 For 1828, for sale at this Office.

To the Free and Independent Electors of the town of Kingston.

Gentlemen,
 I am moved by the solicitations of many of my most respectable friends and fellow townsmen, to offer myself as a Candidate for your suffrages at the ensuing general Election. It is no consciousness, gentlemen, of superior qualification that causes me to assent to their wishes, in aiming at so distinguished an honor as that of being your Representative in Parliament—but if I bring to the cause of public duty a judgment unbiassed and a heart unsullied, perhaps the feeling which prompts my desire of serving you may gain your respect and approbation.
 I am proud, gentlemen, as I doubt not many of you are, to rank myself a descendant of a Loyalist and a Scotchman,—and I must be free to say, if I know my own heart, that the inheritance of uncorrupted attachment to the cause of patriotism, at least, is mine. I will add, with feelings which gather warmth from the avowal, that every association of honest passion or interest, is intertwined with the progress and prosperity of this Province. Here was I born—here did I receive the rudiments of every moral and political principle which a subject of Britain is proud to vaunt—here have I embarked in a profession which embraces all the prospects I have of future comfort or fame—and here I hope to close my life with the pre-eminent gratification of having served my God and served my country.

I am not pledged, gentlemen, to any particular set of opinions—I profess no politics but these; to keep the British Constitution unimpaired, the privileges of British subjects uninvaded, and British pre-eminence and British honour permanent and unshaken.
 However sensible of the smallness of my pretensions to public consideration and favor, I will plead the admitted rule, that no man can be known without a trial—the testimony of experience alone can render any decision upon public principles, or individual talents. To that I shall be free to bow, when time has evinced whether I have a heart to wish your welfare, and a mind of capacity to promote it.
 I have the honor to be,
 Gentlemen,
 Your most obliged, sincere,
 And faithful humble Servant,
 D. BETHUNE. tf
 Kingston, 14th Feb. 1828.

 Electors of the County of Northumberland.
 Gentlemen,
 Having been earnestly solicited by many of my most respectable friends to offer myself as a Candidate at the next General Election; I have been thereby induced to come forward and ask your suffrages on that occasion.
 In this presenting myself as a Candidate for your favor and confidence, do not suppose, Gentlemen, that either a consciousness of superior merit, or selfish motives urge me to come forward, but as I feel a warm and devoted attachment to the cause of Patriotism, and have a heartfelt interest in this prosperity of this Province, and more especially that this County should prosper in this Country have I lived since a child, and here do I expect to spend the remainder of my days, and to do all I can to promote the interest of my adopted country. And, Gentlemen, permit me to inform you, that I am pledged to no particular party, either religious or political! but I wish to be a strenuous supporter of the British Constitution and the rights and liberties it confers on the People. My principles will not allow me to go about the country as some other candidates have done, and are still doing, to ask your votes with a pitiful countenance and hollow promises, as they have attempted, or may endeavour to win you with!
 I hope, Gentlemen, that your good sense will duly appreciate the invaluable privileges and rights you possess, and as free and independent men, you will not give them up to those, who would be base enough to endeavour to purchase them, either by paltry bribery, or despicable flattery!
 I have the honor to be,
 Gentlemen,
 Your most obliged, sincere, and Very humble servant,
 J. A. KEELER.
