inne of the canal actually disposed of,) and two Saw Mills are building.

There are likewise in operation—a Saw Mill, with two saws, near Centreville; a Grist and Saw Mill, Pail Factory, Turning Lathe, and Furnace, at and near St. Catharines; and a Saw Mill at Port Dulhousie, a Dry Dock, for repairing Vessels, is also erecting at the 2d lock from the Harbour.

As this is unquestionably the most extensive and important sale ever offered, of a similar description, in the western part of America, no individual or company will propose to purchase without a personal expressive and in processary of the therefore, only necessary of the control of the

The Niagara peninsula, which separates lakes Erie and Ontario, is composed of two table lands; the first extending from lake Erie to the mountain ridge, running in a line from Niagaro falls as far up as Patterson's creek, (Long Point,) a distance of 90 including the townships of Bertie, Willoughby, Drowland, Humberstone, Wainfleet, Moulton, Canborough, Walpole, Rainham, and part of Woodhouse; and on the opposite side of the Welland river, Stamford, Thorold, Pelbam, Caistor, Gainsborough, and Binbrooke. The second table land, below the mountain ridge, continues from Niagara to Dundas creek, at the head of Burlington bay, a distance of about 60 miles, comprising the townships of Niagtinnal or steady supply of water for an ex-tensive Flouring establishment, within the territory above described, except the Grand giver. It is bounded by the Niagara river on the one side, and by Patterson's creek, a tributary of Burlington bay, on the other, both of which are durable streams, of con-siderable nower.

a tributary of Burlington bay, on the other, both of which are durable streams, of considerable power.

The western country above this to a great distance, and the American side opposite, are likewise destitute of water privileges, to any extent; and this is the nearest and most convenient point to which their merchants and traders can resort for manufacturing purposes, on a scale commensurate to their wants. It is not necessary, however, to take so extended a view of the advantages and importance of the Hydraulick power on the importance of the Hydraulick power on the line of this canal. A similar instance in the state of New-York, will suffice for an examinhabitants of Kingston and its vicinity, that atate of New-York, will suffice for an example. The small stream leading from Crooked to Seneca lake, in the country of Yates, only six miles in length, has already flouring mills erected within sight of each other the whole distance, and no one contains less than three run of stone. Here, the country generally is in a good state of cultivation, and the soil and climate peculiarly adapted to the growing of wheat; consequently, an immediate and increasing demand exists for the erection of Mills and Machinery of every description.

The extent of water power is unlimited. The principal situations on the first level are at the Grand river dam, (the point where the Grand river dam, (the point where the Grand will hereafter enter lake Erie at Marshville, at Robinson, and at Allanburgh, (whore the first level are at the Grand river dam, (the point where the single content of the Grand Route, where the water is brought round four locks.) From thence it passes half way down the mountain in rear of the locks: it then crosses the canal, and is taken to St. Catharines on the other. it passes half way down the mountain in rear of the locks: it then crosses the canal, and is taken to St. Catharines on the other side, in a distinct race-way or ditch. Thus, in the whole descent of 346 feet, the water may be used for Machinery, on each level successively, wholly independent of the canal; so that the works will not be liable to any interruption, even should the water be any interruption, even should the water be drawn off the main levels for the purpose of making repairs.

To make this purchase profitable, it will be necessary to expend a large amount of capital immediately: therefore, no applica-tion will be received unless the parties show
