TEA AND "SAKI" DRINKING IN JAPAN—HOW RICE IS EATEN.

Story of a Bright Little English Pug. A Brief But True History of "Old Sorrel," "Stonewall" Jackson's War Horse.

"Old Sorrel," the war horse of "Stonewall" Jackson, had a very eventful history. It is true that his birth was obscure, but at an early age he was selected with a number of other horses, after the battle of Manassas, for the service of the United States, and was on his way to Washington when the train in which he was a passenger was captured near Harper's Ferry by a party of Confederate soldiers commanded by "Stonewall" Jackson. There is reason for believing that Sorrel must have been a promising sort of animal even in that early stage of his eventful career, for Gen. Jackson selected him from out the lot of horses for his own use, paying $150 to the quartermaster for the privilege of possessing him.

"OLD SORREL."

With the exception of the campaign in Maryland, Gen. Jackson rode this horse in every battle and on every march from the time he bought him until he reached Chancellorville. There he received the fatal bullet, seated on "Old Sorrel's" back. On the eventful night when this Confederate general fell wounded to death the horse was lost sight of, but was picked up a day or two after by Gen. Stuart. "Old Sorrel" was then sent to Mrs. Jackson, the general's widow, who took the horse with her to North Carolina and afterwards to Richmond, where he was treated like a hero. During the New Orleans exposition he was on exhibition. Later on, having reached an age when he was entitled to a place on the retired list, he was sent to the Confederate Soldiers' home. At this home he died at the advanced age of 36 years. The cut represents "Old Sorrel" as he appeared after having been stuffed and mounted by an expert taxidermist.

A Grateful Pug.

A gentleman who tells the story of a grateful pug owns a fine dog, a cross between a collie and Newfoundland. The animal inherits enough of the shepherd dog to serve as tender to care for the cows and drive them home from pasture; he is also an excellent watch dog. This gentleman also owns an English pug, a bright little fellow, but having a horror of water. A brook runs through the meadow near the house. Not long since the pug and Tiger were on the meadow, and the latter crossed the brook. The pug came to the brink, but refused to take to the water. Old Tiger took in the situation in a moment, returned and persuaded the little fellow to get upon his back, and then began to wade across; the pug slid off into the water and yelled with fright, but he got out all right. After this occurrence the pug was fed most bountifully. Eating only a portion of what was given to him, he hunted up Tiger, who was on the meadow, and brought him to the house, sat down, and complacently watched the big dog eat up the rest of his dinner.

Manhood Town.

Just wait, my brave lad, one moment, I pray; Manhood Town lies where? can you tell me the way?

Oh, by toiling and trying we reach the land— A bit with the head, a bit with the hand— 'Tis by climbing up the steep hill Work. 'Tis by keeping out of the wide street shirk, 'Tis by always taking the weak one's part, 'Tis by giving mother a happy heart, 'Tis by keeping bad thoughts and actions down. Oh, that is the way to Manhood Town.

Eating and Drinking in Japan.

In Japan tea drinking is a great feature. On the railroads tea is provided travelers at the stations as freely as is water in our own country. When one is driving about by private conveyance tea is obtained at little roadside inns called "tea houses," tea being the most prominent refreshment offered. Tea is also given to shoppers when they make purchases at the Japanese stores. Houses among the better classes have as an attachment a tea house, and in these tea houses the social life of Japan is carried on.

JAPANESE LADIES.

But tea is not the only beverage indulged in by the Japanese. A beer distilled from rice and known as "saki" is in general use among them. This saki is prepared for drinking by heating in kettles and is sipped from pretty little bowls or cups, the same as is tea. The cut represents some Japanese ladies drinking saki. The two chief articles of food in Japan are rice and fish. Rice is served in a great lacquered bowl set at the center of the floor, the guests sitting or lounging about it on mats and rugs. Each guest dips into the great bowl a little porcelain cup from which the rice is eaten. When meats are eaten chop sticks are employed, in place of knives and forks, with a dexterity rarely acquired by strangers.

A Cure for Sties.

M. Abadi recommends 3 per cent. solution of boric acid, applied frequently, as a cure for sties.

THE CURIOSITY SHOP.

Is Jefferson Davis Entitled to a Vote? An Affirmative Answer.

Jeff Davis has not been convicted of any crime. It is true that he is disabled from holding office by the third section of the fourteenth amendment, but so are all citizens under certain ages prohibited from exercising certain rights that pertain to citizenship, and foreign born citizens are forever disqualified from holding the office of president and vice president. There is nothing in the constitution and laws of the United States to prevent Mr. Davis voting, even for members of congress and presidential electors. He has a clear right to cast such votes upon performing the preliminary requirements of the laws of Mississippi.

Favorite Lines.

The following verses have been popular for half a century. There is something in them that seems to warrant the prophecy that they will come to the surface from time to time for half a century more:

One eye of beauty when the sun
Was on the banks of Guadalquivir,
To gold converting one by one
The ripples of that mighty river;
Beside me on the bank was seated
A Seville maid with auburn hair,
And eyes that might the world have cheated—
A bright, wild, wicked, diamond pair.
She stooped and wrote upon the sand,
Just as the lovely sun was going,
With such a small, white, shining hand,
You would have sworn 'twas silver flowing;
Her words were three, and not one more.
What should Diana's motto be?
The siren wrote upon the shore,
"Death, not incostancy!"
—And then she turned her languid eyes
So full on mine that, devil take me,
I set the air on fire with sighs,
And was the fool she chose to make me.
St. Francis might have been deceived
With such an eye and such a hand,
Yet one week more and I believed
As much the woman as the sand!

Previous Occupations of Presidents.

George Washington was a surveyor before winning distinction as the commander in chief of the continental army; John Adams, Thomas Jefferson, James Madison, John Quincy Adams, Andrew Jackson, Martin Van Buren, John Tyler, James K. Polk, Millard Fillmore, Franklin Pierce, James Buchanan, Abraham Lincoln, R. B. Hayes, James A. Garfield and C. A. Arthur were lawyers. Jackson, Pierce, Hayes and Garfield were soldiers as well as lawyers; James Monroe, a soldier in the revolutionary war, where he served as captain; William Henry Harrison, Zachary Taylor and U. S. Grant were soldiers; Andrew Johnson was a tailor. Cleveland, as is well known, is by profession a lawyer, and makes the sixteenth lawyer who has been raised to the chief magistracy of the nation.

Methodist Church South.

Vincent L. Milner, in his "Religious Denominations of the World," treating of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, says that it "was formed in 1844. At the general conference of that year differences of opinion on the subject of slavery became so antagonistic that a separation was effected and 1,155 ministers, with 639,164 members, belonging in the southern states, became a distinct ecclesiastical body."

Red Snow.

Is there such a thing as red snow? Yes. It was observed by the ancients and mentioned by Aristotle. Captain Ross found it extending over a range of cliffs on the shores of Baffin's bay for a length of eight miles and a depth of twelve feet. It is caused by the presence of innumerable plants belonging to the order Algae, to which Sir William Palmer gave the name "palmella nivalis."

A Veteran Politician.

Gen. Simon Cameron was first elected to the senate of the United States in 1845, when he succeeded James Buchanan, who resigned to take the position of secretary of state in the administration of President Polk. Gen. Cameron's next service in the senate of the United States began in 1857. He was President Lincoln's first secretary of war. He is still alive.

A Question of Stops.

Properly speaking, "Mr." does not take the period after it, and should be written Mr if any mark is used. The apostrophe (') is used to mark contraction by elision; the period (.) to mark contraction by division. But universal custom makes Mr. an exception to the rule.

An American Soprano.

Clara Louise Kellogg was born in Sumter, S. C., July, 1842. Her father was a Yankee school teacher, who was then principal of the Sumter academy. Her first appearance in opera was in New York, Feb. 27, 1861, at the Academy of Music, as Gilda, in "Rigoletto."

Estimated Chicago Population.

The population of Chicago proper is 750,000. Lake township, which includes Lake View and Gross Park, has 83,000 inhabitants; Central Park, 500; Englewood, 9,000; Hyde Park, 15,700, and Humboldt Park, 4,500, making a total of 832,700 in all.

Christmas or Xmas.

Christmas is often written Xmas in place of the regular name. The X is supposed to represent the cross upon which our saviour was crucified, and is used in place of the name Christ. It is perfectly proper, but rather old fashioned.

The Hell Gate Mine.

The mine prepared to remove the obstructions at Hell Gate, New York harbor, was fired Oct. 10, 1885. There was no severe shock. A dull thud was heard and the whole reef was shattered, but the resultant wave was insignificant.

Only Birth in the White House.

Mrs. Eliza Wilcox is the only person born in the White House. She was the only daughter of President Jackson's adopted son, and was born in the presidential mansion during the administration of "Old Hickory."

A Jew's Sabbath Journey.

A Sabbath day's journey with the Jews was 2,000 yards. This was the traditional distance from the ark to the end of the camp in the Israelites' camp in the wilderness when the Sabbath law was given.

Great American Desert.

The Great American desert, so called, comprised all that region now included in Western Kansas and Nebraska, Colorado, Utah and portions of Texas, New Mexico and Arizona.

A Long Tunnel.

The longest tunnel is that known as the Mount St. Gothard, 48,840 feet, or about nine miles long. It runs from Goesechen in Switzerland to Airolo in Italy.

Mary Anderson's Birthplace.

Mary Anderson was born in Sacramento, Cal., July 23, 1839, and made her first appearance upon the stage at Louisville, Ky., as Juliet, Nov. 27, 1873.
