SUSPENSION OF A BANK.

The Central in Trouble The Action of the Other Banks Relating Thereto.

TORONTO, Nov. 16 .- The directors of the Central bank issued the following bulletin last night, and it is posted on the doors of the bank this morning : 'In consequence of the present money stringency the Central bank has not been able to realize on its assets promptly enough to meet immediate demands upon it. has, therefore, for the present suspended payment."

Previous to issuing the bulletin the directors had submitted the bank's case to managers of the other banks in Toronto, and asked them to see it through. This they declined to do, but passed the following reso-

"Owing to there not being time to acquire information sufficient for this meeting to estimate the amount of assistance necessary to aid the Central bank, this meeting approves of the decision of the directors of the Central bank to suspend in the meantime, in order to enable them to realize on their as-

The Central bank was started about four years ago, and did not do a large business. Its capital is $1,000,000 with $500, 000 paid up. David Blain is president and Samuel Trees vice president. It is impossible to give any idea of the bank's position at present, but it is expected that depositors will not suffer any loss. The trouble is attributed to customers not being able to meet their liabilities to the bank. The suspension will, it is expected, not have any effect upon the other banks. There is a large number of small shareholders.

TORONTO, Nov. 16. - Three policemen stood at the door of the Central bank this morning in evident anticipation of the rush of depositors to withdraw their money There was no rush. The managers of the other banks will not hold another meeting till the Central has time to realize its assets and make up a definite statement offits position. None of the banks will accept the Central's bills to-day, but the brokers are taking them at 80c. One or two retail business firms are taking them at par. There is a belief prevalent that the bank, with temporary assistance from other banks, will weather the storm. Many holders of bills have sufficient confidence in its solvency to hang on to them in the expectation of saving 20c. on the dollar.

RAILROAD IN THE ARCTIC.

The Northernmost Railway in the World -To Tap Iron Ore in Mountains.

The Railroad Gazette gives the tollowing account of the northernmost railroad enterprise in the world :- "The Swedish and Norwegian railroad, which is now building from Lulea, on the Gulf of Bothias, to Lafoden, on the North Sea, is partly situated within the Arctic Circle, and is 1,200 miles further north than any railroad in Canada. The winter has not, however, been found too severe by the English employees and their wives, and the snowfall is less than in some more southern latitudes, while the darkness of the long winter nights is partly compensated by the light of the

The line is being built by an English company in order to tap the enormous deposits of iron ore in the Gellivara Mountains. It is feared that the ore in the Bibao district is nearly exhausted, and as this is the main source of supply for many steel works in the United States and Europe, a new field of non-phosphoric ore suitable for steel rail making is very desirable. A considerable demand exists already for the Gellivara ore, and hydraulic machinery capable of delivering on board ship 10,000 tons of ore in twenty four hours is being installed on the company's wharf at Lulea. The engines and cars used have been built in England. The former have eight coupled wheels and weigh 127,000 pounds in working order. The ore cars are made of steel throughout and are of 56,000 pounds capacity."

CROWN PRINCE'S CONDITION.

The Swelling in His Throat Disappearing -But the Danger Remains.

BERLIN, Nov. 16 .- The swelling in the crown prince's throat has almost disappeared. He will walk out to-morrow, the weather permitting. He has decided to remain at San Remo for the winter.

Berlin, Nov. 16.—The present growth in the crown prince's throat consists of a gradnal increase. As the prince has declared himself opposed to the extirpation of the whole larynx, difficulty of breathing will sooner or later arise and probably necessitate tracheotomy. The physicians recom mend that he spend the summer in the south, where it will be more possible to maintain his strength. Precautions have been taken at San Remo to have surgical assistance in readiness in case tracheotomy is decided

The Reichsanzeiger makes the statement that during the examination at San Remo of the crown prince's larynx the physicians were able to ascertain that the malady consisted of a malignant new growth, mainly situated below the vocal cord and back of the margin of the larynx. Small beginnings of growth were also perceptible on the right side. Up to this time the ailment has been local, and has not affected the crown prince's general health, but now there is

A FIERCE FIGHT OCCURS

M'AULIFFE AND CARNEY PUMMEL AWAY FOR FOUR HOURS.

They Were Still Able to Stand up to Each Other, and the Battle was Declared a Draw-The Betting on the Issue-Sporting Notes Generally-Clark's Challenge to Shaw.

BOSTON, Nov. 16. -Jem Carney and Jack McAuliffe left South Framingham at about 7 o'clock last evening to engage in their fight for the light-weight championship of the world and $5,000. Carney was accompanied by Patay Sheppard and Nobby Clark. He was the picture of health and expressed himself as very confident and longing for a chance to get at McAuliffe. McAuliffe expressed similar desires, and the prospects were that the battle would be a desperate one. The Brooklyn boy was accompanied by Jack Dempsey and Con McAuliffe. Jack looked well and said he never felt better. The delay occasioned by the fighters had given the scouts time to get on the location of the ring, and they flocked to the place in large numbers. When the managers sought to shift the place and give the mob a throw off, lively times ensued. Soon arrangements were made to have the battle in a barn attached to the Atlantic hotel at Revere beach, and from the first the battle was terrific. Carney showed perfect command of his mawlers and early in the fight got first blood. McAuliffe justified the hopes of his friends, and from the start fought honestly and well. It was after one o'clock when the men entered the ring. In the first round McAuliffe forced the fighting, and by his rushes forced Carney down three times either by his weight or through slips. In the fifth round Carney led, and by a feint got short range and did great damage on Jack's short ribs. The Brooklyn boy did great countering and Carney's face was visited frequently. From the fifth to the tenth round Carney increased his advantage and McAuliffe was terribly punished. From the tenth to the twentyfirst round the fighting was of a desperate character, but slow, neither man being badly punished. The battle was of a kind that beggais description, and the crowd was wildly ex cited. The twenty one rounds took one hour and twenty-three minutes, and although McAuliffe had a shade the best of it at that time seemingly yet the Carney men were jubilant. The betting was then in favor of McAuliffe two to one. So far Carney's tactics were in accordance with his expressed intentions to worry and tire McAuliffe and murder him in the ring. 'Mc-Auliffe forced the fighting, but so little punishment did he do to Jem that the friends of the latter asserted he was sure to win. At the forty-first round it was seen that Carney's tactics were bound to be successful, in spite of the splendid staying powers of McAuliffe. The Brooklyn boy was full of great shape as long as he had enough life in him to hold up his hands or stand on his | England has never yet succeeded in govern

At 4:30 o'clock Carney and McAuliffe had fought but fifty-four rounds. The fiftyfourth was a desperate one, but both men were still strong. The betting changed with every round, but as a rule Carney was the favorite. At small odds the ring was broken down in the seventy-fourth round. As both men were able to continue, the referee postponed the fight, the time for the next-meeting to be mutually agreed upon. The fight lasted four hours and fifty-five minutes.

A Brutal Tussle All Through. Boston, Nov. 16.-Another account of the Carney-McAuliffe fight says the latter split Carney's nose open in the twelfth round. In the sixty-second round McAuliffe's left ear was cut open. The sixty sixth round was marked by terrific exchanges of blows, either of which seemed hard enough to knock out either of the men, but both fought like demons and stood the punishment like men of iron. In the sixty-ninth round Carney butted McAuliffe in the breast with his head and forced him to the floor. Mc-Auliffe's friends became greatly excited and repeatedly called "foul." Many of them broke into the ring. Quiet was restored and the fight went on, but in the next round McAuliffe's friends claimed that Carney had kicked his antagonist in the abdomen and again claimed foul. Great excitement ensned when the claim was not allowed, but the fight went on with the same frightful slugging that had so far characterized most of the struggle. In the seventy-fourth and last round after some heavy exchanges the men clinched and fell with Carney on top. The friends of both parties rushed into the ring claiming the fight for either man. Everybody claiming a "foul." When the referee could be heard he declared that as this was a fight to the finish and neither man had been knocked out, he should not do otherwise than postpone the fight to some other time.

The report that a scheme was on foot to form Eastern and Western base-ball leagues out of the present National league and American association appears to have some foundation. The scheme is to form two organizations, one in the east and the other in the west, and both to consist of eight clubs. The Eastern league to be made up as follows: Washington, Baltimore, Philadel-cago, St. Louis, Louisville, Cincinnati, Indianapolis, Cleveland, Detroit and probably Milwaukee or Buffalo. In regard to the brotherhood J. B. Day, of New York, said: "While we are all opposed to secret societies we will give the brotherhood a hearing on Wednesday to see what it means. If we are convinced that it will jeopardize the dignity of the national game we will have none of it and most assuredly the brotherhood will get the worst of the deal."

He lowered it for the purpose of fixing the carbon, and while in the act of raising one of the feeding rods with a piece of wood about four inches long fell insensible to the ground. The electricity passed through the wood and burned the two fingers of his right hand with which he held the stick and then continued its course through his body. Some passer-by who noticed the accident hurried to Mr. Vanaskey's assistance and raised the lamp for him. Had he touched any part of the lamp where the electric current could be felt, with his left hand, he would undoubtedly have been killed instantly.
