We copy with peculiar satisfaction the particulars of the New Brunswick Jurian, which took place on the 18th May last. In thus celebrating an interesting and important event, the sons of the "American Loyalists" in New Brunswick have done themselves lasting credit; and the example should be imitated by the descendants of the U. E. Loyalists of Upper Canada. They, like the New Brunswick of their Fathers in that memorable period, but still glory in their loyalty on that occasion—despite of the scornful jests of radicals and democrats, and the cold-blooded speculations of discontented theorists; and who do not hold their allegiance so light a thing that it may be thrown aside or changed as a cloak, when they are tired of the cut or the content of the cut or the collection of the cut or the collection of an interesting of the content of the cut or their fathers in the memorable period, but still glory in their loyalty on that occasion—despite of the scornful jests of radicals and democrats, and the cold-blooded speculations of discontented theorists; and who do not hold their allegiance or changed as a cloak, when they are tired of the cut or the content of the cut or the college of the cut of the cut or the college of the cut or the college of the cut of the cut or the college of the cut of the cut of the cut or the cut of not hold their allegiance so light a thing that it may be thrown aside or changed as a cloak, when they are tired of the cut or color of it."

THE AVERY TRIAL.—The Editor of the Christian Guardian, speaking of the trial of the Rev. Mr. Avery, says:—

"Some of our Upper Canada Editors have not been backward to show their willingness to believe him guilty, the Editor of the Upper Canada Herald not excepted; who very sagely remarks, that "the circumstances of the case, so far as they have transpired, are by no means in favor of the accused, altho' his friends are confident he will be acquitted".

Now we beg every uppresident.

who very sagely remarks, that "the circumstances of the case, so far as they have transpired, are by no means in favor of the accused, altho' his friends are confident he will be acquitted".

Now we beg every unprejudiced person to read our remarks, and then say whether they have been fairly interpreted by the Editor of the Guardian? So far from anticipating the guilt of Mr. Avery, we merely spoke of the testimony as it appeared, and gave the accused the benefit of the opinion of his friends; and, be it remembered, this opinion was contained in that highly respectable paper, the Commercial Advertuser. Notwithstanding the flippaney of the Guardian, it is not uncommon for even "evidence on the part of the prosecution" to be partially in favor of the person accused. On what grounds the Guardian can justify the following reflection upon society generally, and the people of Rhode Island in particular, we are at a loss to conjecture.

"This appears to be the sum of the facts upon which the prosecution was founded, and which gave rise to popular excitement, threatening even the life of the accused, guilty or not guilty! So ready is the world to catch at even the appearance of evil in a Methodst Preacher, and to condemn them without Judge or Jury."

The Editor of the Guardian having manifested his impartiality, by merely glancing at "the facts on which the prosecution was founded, and which gave rise to popular excitement, threatening even the life of the accused, guilty or not guilty! So ready is the world to catch at even the appearance of evil in a Methodst Preacher, and to condemn them without Judge or Jury."

ELEPHANT COLUMBUS.

The accounts so generally known respecting the sagacity and meditated revenge of the Elephant, in his spoiling the works of the Tailor and the Painter, who had affronted him, have been more than verified by an act of Columbus, during the past winter in New-York. Having become offended with a favorite Pony which had been a long time in his company, he broke the lock which fastened the chain with which he was secured, and in the dead of the night, when on one was present to protect the unconsciously offending Pony, stove in the door of the apartment in which the Pony was kept, indentified him from several others with which he was standing and despected him with a single stroke of his tusks, leaving all the others unmolested. This circumstance was noticed at the time, by the principal journals of the city, and became the subject of general currosity. In the symmetry of his form and enormous size, Columbus is equal to any Elephant ever exhibited in this country. And in his performances and the great variety and amusing character of his tricks, which are too numerous to particularize, Columbus has pever been surpassed by any Elephant. His tusks are near four feet in length.
