GALLOWAY'S GREETING

l'eace on earth, good will towards men, Is the theme of our earthly song ; Peace on earth, good will towards men, Should mould our actions all day long.

It should lead us think how best to bring The happy smile, the cheerful ring Of laughter to the cheerless hearth, And thus make glad this dreary earth.

The way is plain: see GALLOWAY'S Furs. There neither cats skin, sheep, nor curs, But just the thing to keep your warm : To keep you free from cold and storm, Which must bring peace in this cold clime. And make your Christmas a happy time.

President Nimick of the Pittsburg club has signed Hardy Henderson, and Albert Maul of the Philadelphia club.

The manager of the Cincinnati base-ball club have decided to have the club spend the winter practicing and giving exhibition games in the south. Freddy Gebhardt will have a formidable string of animals on the track in 1888, and he has already engaged Jockey Day to ride for him. O'Connor will, according to report, double up with Ned Hanlan and row any double scull team in the country when Ned returns from the Antipodes. Hanlan, after fulfilling his engagements in Australia, will visit England and issue a challenge to the world for a race on the Tyne in September. Fred Dunlap goes to the Pittsburg ball club. He is to receive $5,000 a year. Pittsburg paid Detroit $5,000 for Dunlap's release, and Dunlap receive $2,000 of the purchase money.

Holloway's Pills,

When first the nerves feel unstrung, and listlessness supplants energy, it is the right time to take some alterative as Holloway's Pills to prevent disorder running into disease. These excellent Pills correct all irregularities and weaknesses. They act so kindly, yet so energetically, on the functions of digestion and assimilation, that the whole body is revived, the blood is rendered richer and purer, the muscles become firmer and stronger and the nervous and absorbent systems are invigorated. These Pills are suitable for all classes and all ages. They have a most marvellous effect on persons who are out of condition; they soon rectify whatever is in fault, restore strength to the body and confidence to the mind.

SCENE IN A STREET CAR.

Remarkable Generosity Toward a Poor

Woman-Touching Incident. Two richly dressed women boarded a Fourth avenue car the other evening just at dusk. One was young and almost handsome, the other middle aged. They paid their fare out of well filled purses. At Fourteenth street another woman entered. She was pinched, worn and pale, and her dress was shabby and faded. She carried a large bundle of laundry and a baby, while a little girl, scarcely able to toddle, clung to her dress. She sank into her seat with a sigh of relief and put the bundle down on the floor at her feet, then shifted the sleeping infant to her other shoulder and helped the toddler up on the seat beside her. Every movement betokened weariness, and her wan face told plainly of suffering and sorrow. When the conductor approached for her fare the poor woman began a nervous search for her money. She felt down in the pocket of her worn gown, and as she groped within its recesses a look of consternation cross d her face. Presently she looked up in the conductor's face and said: "I can't find my money, I had ten cents in my pocket, but I must have lost it."

"Try again, misses," said the conductor, not unkindly, for even he seemed to be touched by her apparent distress. Again she tried to find the missing coin, even turning the pocket inside out. But there was nothing there. "No, it's gone," she gasped, as she glanced appealingly at the man before her, her lips trembling meanwhile and a suspicion of moisture glistening in her eye. The conductor hesitated for a moment, then hardening his voice, said: "I'm verry sorry, madam, but you can't ride without paying fare."

"Oh, I know it, sir; but I've so far to go, Can't I pay you when I come back! I shall have some money then," And she looked down at her bundle as if that would confirm her statement. But the conductor was proof against the appeal, though to his credit be it said, he was not harsh. "No, that's against the rules. You'll have to get off," he replied, as he reached up for the bell cord.

The other two women had watched the scene with a parent interest, and at this juncture the younger one sprang from her seat toward the conductor and uttered an imperious "No!" Before any one could divine her intention she had opened her purse and emptied its contents into the poor woman's lap-$4 or $5 at the least rattled down in & little shower of coin, while two or three pieces, rolled off on the floor. The next instant the generous young woman was out of the car. Her companion followed after dropping several more pieces of silver into the poor woman's lap. The astonished recipient of the bounty seemed unable to speak. She impulsively covered her treasure with one hand and burying her face against the sleeping infant she sobbed until even the conductor's heart was touched. He picked up the stray coins and placed them with the rest. Then he rang up a fare out of his own pocket, and retired to the rear platform and blew his nose vigorously. - New York Paper.

Danger in Wearing Sealskin Caps.

The recent cold weather has, I see, caused a great number of people to don their scalskin caps; and this has set me to ruminating on the subject of fur coverings for the head, There is no doubt that when we have zero weather and high winds combined, it is absolutely necessary to have the head and ears well protected. If they are left exposed the ears may be frozen, and, even without that, the auditory nerves may be benumbed and paralyzed, for every one has noticed how exposure to a cold blast will make his ears ring. On the other hand, if one owns a fine sealskin cap he will probably wear it straight along from December to March; and during that period there will be a great deal of moderate weather, in which a sealskin is very much too warm for comfort. At such times the possessor of this article of luxury has two courses open to him. He can continue to wear his beautiful cap, in which case his head will be in a perpetual sweat and he will weaken his scalp and perhaps lose his hair; or he can lay aside his sealskin and put on his hard hat, in which case he will have the finest case of influenza and catarrh on record. Any one who wears a sealskin cap should cut out this article and glue it in well on the inside of the crown. - Chicago Journal.

The Reinterment of Napoleon III. The mausoleum at Farnborough erected by the Empress Eugenie for the reception of the remains of Napoleon III and the prince imperial will be completed in a few weeks, and the reinterment, which is expected will be attended by some members of the royal family, will then take place. The church, which is close to the empress' residence at Farnborough, is built in the flamboyant style of architecture, while the crypt is of the Twelfth century style. The floor of the crypt is laid in solid-marble, and the two sarcophagi are of red granite. That for the reception of the late emperor's remains was presented by the queen. The tombs are placed on either side of the crypt, and there is a massive white stone altar at the head of the sepulcher. Adjoining the church is the priory, which has just been completed, and in which the prior (Father Ambrose) and other priests have already taken up their residence.-Foreign Letter.

Foods of the Fatherlands.

The Germans, in their homes and restaurants, boast of having hams, sausages, hares and many other articles of food imported with their wines from the Fatherland; the Italians, even in the Bend, exhibit various gastronomic treasures from Italy, and the variety of canned foods the French always import is now supplemented by regular weekly consignments of what they call "escargots," which is to say snails. But the height of this love for the foods of the fatherlands is reached by the Chinese. If you enter one of their shops in Mott street you will see barrels of dried fowls, dried fishes, dried beans, yams and fruits, dried eels-in fact, the supply would equip the larder of a rich man's house. Yet nearly all these articles can be obtained here fresh for less money .-New York Sun.

At a "Sugar Boiling."

A Georgia newspaper tells of a slender, delicate and sweet young woman who went to a "sugar boiling" the other day. She remained twenty-four hours, during which she ate fourteen stalks of sugar cane and drank fifty-seven glasses of cane juice. - New York

Glasgow iron men are offering $500 reward for the detection of the man who broke their market the other day by sending a forged order for the sale of 15,000 tons.

The crazy quilt craze has had a variation in Connecticut, where a woman has embroidered the notes and words of "Home, Sweet Home," on a linen sheet. The Russian church, which has been in years on the Mount of Olives, is now finished. The Horace Greeley Post, G. A. R., of New York, is formed entirely of printers who bandled "slugs" in war times.

There were twelve candidates. The Sale of Standard Works. Recently a table was published, giving the comparative sales of authors, as gathered from the business of a prominent concern. A reporter obtained from a salesman in the employ of a large news company of New York, a list of sales based on the number of copies of Charles Dickens' works that are sold by that firm. The following table shows that the company sells on the average:

Dickens, 600; Mary J. Holmes, 400; Louisa M. Alcott, 450; Sir Walter Scott, 250; Thackeray, 80; Bulwer, 80; Mrs. E. D. N. Southworth, 100; A. W. Tourgee, 50; Cooper, 50; Hawthorne, 80; Edward Eggleston, 30; Marion Crawford, 50; R. L. Stevenson, 40; Helen Hunt J ckson, 40; Frances Hodgson Burnett, 20; H. Rider Haggard, 20; Pansy books (Lothrop), 5; Beecher, 10; H. Beecher Stowe, 130; May Agnes Fleming, 110; Lew Wallace, 200; George Elliot, 85; Marion Harland, 100; George W. Caffle, 10; F. R. Stockton, 20; W. D. Howells, 20; William Black, 12; R. D. Blackmore, 12; T. B. Aldrich, 10; Wilkie Collins, 3; Charles Reade, 10; Fielding, 2; Henry James, 2; Henry George, 5; Mrs. Augusta Evans, 20; Spurgeon, 20; Talmage, 10. The salesman commented, as he went down the list, as follows: "Edward Eggleston's sales have fallen off largely; sells only in the holidays. Marion Crawford's new book sells well. Helen Hunt Jackson will always sell. The demand for Harriet Beecher Stowe's 'Uncle Tom's Cabin' is as steady as clockwork. 'Ben Hur' is one of the most reliable books to sell we have ever had. H. Rider Haggard sells in spurts. The sales of Dic.ens, Thackeray, Scott and Bulwer scarcely vary from year to year. They are as much a standard article as flour or groceries.

"The most remarkable book we have sold," said the salesman, "is 'Mr. Barnes, of New York.' We have sold 5,000 a week since its first appearance, and have been from 8,000 to 10,000 behind our orders all the while. As it is the first book of the author the sale is beyoud all precedent."

The company sells for all classes of publishers, except those that sell on subscription and on installments. The former do not properly come into comparison, but the latter publish works of a purely literary character. The figures as to the sales of the latter are remarkable. One installment house has agencies in nearly every state in the Union. It gives the following figures of sales of standing authors in one year: Dickens, 50,000 sets, six volumes in a set, $10 a set. This number has been sold for seven years consecutively. Scott, S0,000 sets, nine volumes, at $12; Thackeray, 27,000 sets, eight volumes, at $12; Charles Lever, 12,000 sets, nine volumes, at $12; Shakespeare, 27,000 sets, eight volumes, at $12; William Carleton, the Irish author, 90,000 sets, three volumes, at $5. This represents the total sales of this author, and not the sales per annum.

From this it appears that $500,000 is spent in this country each year for Dickens in one style, $360,000 for Scott, $324,000 for Thackeray, $144,000 for Lever, $324,000 for Shakespeare, $450,000 for Mr. Carleton in seven years. Agents report that fully one-half the families possess Dickens' works. - New York

only nine inches in the mud, hence the winter will be a light one. An old residenter down in Cumberland county has found the discolored head of a large spike in the gizzard of a hen; therefore the winter will be a hard one. When nails, horseshoes, flat irons, etc., are found at this season of the year in the gizzard of the well regulated hen it is an unfailing sign that the winter will be a hard one. The man who gets out his square and compass and takes the latitude and longitude of the melt of the butchered hog has not been so scientifically industrious as usual this season, but enough has been gleaned to show that the melt this year is situate one degree north of the gall, pointing thence three degrees westerly to a rib. Hence the winds will be northwesterly, strong and cold to brisk, shifting to northwesterly and from thence to north, and thence down over the fence and out. On the other hand, it has been shown that the cucumber seeds have been more oblong than usual this year, that the hickory nut shucks have been thin and the covering of onions loose and baggy, and cut low in the neck. The winds, therefore, will be light and low, and the winter as open as a barn. Very little oil is observed to stick to the feathers of the ducks that bathe in Oil creek this month; hence the ice gorge at the Rynd farm next spring will be greater or less, as the case may be. Other indications equally reliable might be cited, but these will suffice for the present.-Oil City Blizzard.

Cracks in the Washington Monolith. The base of the monument shaft itself continues to show more markedly as time goes on the weight of the tremendous shaft above it. The meeting edges of the huge marble blocks are splitting and crumbling away into small pieces, and are seamed, scarred and cracked by the enormous pressure upon them. Through these crevices the cement or other foreign matter has penetrated, causing discolored blotches upon the white marble. Whether this crumbling process, which is continually going on, will eventually impair the stability of the shaft is a serious question. Never in the history of the world has a foundation of any kind had to support so stupendous a pressure as rests upon the base of the Washington monolith.-Washington Herald.

Consumption of Raisins.

The United States is the largest consuming country of raisins in the world, and reliable authorities estimate the consumption at about 2,000,000 boxes of about twenty pounds each, which, at an average of $2 per box, shows an expenditure of $4,000,000 per annum for one article in the dried fruit line. The amount referred to represents say 1,000,000 boxes Valencia, 750,000 boxes in California, 200,000 boxes Malaga and 200,000 boxes Smyrna. The crop of the world for the present season is estimated in round numbers at 6,500,000 bexes, about as follows: Valencia, 3,000,000 boxes; Malaga, 600,000; California, 750,000, and Smyrna, 2,000,000. The shipments of Valencia raisins to the United States to date are 500,000 boxes. - Brooklyn Eagle.
