Jas. H. Gilmour, of T. Gilmour & Co., Wholesale Grocers, Brockville, says: I have used "Tamarac Elixir" for a severe Cold and Cough, which it immediately relieved and cured.

Hiram Buker, Lumber and Cheesa Dealer, NorthAugusta, Ont., says: "Tam-arac Elixir" is a wonderful medicine for Coughs and Colds, Throat and Lung Com-plaints. It is without doubt the best medi-cine I ever used, and never fails to give immediate relief. We consider it a hous :hold necessity.

A CHARMING BRETON COSTUME FOR LITTLE GIRLS.

Short Frocks, English Smocks and Bonnets for Children from 1 to 4 Years Old-Aprons That May Be Made Both Decorative and Useful.

The model here presented of a Breton costume for girls of 8 to 10 years of age may be made of any desirable material, laid in flat pleats and set on to the corsage with the edge

The corsage is closed at the side under one of the pleats bordering the plastron and ornamented with buttons put on in Breton style. The band below the gathers at the neck, the plain yoke, the shawl collar and sleeves are embroidered in colored silk. The Also a complete stock of Fine Lambs' knot on the folded waistband is also embroidered to correspond.

Fashions in Aprons.

The bib apron shown in the cut is a dainty affair made of strips of canvas, rounded off below and ornamented with a cross stitch embroidery in filoselle silk and rows of narrow darned net insertion.

The lace frill that trims the lower edge of the apron corresponds with the bib, and is put on to a stiff muslin foundation and crossed below, as seen in the cut. Narrow picot ribbon is used for the waistband and bows. This same design, when so desired, may be made in covered material for a serviceable instead of ornamental apron.

TWO STYLES OF APRON.

The remaining model is also of canvas material and trimmed with crochet. It has a half the length of the apron. It is hemmed above and set over the lower edge and sides, being then caught into the ribbon binding of the apron. The hem of the pocket is stitched as far as the tab trimming on each side. This model, made in a plain way of strong material, also affords a convenient apron for housekeepers to wear when about their work.

Short Clothes for Infants.

The first short frocks put on when the infant is 6 months old, says Harper's Bazar, remain yoke slips of white French namsook, trimmed either with drawn work (hemstitching), feather or brier stitching and tucks done by hand. Bars and lengthwise stripes of the hemstitching are prettily done in the wide hem of the skirt. Belted waist muslin dresses are put on well grown children when a year old, and these, with the yoke slips, are worn until the child is 3 years old, when colored cashmeres are used.

English smocks are also charming dresses for children from 1 to 4 years old. They are made of white China silk, or of cashmere or flannel, with their fullness "smocked" at the top from the neck down almost to the waist line, with feather stitching around the skirt, on the turned over collar, and the smocked frills of the gathered sleeves. The smocking consists of elastic accordion pleats (of which only the edges show), caught in honeycomb or diamond shape by silk stitches; the stitches may be white, rose or blue, but the pure white smocks are prettiest. Three breadths of China silk attached to shoulder bands make one of these little frocks.

Large soft crowned bonnets of cashmere silk and velvet combined are worn by children under 3 years; white, brown, Suede and red are the favorite colors, chosen with reference to the walking coat.

Trimmings for Woolen Goods.

Passementeries are shown in colors to match all the prevailing shades of woolen fabrics, and come not only in the usual galloons, but also in separate garnitures for waist and skirt. Some of these have a military character, and appear in brandebourgs, fourrageres and shoulder ornaments, with olives and balls pendant from black braids, which are used on colored cloths or black.

Jersey Cloth Corsages and Petticoats. Jersey cloth has become a standard fabric, and besides being used for corsages of all varieties of shape and style, is now being manufactured into petticoats for next winter, which are at once light and warm. Some of them are made elaborate with embroidery, the lower edge being scalloped and worked with silk and surmounted by a border of silk embroidery.

Fashion Notes.

Sleeveless waists made entirely of passementeries are worn. Small scarf pins set with gems are worn by both sexes. Umbrellas are now made of pipe stem leanness to admit of their being carried British fashion in all weather, with the same facility as a cane. Many rich toilets are made of plain, softfinished faille throughout, and trimmed with beaded passementeries of the same color. Red brown is a very popular color this season, and seems to meet with equal favor in silks and woolens. The new shade is Morocco. which is a trifle darker than the tobacco brown, and yet brighter than mahogany, and combines very effectively with moss green, fawn and Gobelin blue. Velvet is now, as ever, a favorite combination and trimming material. It can be used in combination with all fabrics, of whatever texture, and is universally becoming when worn near the face.

Fashions in Wall Paper-Arranging Heavy

Draperies-Practical Suggestions. Landscape designs used to be commonly employed on wall papers in our grandmothers' times, and now reappear on some of the new papers for halls.

Satin papers with soft grounds of creamy tint, covered with graceful designs of vines and flowers, such as morning glories, in blue, pink and purple, are favorites for chambers.

blocks of gold alternating with other designs.

Pumpkin Marmalade.

Pumpkin marmalade may be made as follows: Pare and core a medium sized ripe pumpkin and cut into small pieces; put six pounds of sugar and one pint of good cider vinegar into a porcelain lined kettle, with one ounce of good ginger root bruised, and a dozen cloves tied up together in a bag; when it gets warm put in the pumpkin, press it down well and cook until it is quite transparent and soft; take the pumpkin out with a strainer and keep near the fire, while the liquid is boiled down to a thin syrup; then put the pumpkin back into the kettle and boil half an hour, stirring it well with a wooden spoon.

Recipe for Potpourri at Any Season. When one cannot procure rose petals or sweet herbs for making a potpourri, the following mixture will answer nicely in their place, though it is chiefly used for perfuming drawers, chests of linen, etc.: Bruise together four ounces of orris root and sweet flag; add three ounces sandal wood, one ounce cedar, one ounce each of gum benzoin, styrax and nutmeg, powdered; half a dram essence of lemon, one dram millefleurs, twenty drops oil of lavender, ten grains of musk and ten drops attar of roses, and tie up in silk or flannel bags.

A Plant of Merit for House Culture.

Freesias are plants about which we hear rather more just now than for some time past. Though not new they are unknown to the average amateur florist, and they make excellent pot plants. Plants that one wants to bring into blossom at the holidays should be placed in a warm part of the green house at about this time, and toward the middle of December they must be put where they will have a temperature of 70 degs. in the daytime and not less than 60 degs, at night. When in growth they require liberal water-

Preserved Quinces.

Pare, core and quarter nice ripe quinces, removing all the hard part around the core, cover with water and let them come to a boil, skimming them well. Take as much sugar by weight as you had of quinces after paring, etc., and when the quinces begin to be soft add about one-fourth of it, but do not stir, and when the liquid comes to a boil again add more sugar, and so on till all of it is in. Let the preserves then boil slowly till the color is as deep as is desired.

Beautiful Brown Stain.

A well recommended stain for producing a beautiful, uniform and durable brown or walnut in light woods and furniture consists of equal parts of manganate of soda and crystallized epsom salts in twenty to thirty times the amount of water at about 144 degs. Fahr. The wood is brushed with the solution. It may be afterward smoothed with oil and polished. By lessening or increasing the amount large pocket made of a straight piece of stuff of water the stain is made darker or lighter.

Delicious Corn Bread.

A housewife says that the following makes delicious corn bread: A pint and a half of white corn meal, a tablespoonful of sifted flour, a scant teaspoonful of salt and three heaping teaspoonfuls of baking powder mixed thoroughly together while dry. Add one tablespoonful of fresh butter and a scant pint of sweet milk or cream to make a soft dough; bake at once in a buttered pan.

How Snails Are Cooked.

A southerner tells that snails are very largely consumed as food in New Orleans. They are killed by throwing into hot water. Then the snails are washed in weak lye and the shells in stronger lye. The meats are boiled and then roasted in the shells, with a dressing of bread or parsley.

The Marks of Good Mutton.

Good mutton and good lamb may be known by its fine grain, good color and white fat. The breast is the best part for stews; it is also the cheapest. A breast weighing three pounds will make the principal dish for a dinner for four people, and costs from four to five cents per pound.

Unique Arrangement of a Heavy Drapery. A unique design for the arrangement of a heavy drapery for a portiere, which can also be applied to window draperies, is described by Demorest as follows:

The curtain shown in the cut is heavy old red silk chenille, with a broad band of old blue, and the tassel is of multi colored silk in Persian effects, with old blue silk netting and

FIG. 2-HOW THE DRAPERY IS FOLDED. The second cut shows the manner in which the drapery is folded, attached to the rings and drawn over the curtain pole, which is set in the door frame. The advantage of this arrangement over other methods of hanging a drapery over instead of on the pole is that in drawing the curtain aside the correct position of the folds is maintained by the rings.
