If the scheme would be entertained by Kingston people a deputation would be sent to the city. Referred to select committee on railways.

THE CHIEF'S REPORT.

Chief Youlken, of the fire department, presented his annual report. The apparatus is in a very good condition, with the exception of the boiler of the Ronald engine, which will require repairing. There were forty six calls for fire last year, seven of which were for Babcocks, with a total loss of $24,600 and an insurance of $57,200. The requirements are a change in the stables, so that the horses can get more readily to their places at the engine and to make arrangements for the accommodation of a part of the apparatus. The present station is so crowded that it interferes with the efficiency of the brigade. The fire alarm telegraph is in good working order. A few more boxes are required to make it perfect.—Received and filed.

THE WATER WORKS REPORT.

Ald. Gildersleeve presented the report of the committee on water works, stating that "under instructions contained in the resolution of the council passed 19th Dec., in respect of the report of the water works committee of the same date," they recommended that except as regards the collection and disbursements of water rates the water works department be placed in charge of the city engineer, and that under him the present mechanical engineer of the works have charge of the engines, boilers, pumping house and fuel, and the present plumber have charge of all pipes and plant and work and inspection connected therewith; that the wages of the plumber be $750 per annum. That for the present and until otherwise ordered the receipts and disbursements of all moneys be placed in charge of the city treasurer, and the books of the department be kept by him and monies paid out by his cheque be countersigned by the mayor; that Mr. F. Smith be employed under the treasurer as water works clerk at the rate of $41.60 per month; that the wages and duties of the other employees be the same as heretofore. The committee reported that as there had been no meeting of the council since 19th Dec., and as the three months' engagement of the manager expired on 31st Dec., the committee had since Jan. 1st, placed the city engineer and city treasurer in charge with the other employees under them as above mentioned.

The report of Dec. 19th, 1887, as amended, was adopted and also the present report.

RESOLUTION OF CONDOLENCE.
Moved by Ald. Hartly, seconded by Ald. McIntyre, that the council desires to record its deep regret at the decease of Lewis Middleton, the late collector of taxes of this city, an officer who discharged the duties of his office to the great satisfaction of this council and with uniform kindness and urbanity towards the citizens with whom he came in contact; that it wishes to express the most sincere sympathy with his widow and family in their affliction; and directs that a copy of this resolution be engrossed on the minutes of the council, and forwarded to Mrs. Middleton.

Ald. Hartly made a brief reference to the deceased, who had discharged his duty to the satisfaction of all concerned. He deeply regretted the circumstances calling forth the resolution.

Ald. McIntyre understood that Ald. Hartly had nominated Mr. Middleton years ago, and it was his melancholy duty to move the resolution which gave expression to their feelings toward a man whose uprightness and integrity had been his chief characteristics.

The resolution was unanimously adopted. A rebate of $14 was made to the licensed victuallers. Ald. Rees said the council should either make the license fee worth collecting or abolish it. He would as soon pay $5 as $1.

THE MAYOR IS CHEERED.

Ald. Muckleston was placed in the chair, and Ald. Hartly moved a resolution ordering the payment of $800 to the mayor, and gracefully acknowledging the painstaking efforts of his worship during his term to do all that was required of him and to keep his council fully aware of all passing events. Ald. Hartly, in view of the early dissolution of the council, eulogized the members of it for honesty, purity and conscientiousness. A better council had never sat. While it had fought and sometimes failed, while sharp and cutting things in debate had been said, he was assured that the members worked together in harmony and did all in their power to advance the city's interests. He made these observations in view of the startling sensations created in other cities by the conduct of councils, by their jobs and connivances of a rascally character, and also because he did not know where he would be in another twelve months. He would always remember with pride his connection with the city council of Kingston.

Ald. McIntyre took pleasure in testifying to the popular way in which the mayor had conducted himself during the year. He was always affable and had suited the citizens well. He had evidently redeemed all his pledges but one. He had evidently forgotten it, namely that he would get married. The speaker could not tell why this pledge had not been carried out, for they all knew his worship's lovable and tractable qualities. They had read of his trips in buggies, carts, four-in-hand, cutters and sleighs, in all directions, and while he had not been followed they were all well aware of his movements and of his associates.

Ald. Phelan—"He's been waiting for leap year."

Ald. McIntyre—"Thank you, and by-the-way, you're in the same fix. Seriously speaking, I think the mayor has incurred a breach of promise to us, and as one of the jurors I find him guilty and fine him, and—(aside) what's the cost of an oyster supper?"

Ald. Wilson (amid laughter)—"Let's have the eyes and nays on it."

This was a bar to Ald. McIntyre, who had been crying for a division all evening in connection with the collectorship. Ald. McIntyre, in concluding, advised that in future the mayors should have more than one term. It was a mistake to be changing every year. A good man only became acquainted with the duties of office when he was ousted from it. He hoped the electors would designate the mayor to the office for that one year.

The resolution was adopted with cheers and Ald. Muckleston in presenting a resolution which meant really a cheque, said, "From experience I know $800 will go a good way toward a wedding trip."

The mayor was obliged for the kind remarks. He had tried to do his duties impartially and if, in so doing, he had caused offence (voices, no, no!) he could say it was not his intention. After leaving the council he could assure them he would be very lone some, and he would watch the papers as to its proceedings. He could not remember having given any promise about his marriage. The fact was, he was too young yet. The council adjourned at 11 o'clock.

THE PRESBYTERIAL SOCIETY.

Its Annual Report a Favorable One—Assisting the Indians in the West.

At the annual meeting held in St. Andrew's hall on the 4th inst. the report showed that $115.20 had been raised by the society during the past year. It was agreed to have separate societies for St. Andrew's and Cooke's churches, as Chalmers' church had separated from the united society and formed one of its own nearly nine months ago. A meeting, therefore, of the ladies belonging to St. Andrew's church is called for Wednesday next, 11th inst., at 2 o'clock, to consider the formation of an auxiliary. There was sent from the Kingston Presbyterian society 1,435 lbs. of clothing for the Indians in the North-West, which were acknowledged thus: "Six boxes and four bales of clothing have just arrived for our people. They are most grateful, and send their most hearty thanks to their friends in the east. This year the supply was so plentiful that everyone was satisfied. The blankets were a source of great delight to the old people. One old woman got a blanket and quilt. She was so pleased, and now says that every night when she lies down she just thanks God for giving her so much warmth and comfort. At first she was so happy she could not sleep. She begs me to give you her very best thanks, and to say that she shakes hands with you again and again. The thanks are no doubt for you Mrs. C., who spent many an evening making that warm and pretty quilt, and it must be pleasing to you to know that it was appreciated."

Greatly Excited.

People are apt to get greatly excited in case of sudden accident and injury. It is well to be prepared for such emergencies. Hagyard's Yellow Oil is the handiest remedy known for burns, scalds, bruises, lameness, pain and all wounds of the flesh. It is used internally and externally.

Of Great Utility.

There is no other medicine of such general usefulness in the household as Hagyard's Yellow Oil for the cure of rheumatism, neuralgia, sore throat and all internal and external pains and injuries.

Tamarac.

For hoarseness and all bronchial troubles that usually effect public speakers, Tamarac Elixir will give speedy relief. Try it.
