revolver from his hip pocket. As quickly Officer Smith wrenched it from his hand and hit him on the ear. In the vigorous clutches of the officer the man was dragged to the patrol box. It was in response to this that the patrol waggon dashed up. The prisoner, who was locked up, said his name was Edward Luce, of Logansport, a freight conductor by occupation.

Another exciting event was the arrest of Mrs. Parsons. With red glistening eyes and dressed in widow's weeds, accompanied by her two children, and closely followed by Mrs. Holmes, ex-editor of The Alarm, Mrs. Fischer, Miss Engel and one other woman, she appeared before the police at the corner of Clark and Michigan streets. Mrs. Parsons was stopped by the police, who gently informed her that she could go no further. She cried:

"I must go," as her dark eyes flashed forth fire. "I am Lucy Parsons. These are my children. We must go to the gaol. They must see their father."

"It is impossible," exclaimed two officers in chorus. "No one can pass here. Entrance can only be had at Dearborn street." "I will go," exclaimed Mrs. Parsons, and with a determined effort she darted under the ropes. In an instant four stalwart officers had her in hand. She was lifted over the ropes and again stood outside the lines. "You must obey the law," they said, "or it may go hard with you."

"The law," she yelled, "what do I care for the law and my husband being murdered! Shoot me, kill me, if you will." She. finally succumbed and turned to go. Her companions, with the exception of Mrs. Homes, left her, but together the two women, her little children walked down Clark street to Kinzie and thence around to Dearborn avenue. On she went until she met another cordon of police and another rope. Her resistance here was so stubborn that Capt. Buckley was last compelled to order her arrest. Finally a call was sent in for the East Chicago avenue patrol waggon. Little Albert Parsons, jr., and his smaller sister moralifted in and Mes. Parenes was assist-

Once at the station the prisoners were not booked nor locked in a cell. They were released at 2.10. Mrs. Parsons looked very sad and down-hearted. In meek tones sho asked a reporter :

"Is the bloody business over?" When told that it was she made no answer.

Handing Over the Bodies.

The bodies of Spice, Fischer and Parsons were taken from the goal at 1:45 o'clock. For Spice a hearse had been provided. The corpses were taken to an undertaker's shop, dressed, and allowed to rest until taken to the homes of relatives. Fully a hundred persons followed the waggon that transferred Engel's remains to his old home. People pushed and shoved to get a sight of the interior of the store in which Lingg's body lay while an undertaker did his best to make the mangled face more sightly. It was some hours after Engel's body lay in state in his old home before the suicide's remains were placed beside it. At the undertaker's shop, where the bodies of Spies, Parsons, and Fischer were cared for, Mrs. Parsons was the most noticeable person. A little woman clothed in black, with her face covered by a heavy veil, held Mrs. Parsons' hands. This was Mrs. Van Zandt. A small bowed figure sat alone in a corner. It was Mrs. Spies, the anarchist's mother. She rocked to and fro in an agony of grief.

At the Aurora Turner hall a flag was half mast, and in the saloon below groups of men expressed their disapproval of the hanging. The bodies of all the anarchists were embalmed. The doors of the undertaking establish meno, to which the bodies of the dead anarchists were taken, were thrown open at six o'clock this morning, and the crowd, which had been waiting to view the remains, began to file in. Only the bodies of Parsons and Fischer were left to gratify the morbid curiosity of the crowd, the remains of Spies and Engel having already been removed. At 9:30 a.m. the doors were closed, and a half-hour later the bodies were removed to the residences of the dead anarchists. No excitement attended the transfer.

A Renfrew Man Who Was Glad to Surrender-And He Pays in $150.

For weeks special constables have had warrants for the arrest of Joseph Plaunt, proprietor of the Dominion house, Renfrew, on charges of infraction of the Scott act. Most of the time he was away, but paid visits under cover of night. However, Mr. Plaunt found too much "grip" in the law to be comfortable, so on Monday he sent word offering to give himself up, and pay the fines if one of the three cases against him was withdrawn. This was agreed to and Mr. Plaunt placed $150 in his hands and now enjoys freedom again.

How the Chicago Executions Are Regarded in England-Strong Opinions. LONDON, Nov. 12.—The Post, in its comments on the Chicago executions, finds a parallel between the deeds of the Chicago anarchists and the attempts made in Ireland and in London to rule by mob law. Yesterday's execution is a lesson which the English radicals may profit by.

The Chronicle says : "We believe that we represent the general sentiment when we say that the civilived word will breath a sigh of relief now that the last penalty of the law has been visited upon the red-nanded crimi-

The Standard says: "Saunders, who was arrested in Trafalgar square yesterday, may congratulate himself upon being a combatant, however humble, in the same cause with Chicago's just forfeited lives. A study of the Chicago riots and their consequences may be specially recommended to the attention of home rulers of all sorts." The Times, while admitting that the jurors, the judges and the governor of Illinois showed commendable firmness, says that it cannot altogether praise the celerity or certainty of punishment in America. A feature that will specially strike English men is the sternness of the Americans in repressing offences against law and order. It may suggest to Mr. Gladstone and his friends whether there is anything so essen tially incompatible with the liberty of subjects in the methods, in many respects milder, which are the objects of their vehement denunciation." ARE YOU A WALKER?

Until the snow comes the members will content themselves with pedestrianism on country roads. This is a club which all athletic feeling men should join. There is no formality required in order to become a member. The club knows no classes of men; all that is desired is a number of at least fifty men on each tramp, whose object is recreation, exercise or jollity, either all three or any one of these. The present members of the club will be glad to have any one join them in their tramps, and will give a hearty welcome to all new comers at the guns.
