NACAL PALM

Mr. E. H. McCrea, of the Hudson Bay Co. West Lynne, Man:toba, says: I suffered from Catarrh for a number of years, and expended upwards of $200 employing physicians and catarrh specialists, buying different remedies, inhalants, douches, etc., without obtaining relief. Your advertisement in Toronto Mail induced me to invest fifty cents in Nasal Balm. I sent for a package, and must say it was the best investment I ever made. It gave me immediate relief, and in less than two weeks the droppings from the nasal passages into my throat entirely ceased. I would urgently advise all afflicted with catarrh to use Nasal Balm.

THE IRISH QUESTION

TULLAMORE JAIL, WHERE SULLI-

Something About Pyne, M. P., and the Ingenious Method He Adopted to Address the League and at the Same Time Avoid the Consequences of the Law.

The Irishman is a humorous being, put him where you will; so, with all the woe and ill feeling of the present peculiar political and semi-military campaign in Ireland, there are many funny features. The running to and fro of the police and military to head off this or that popular orator, who is like the typical Irish flea, "not there when you put your finger on him," the practical jokes in misleading the officers and the devices resorted to to hold forbidden meetings all have their amusing aspects. Perhaps the queerest performance is that of Douglas Pyne, member of parliament for West Waterford, who has shut himself up in an old tower and barricaded the entrance, bidding defiance to the officers, while he harangues the crowds that occasionally gather. On a recent occasion he had himself lowered to within fifteen feet of the ground from a window seventy feet high and seated in a swinging chair addressed a large body of his constituents. When there are no "peelers" or "bobbies" in sight he receives delegations of his supporters and friends. He has the old tower supplied with provisions to last him and his companions till parliament assembles, when he will be exempt from arrest.

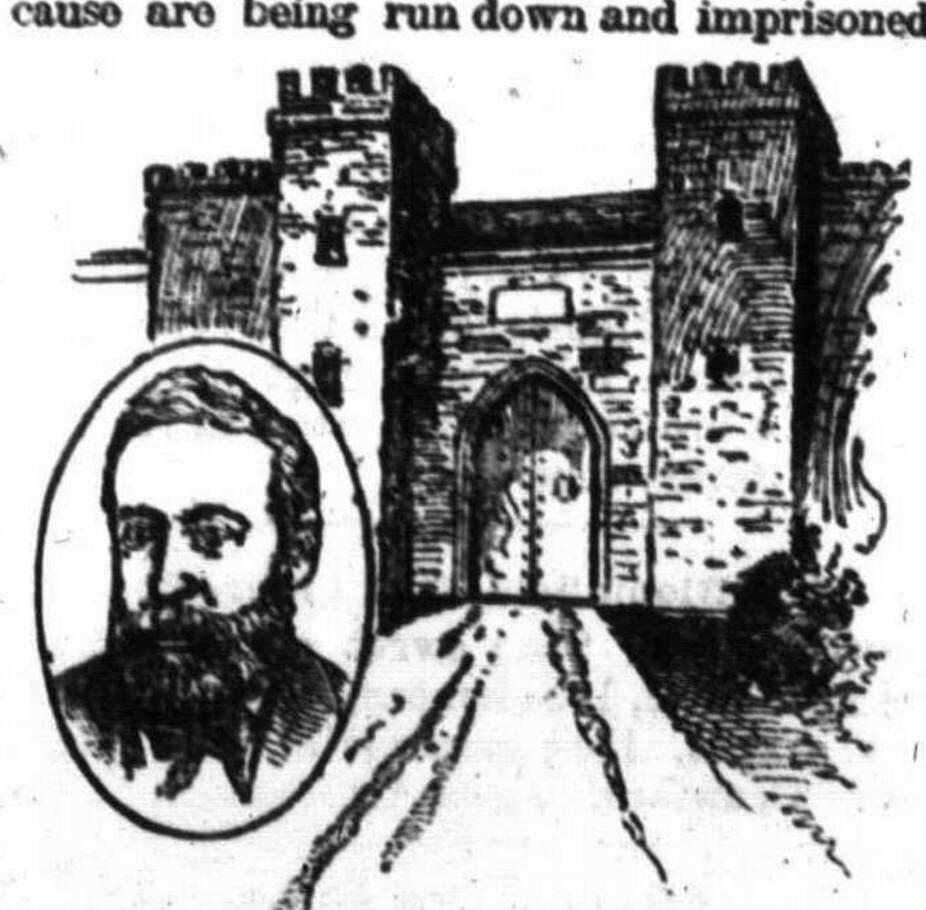

DOUGLAS PYNE AND HIS CASTLE.

The tower is part of the old and buried castle of Lisfinny, and is on Mr. Pyne's farm, and it is still strong enough to require the use of cannon to dislodge the "garrison"-an extreme to which the authorities, of course, will not resort. So the police go out occasionally, take a look at the situation and retire in good order. The castle is on the border line of Waterford and Cork, in the very center of the region most inveterately hostile to British rule through all the ages since James I. The walls of the tower rise 100 feet. They are pierced with the narrow windows seen in old towers, and aside from the peculiar use now made of it the tower is an object to great interest to travelers. Mr. O'Brien and Lord Mayor Sullivan, however, are not having so much fun in their close quarters in Tullamore prison. This prison is a large and imposing structure, of which the foundation stone was laid early in the reign of George IV by Baron Tullamore, lord of the soil. There is room in it, of the kind, for 200 prisoners. Hon. T. D. Sullivan, lord mayor of Dublin, has a great reputation as a poet; he is editor and proprietor of The Dublin Nation, a paper founded by Gavan Duffy, and after his exile edited by A. M. Sullivan, brother of the imprisoned lord mayor. He has always been conservative among the Irish patriots, and consequently lost much of his popularity; still he was once sentenced to six months' imprisonment for publishing matter offensive to the government. His book, "New Ireland," is a racy and readable sketch of the principal events between 1830 and 1875. Many of T. D. Sullivan's productions have been set to popular airs and are sung by all ranks of the people; his "God Save Ireland" has thus become a national hymn. When first arrested the poet had just been elected lord mayor of Dublin and came into court in his official robes, just as he had left the mayor's seat. On that occasion he was acquitted; but on the second trial, for publishing meetings of the proclaimed National league, he was convicted and sentenced to two months' imprisonment. He was first imprisoned in Dublin, but his friends flocked to his prison in such numbers that the inexorable Balfour thought such daily levees no punishment and ordered him sent to the more secluded Tullamore, where he and O'Brien suffer together. Mr. O'Brien's clothes were stolen by his jailers, to force him to wear the prison garb; but his friends smuggled in to him a new suit of Blarney tweed-another "offense" of which the police are seeking the perpetra-

Another highly humorous victim is Mr. Cox, M. P. for West Clare, who remains at large, moving from point to point, and addressing his constituents while the police are chasing after him. So complete is the popular sympathy that he always has warning of their coming in time to "move on to the next meeting." He enjoys the run hugely and hopes the police does. Mr. Gilhooly, another M. P., is also on the run; but one by one those lively defenders of the popular cause are being run down and imprisoned.

TULLAMORE JAIL AND T. D. SULLIVAN.

The noted and devotedly loved John Dillon has gone to Scotland to plead his people's cause, and a warrant for his arrest is out. Let the right of the matter be as it may, the world cannot but admire the persistence with which Irishmen have maintained the long and unequal contest.

An Oddity in Nature.

A curious city like group of rocks near Milan has been described to the Paris Academy of Science. It is about 2,500 feet above the sea and is known as Montpellier-le-Vieux. An irregular mass of rocks some 200 feet high resembles the towers of a citadel, and this is surrounded by five depressions 300 or 400 feet deep, of which one appears like an ampitheatre, a second a necropolis, a third a parade and another a regularly laid out city quarter with public monuments, gates, straight streets and intersections suggesting at once such places as Pompeii, Carnac and Persepois. The whole, of some 200 acres, is surcounded by a rocky wall 300 or 400 feet high, while the ravines beneath and the neighboreg rock groups add to the fortified appear-

FEMALE SWINDLERS.

The Latest One is Mmc. Marion La Touche of New York City.

The notoriety of Mrs. Howe, women's banker, had scarcely dimmed when another still more daring swindler appeared, and after figuring by many names is now in a New York prison under the taking title of Mme. Marion La Touche.

Her method in New York city was to advertise that any lady who could deposit $300 should have employment at $20 per week; but growing bolder by success she adopted "Mrs. Howe's" plan of promising enormous dividends, in one case as high as $50 a week on a deposit of $300. How many ladies she swindled will never be known, as the victims do not care to be laughed at as well as lose their money; but her office at No. 165 West Twen-do not care to be laughed at as well as lose their money; but her office at No. 165 West Twenty-third street was furnished in good style, and the documents captured indicated many victims. Finally Mrs. Clara Johnson "got her mad up" to the point of prosecution. She is a widow, had deposited her money and ited her money and . MARION LA TOUCHE. wanted it back, and the swindler prosecuted; but when the two came into the Jeffers Market police court, a stranger would have thought the tearful and timid widow on trial and the nonchalant "La Touche" a disinterested spectator. At first the swindler put on a bold front, refused to answer any questions and told the policemen to find out her history for themselves. But they did not have to. They had it all down, and astonished her with their information. In fact, they had her record for seventeen years, during which shee had been "Mrs." Warren," "Mrs. Dow" and "Mrs. Ware," had lost two husbands with suspicious sudshe hinted when confronted with the record, "it is astonishing how much these fellows do

Her maiden name was De Grass, and when they were jointly indicted for forgery in St. John, N. B., her father, Jacob Grass, to save himself, testified against her. The jury was so disgusted they disagreed, and she escaped. Nearly seventeen years ago she and her husband, Warren, were indicted in Boston for swindling, but escaped conviction, and he died. She married one Dow and went to keeping boarders; he died suddenly, and she was arrested for raising a certificate of Michigan railroad stock from one share to sixty. She next figured in Chicago as "Mrs. Ware," but "Mr. Ware" has not materialized. In 1881 she formed a partnership with La Touche, and after "mutual trials," in which both were convicted, she married him last year. She kept quiet some time and then took up the "banking swindle."

DR. MORRIS M. HENRY.

A New York Physician Honored by the Sultan of Turkey.

Gen. Lew Wallace, Samuel S. Cox and Dr. Morris M. Henry, of New York city, can now have an exclusive little fraternity of their

the only Americans who have been honored with the decoration of the high Turkish order of Medjidie. Messrs. Cox and Wallace received theirs direct from the hands of the sultan, as both have been ministers to Constantinople: but

HENRY. never been in Turkey, and his decorative star and accompanying emblems of crescent, etc., were presented to him at his residence, 581 Fifth avenue, New York, by the Turkish minister to Washington, M. Mavroyeni, to whom the decoration had been transmitted by the sultan. The history of this award is highly honorable to Dr. Henry, and is something of a compliment to the country. The doctor has given much study to diseases of the blood and veins, and his works on those subjects have become standard authorities in the east, especially in Turkey, where so many soldiers are incapacitated by perversions of the venous system, largely caused by the climate. Dr. Henry's methods were so successful there that the sultan naturally looked on him as the most worthy of Americans, next to Gen. Wallace and Sunset Cox. Dr. Henry was born in London, July 26, 1835; was educated in Belgium and

The annexed cut will give a fair idea of the decoration. On the pendant the star and crescent are of gold with red enamel; the seven pointed star below is of silver beautifully chased and pointed with red enamel, and in the center on a gold ground is the word "Medijidie," around it in the band inscriptions in Turkish.

The Iowa Soldiers' Home.

Iowa, following the example of other northern states, has built a home for veteran soldiers. The building is now completed and was recently dedicated. The next day it was opened for occupants. The home stands upon a commanding elevation about one mile northeast of Marshalltown near the center of a 120 acre tract which was purchased by subscriptions of citizens. The building is 216

In the recesses thus formed is a veranda 130 by 14 feet, on which the veterans can lounge and take the air. A simple inscription on the corner stone denotes the use for which the building is designed. It reads: "Iowa forgets not the conceale s of the Hama."
