WHAT SHALL WE WEAR?

NEW STYLES IN PENDANTS, SCARF PINS AND CUFF BUTTONS.

All About the New Fur Garments, Including Descriptions of Seal Scaques, Coats, Jackets and Visites—Two Attractive Models for Indoor Toilets.

Two charming indoor toilets are here presented. The one with the short basque bodice and full plain skirt may be made of any soft wool material in delicate color. The pretty jabot is of figured satin, and the loops trimming the edge of the bodice, as also the rosettes, are of white figured satin.

INDOOR TOILETS.

The remaining model gives a pleasing Parisian toilet for afternoon receptions. The toilet from which the cut was taken is of plain surah and white flowered silk. The surah is employed for the front pleated trimming on the foundation skirt and the folded stripes on the V neck opening. The short bodice and upper skirt, as will be seen, are made of the flowered fabric. Attention is called to the cut of the bodice and the style of the elbow sleeves.

Fashions in Furs.

Many new features are seen in fur garments this season. The popular seal saque is not changed from last year's perfected shape, with its double breasted front, fitted coat, coat sleeves, shawl collar, and even length of from forty to forty-five inches; but the novelties are seen in the seal jackets, which are fitted with all the precision of tailor made cloth jackets, and in the fur mantles and long cloaks that appear as supple and flowing as the most graceful velvet garments made by the Paris modistes.

The fashionable short seal jacket for young and middle aged women to wear with gown of any color is made in tailor style, closely fitted all around, single breasted, closed over the shoulder, with a high standing collar and coat sleeves, and its average length is twenty-three or twenty-four inches. This is merely looked in front, and when new is usually without trimming.

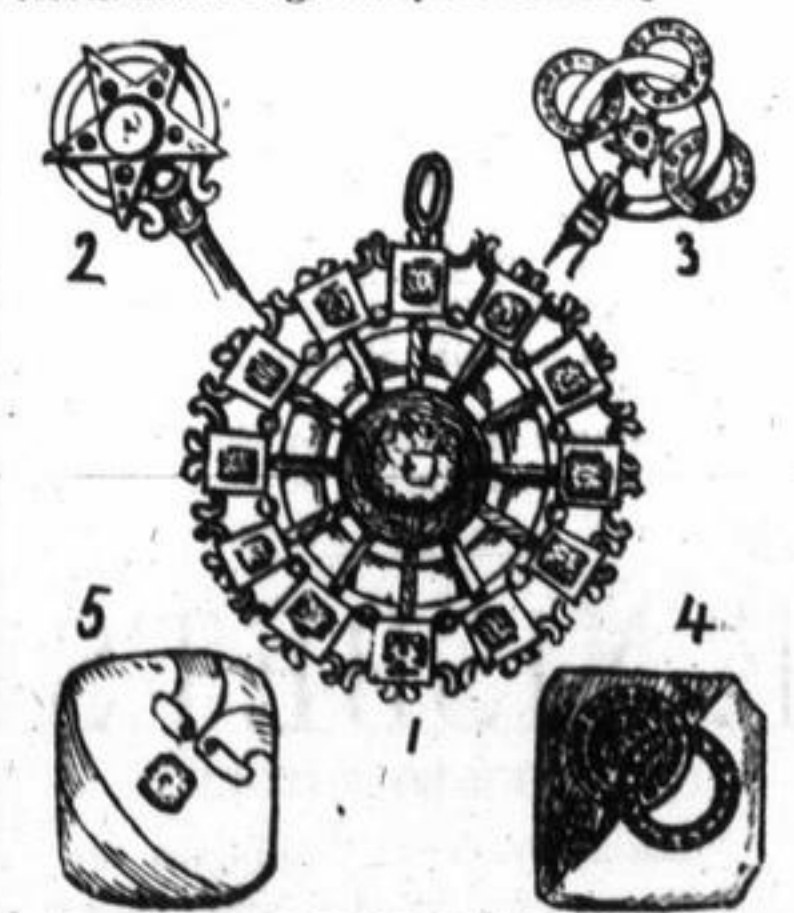

Sling sleeve mantles of sealskin are very stylish short wraps, and are made sufficiently warm for midwinter by a close jacket front, which appears like a vest under the turned up fronts of the cape. The back is closely fitted, like a basque, with large box pleats on the shoulder held in place by a belt inside, and the collar is high and warm. The visette, with its short back, square sleeves and long pointed front, remains the most generally popular of all fur wraps, and is especially liked for stout figures, as it conceals their outlines and adds nothing to the apparent size.

For long cloaks of sealskin the elegant choice for a tight fitted garment is the Russian coat. This greatcoat is double breasted, with bell sleeves, and is open up the skirt in the back; its special feature is its large collar, rolling up by the ears, with the chin sinking in the long fleece of silver fox, sea otter, Russian sable or other rich fur used for the trimming. This garment is a shape in great favor for opera cloaks of fawn or blue plush, with the great collar and lining of white crinkled Chinese lambskin. Similar coats for carriage use are of dark green, blue, or terra cotta cloth or plush trimmed with black caracul fur—the long waved fur formerly called Astrakhan, or Russian lamb, which is revived by Paris and London cloak-makers.

Long, easy fitting dolmans, with great fullness in the back of the skirt or else opened up the back, are made more comfortable by new arrangements of their sleeves, giving the arms greater freedom. These have square or pointed sleeves, are double breasted, and are very widely bordered across the foot with contrasting fur; these, like the visites, are becoming alike to stout and slender figures.—Harper's Bazar.

New Things in Jewellery.

The accompanying cut represents several new models in jewellery, designed and described by The Jeweller's Review, and certain to be popular during the incoming season. The design marked 1 is a diamond brooch or pendant of circular form, and represents one of the most fashionable articles in jewellery of the present time, the fact that it can be made to do double duty being largely in its favor. Surrounding a chased center set with a diamond is a hollow wire ring in plain Roman finish, clasped around which are smaller rings connecting the chased center with an outer row of diamond set squares forming an open work border. Wire work scrolls at the edge complete the design.

PENDANT—JERSEY PIN—CUFF BUTTONS.
 No. 2 is a jersey or scarf pin, as it is variously termed. This is worn by both sexes and is a very popular ornament. The one shown in the cut consists of a star with an open center and ruby points overlaying a chased ring.
 No. 3 is a Roman scarf pin, in which a plain ring interlocks with three smaller chased rings, a diamond occupying the center.
 Nos. 4 and 5 represent new patterns in sleeve buttons. The first mentioned is a square Belcher clove button in Roman finish, half chased. Two intertwined wreaths, slightly raised, one of diamonds and the other of rubies, lie like garlands upon the surface. The remaining model is an antique Roman Felcher button with ribbon ornamentation and diamond center.

HOW BEN. BUTLER GOT RICH.

Young Men of To-Day May do Likewise if They Follow Advice Given.

General B. F. Butler being asked for some suggestions on gaining success, stated that when he was a young lawyer, practicing in Lowell, Mass., a bank president advised him to take his little deposit and buy real estate, from which he could be deriving some revenue. The general said that he had but little money and was uncertain as to his future.

"Never mind," said the bank president, "go to the next public auction of real estate, bid off a lot with a building of some kind on it, pay down what money you have and give your promissory notes for the balance. You will come out all right."

General Butler says this advice was good. When a man has obligated himself, by his notes, to pay money at a certain time it inclines him to economy. He followed the advice, and in time became the owner of several parcels of valuable real estate in Lowell.

Two classes will not be likely to heed such advice—the improvident and the over-cautions. The latter will be apt to say: "It would be all right but for those dreadful promissory notes. They are always running on and if a man falls sick, they do not wait for him to get well."

There is this danger, of course, but one can make no business venture without some risk, and with the knowledge acquired by recent investigations of the cause of most ordinary ailments, and the means of cure, one runs little risk from that source. It is now known that most of the common ailments have their origin in deranged kidneys. They are the chief blood purifiers of the system and when disordered a breaking down somewhere is soon inevitable, because the poison, which in their healthy condition is eliminated, is carried through the entire system.

Put them in order, and health returns.

C. D. Dewey, a successful man, president of the Johnston Harvester Company, Batesville, N. Y., gives his experience as follows: "In 1882 my health was failing, my head pained me constantly, my appetite was uncertain, I could not sleep soundly. I attributed this to the extreme pressure of business cares, but I grew worse and finally was confined to my bed for two months. It seemed as though I would 'never recover' my former health. Under the aid of stimulants I gradually gained strength, so that in a few months I was able to attend to business, but I could walk only with the assistance of a cane, and then in a slow and unsteady manner. I continued somewhat in the same condition until February last, when I used Warner's safe cure. It has cured me. I consider it a valuable remedy and can highly recommend it."

Young men have but to use ordinary prudence, and when any derangement occurs if they use the same means as did this successful business man, they may feel a constant assurance of their ability to carry to successful conclusion all ordinary business projects, including the care of their promissory notes when due.
